The Cordial Balm of Syriam and Tonic Pills.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the cause may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting, as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

It is characterized by a general languor or weakness of the whole organism, especially of the nervous system, obstructing and preventing the ordinary functions of nature; hence there is general debility, and the secretions, constituting the urine, are colored, and with an excess of earthy or lime sediment, indicative of waste of brain and nerve substance, frequent palpitations of the heart, and a general sense of prostration, and inability to carry into effect any of the ordinary business enterprises of life. There is great sensitiveness to impress, though retained but a short time, with a flickering and unsteady condition of the mental faculties, rendering an individual what is commonly called a "whiffle-minded or fickle-minded man."

This condition of the individual, distressing as it is, may with a certainty be cured by

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRIAM AND LOTHROP'S TONIC PILLS.

Medicines unrivaled for the relief of the properties and remarkable efficacy in nervous complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustule, Pimples, Tetter, Fever, Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-head, Barbers' Itch, Scoury, Salt Rheum, Copper-Colored Itch, and other Skin Diseases, Worms and Black Spots in the Mouth, Discolorations, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Lips, and Sores of every character, because these medicines are the very best.

BLOOD MEDICINE

Ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most powerful Alterative ever originated by man, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

Sold by all Druggists, and will be sent by express to all parts of the country by addressing the proprietor, Dr. J. G. WANNAMAKER, LOTHROP, M. D., 100 North Street, Boston, Mass., who may be consulted free of charge either personally or by mail. Send 25 cents and get a copy of his Book on Nervous Diseases.

A Romance of Divorce.

It is not generally known, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, yet it is probably true, that the novel of East Lynne, although written in England, had the groundwork of its story in a singular marriage which took place in this city, the notice and the attending circumstances of the time being copied by the Cincinnati Enquirer in the country. The notice was about as follows: The husband, a clerk in a downtown house, fell in love with a young lady whose father was a well to do Second street merchant, and after proper season of attention the couple were married. Both soon found out that they were not happily mated, and after a marriage of seven years, during which time they had three children, two boys and a girl, they mutually agreed to the husband applying for a bill of divorce on the ground of incompatibility of temper. The divorce was granted, and the wife went home to her father, who had, through indorsing, lost his business and all his property. The daughter's and his own misfortunes weighed so heavily upon the father's mind that during a moment of mental alienation he took his own life, leaving his daughter penniless and to rough it with the cold charity of the world as best she could. The woman, a brave little creature, tried every way she knew how to gain an honest living—in fact, working so hard giving music lessons and doing embroidery for her old schoolmates that her health gave way, and, having no money to pay her board, must beg, starve or go to the poor-house. To turn to the other side of the picture, the husband, after a few months' rest from the marital bonds, again married, and at the time of which we speak had not only the three children by the first wife, but also in addition thereto a little two-year-old girl by the second wife. The latter lady being ill, the husband advertised for a nurse and housekeeper, which notice reached the eye of the first wife, and she, in her trouble, went to the former partner of her heart, told him of her sad condition, and applied for the position in his household. The husband knew not what to say; but, after giving her ample funds for all immediate wants, asked her to call again at his office on the following morning, promising to consult his wife about the matter in the meantime.

Promptly as per agreement wife No. 1 was on time, as was the husband, and from there they went to the residence, where the two wives had their first conversation, ending in their agreement for the first wife to come and accept the vacant place, which she did, seemingly delighted at having a peaceful home over her head, notwithstanding the very strange circumstances under which such a shelter was given. Necessity demanded that the entire first should be entrusted to the new housekeeper, treated as any other help; that she must care for the children—her own offspring—and the other child the same as any hired nurse would do; that she must eat at the second table to care for her charges. All these things and more were told to the poor woman show, never by sign, word or look exhibiting the least evidence of discontent. What, however, must have been the true feelings of her heart when seeing another filling the place that she had once filled, as she thought, so hard to fill. The above is from an old Cincinnati paper, but the sequel is told by one conversant with the whole facts, is stranger than what we have already narrated. When the cholera was raging in our city in 1866 the second wife was taken very ill, with it, and being indorsed by the physician that she could live, but a few hours at the most, as she was then in a collapsed condition, she asked that all go out the room, excepting her husband and the housekeeper, when she told how much she dreaded leaving her child amongst strangers, and as a dying wife entreated them both to marry again. The proposition was a strange one, but both promised, and a few months afterward, when the second wife had been dead a sufficient length of time not to cause remarks, the two were again married, brought together after a cruel separation of so many years, and we believe are now living happily in a cozy West End house.

The Actor's Old Love.

Mr. Macready survived his retirement from the stage more than twenty-two years, which he spent first at Sherborne, and afterwards at Cheltenham, where he died on the 27th of April, 1873. It was his fate to see many of his "dear ones laid in earth." His wife and most of his children preceded him to the grave. He married most happily a second time in 1860. Removed from the stage and its jealousies, all his fine qualities had freer scope; and we think now with pleasure of his venerable and noble head, as we saw it last in 1872, and of the sweet smile of his beautiful mouth, which spoke of the calm wisdom of a gentle and thoughtful old age. We have reason to know that he looked back with yearning fondness to the studies and pursuits which had made him famous. The fretful jealousies, the passionate willfulness of the old times seemed to have faded into the dim past, and no longer marred the memory of kindness done and loyal service rendered to him. He had done much good in the sphere which Providence had assigned him, and we believe had learned to enjoy that it was not for him to repine, if "the divinity that shapes our ends" had so shaped his that his work was to be accomplished upon the stage. It is of the man as we then saw him, the man whom we had known as a highly cultivated and essentially kind-hearted gentleman; that we would rather think than of the actor with all his weakness and ordery laid bare. What to Teach Our Daughters.

Teach them self-reliance.
Teach them to make bread.
Teach them to make shirts.
Teach them not to wear false hair.
Teach them to wear thick, warm shoes.
Teach them how to wash and iron clothes.
Teach them how to make their own dresses.
Teach them that a dollar is only a hundred cents.
Teach them to cook a good meal of victuals.
Teach them how to darn stockings and sew on buttons.
Teach them every day, dry, hard, practical common sense.
Teach them to say no, and mean it; or say yes, and stick to it.
Teach them to wear calico dresses and do it like queens.
Teach them that a good rosy romp is worth fifty consupives.
Teach them to regard the morals and not the money of their beaux.
Teach them all the mysteries of the kitchen, the dining-room and the parlor.

A BEAUTIFUL ALLEGORY.—A traveller in Turkey relates a beautiful parable which seemed even more beautiful than Sterne's celebrated figure of the accusing spirit and recording angel: "Every man," says the dervish, "has two angels, one on his right shoulder, and one on his left. When he does anything good, the angel on his right shoulder writes it down and seals it, because what has been well done is done forever. When he does evil, the angel on the left writes it down and waits till midnight. If before that time the man bows his head and exclaims 'Gracious Allah! I have sinned, forgive me!' the angel rubs out the record; but if not, at midnight he seals it, and the beloved angel on the right shoulder weeps." Why is the sun like a good loaf? Because it's light when it rises. A Council Bluffs doctor hangs out a sign inscribed "Dr. H. O. Green, Medico Electrico." O!

A Shabby Swindle Exposed.

A pretended exhibition of spirit power in the large hall of "Ammany Hall, New York, on Sunday evening, was broken up with much confusion and excitement. George Willis, who claimed to be a medium, attempted to show his ability to ring bells and do various other things after he had been tried by a committee chosen from the audience, and his arms had been enclosed in wire cases. But the imposture was detected by members of the committee, and it was found that Willis drew his hands from the wire cases and slipped from the cords which bound him sufficiently far to enable him to perform the tricks which he declared were done by the aid of spirits. When the fraud was announced by a member of the committee, Willis and his business manager and ticket-taker fled from the building. There was a large number of persons present, who were much enraged at the imposture, some of whom rushed upon the platform, broke the spurious medium's casket, and carried away his apparatus. It is believed that Willis and those who were associated with him made about $1,500 from the admission and extra seat tickets.

Read Your Country's History.

In the action of Lundy's Lane a Colonel O'Neil (General, he came to call himself) got a scratch on his leg. The wound was a matter of great joy, and he nursed it through after days growing lazier with every year, that the memory of his bravery might be ever near him. Gradually, from sheer pondering over his stories he grew to think that the success of the battle was largely owing to his services. One day, late in his life, as he sat nursing his leg and pondering over the glories past, a young man, visiting the family for the first time, approached and sympathetically remarked, "Lame General?" "Yes, sir," after a pause, with inexpressible solemnity, "I am lame." "Been riding, sir?" "No," with a rebuking sternness, "I have not been riding." "Ah! slipped on the ice, General, and hurt your leg?" "No, sir," with actual ferocity. "Perhaps you have sprained your ankle, sir?" With a painful slowness the old man lifted his pat leg in both hands, set it carefully on the floor, rose slowly from his chair, and looking down upon the unfortunate youth with a stare of mingled wonder, pity and wrath, burst forth in the sublimity of rage. "Go read the history of your country, you puppy!"

TAKING IT EASY.—Old Roger was a queer Dick, and in his own way made all things a subject of rejoicing. His son Ben came in one day and said:

"Father, that old black sheep has got two lambs."
"Good," said the old man, "that's the most profitable sheep on the farm."
"But one of them is dead," said Ben.
"I'm glad on't," said the old man, "it'll be better for the old sheep."
"But t'other's dead, too," said Ben.
"So much the better, rejoined Roger, 'she'll make a grand piece of mutton in the fall."
"Yes, but the old sheep's dead, too," exclaimed Ben.
"Dead! dead! what the old sheep dead?" cried old Roger, "that's good; she always was an ugly old scamp."
