Religious Views And Church Connections of our Presidents.

George Washington was a member of the Episcopal Church. John Adams was a Congregationalist. Thomas Jefferson's ideas on religion are difficult to classify. He was denounced from New England pulpits as a "Godless man." He belonged to no church. John Quincy Adams was a Congregationalist. Madison and Monroe were both Episcopalians in good standing. Andrew Jackson was notoriously irreligious in his early manhood and mature life. After his retirement from the Presidency he became converted and joined the Presbyterian Church, his dying words being: "My dear children and friends and servants, I hope and trust to meet you all in heaven, both white and black." Martin Van Buren never made any religious profession, but was a man of irreproachable morality. William Henry Harrison was an Episcopalian. John Tyler was an Episcopalian. James K. Polk made no confession but was sprinkled by a Methodist clergyman on his death bed. Zachary Taylor gave the matter of religion no thought but contributed to the Episcopal Church to which his wife belonged. Millard Fullmore affiliated with the Baptists. Franklin Pierce was an Episcopalian. James Buchanan became a Presbyterian after his Presidency. Abraham Lincoln's parents were both Baptist. Andrew Johnson inclined to Methodism. Ulysses Grant was a Methodist. Rutherford B. Hayes was a Methodist. James A. Garfield was a member of the Church of Christ. Chester A. Arthur was an Episcopalian. Benjamin Harrison was Presbyterian. Grover Cleveland was a Presbyterian. William McKinley was a Methodist. Theodore Roosevelt is a member of the Reformed Dutch Church, and sometimes preaches from its pulpit. Hon. Woodrow Wilson is a highly respected Presbyterian.

Forty One Perish with Sinking Ship.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 30.—The story of how 41 people went down to death in the chill water of the Atlantic when the liner Nantucket rammed and sank the steamer Monroe early today was brought to port tonight by 85 survivors of the sunken ship's passengers, rescued and brought to shore by the Nantucket. It was a story of awful and sudden death sweeping out of the dark fog and taking unaware the doomed half hundred with the heaviness of sleep still upon them. It told how the stricken Monroe, with her side gored deep by the knife-like steel prow of the Nantucket filled rapidly, rolled over on her side and in a few minutes turned completely over plunged to the bottom, carrying with her the ill fated passengers and members of the crew who had failed to get clear of the wreck. Tonight the revised list prepared by Capt. Johnson, who survived the sunken vessel showed: Lost: Passengers 19, crew 22, total 41. Saved: Passengers 39, crew 60, total 99. CREEPING THROUGH FOG Under the thick fog that hid the heavily running sea, both big ships were making their way slowly and with difficulty in the early morning. The Monroe, with Capt. Johnson on the bridge and a double lookout peering into the fog ahead, was edging under half speed to the northward, having left Norfolk for New York last evening with a racking, fog bound voyage. The Nantucket, James Buchanan, became a Presbyterian after his Presidency. Abraham Lincoln's parents were both Baptist. Andrew Johnson inclined to Methodism. Ulysses Grant was a Methodist. Rutherford B. Hayes was a Methodist. James A. Garfield was a member of the Church of Christ. Chester A. Arthur was an Episcopalian. Benjamin Harrison was Presbyterian. Grover Cleveland was a Presbyterian. William McKinley was a Methodist. Theodore Roosevelt is a member of the Reformed Dutch Church, and sometimes preaches from its pulpit. Hon. Woodrow Wilson is a highly respected Presbyterian.

Kissing.

There's no telling who invented the art of kissing, says an exchange, but it is a safe assertion that no inventor ever saw his example so universally adopted or so gosh awfully enjoyed. Kissing is a pleasure, a habit, an ecstasy, a duty, a sin, a crime depending altogether on the circumstances. Kissing a baby is about the sweetest thing on earth, but it's mighty hard on the baby. He gets such a lot of it. Pretty girls kiss him; married women kiss him; old bachelors kiss him—everybody's doin' it. If he were big enough to assert himself he wouldn't stand for it—not all of it, anyway. But then, if he were bigger no one would care to kiss him. Kissing a girl whose lips are like warm velvet and whose cheeks are as soft as the dove's breast would be about the nicest thing, except for the fact that no one gets to kiss that kind of a girl except raw boys who haven't learned how to kiss. Kissing one's wife is about as near perfect enjoyment as a mere mortal need hope to get. But it's a custom not universally followed. Some men never kiss their wives. And of course some men kiss other men's wives. The man who doesn't kiss his wife at least ten times a day doesn't deserve her. The woman who doesn't want to be kissed at least ten times a day doesn't deserve a husband. And yet, if the old man keeps a quid of cut plug in his jaw, his wife who stands for ten kisses a day deserves a halo and a cushioned seat alongside of Job in the New Testament.

The Rewards of Inventors.

It is not always the greatest invention that brings the largest financial rewards. Roller skates are said to have brought their inventor 3 million dollars, while nearly half a million was realized by the man who first devised boot laces. The inventor of the safety pin, who took the idea from a reproduction of a Pompeian fresco, says Les Nouvelles made 10 million dollars. On the other hand, Charles Bourseul, who discovered and described the principle of the telephone in 1822, died poor. Michaux, the inventor of the bicycle, ended his days in the utmost penury, and Frederic Sauvage who is credited with the invention of the screw propeller was imprisoned and died padkrupt and insane —Ex. The young man who was calling on the charming daughter of the house was rather slow in proposing and the matter, it seems, was talked over in the domestic circle, which included little brother William, 7 years old. One evening the young man called and about 9 o'clock sister gently told the youngster that it was time for him to hike it for the nocturnal roost. "Can't I stay up a little longer, Bessie?" pleaded Willie. "I want to see you and Mr. Smith play cards." "See Mr. Smith and I play cards!" responded sweet sister with a look of surprise. "We are not going to play cards." "Oh yes you are," persisted little Willie. "I heard mother tell you that everything depended on the way you played your cards tonight." —Ex.
