Wolf Pits
 Jeffersonian.
 In many places in Chesterfield county are found what appears to have once been very large wells. In some instances they are only slight depressions in the ground; in others they are still several feet deep, despite the long continued filling-up process. Three generations ago when pigs, sheep and calves were the easy and frequent prey of savage, white-fanged wolves, and when it was dangerous for children to venture far from home alone, farmers dug under the low overhanging branches of trees pits much larger than present day wells, and from ten to fifteen feet deep. Usually such a pit was slightly larger at the bottom than at the top. A piece of juicy bacon was swung from a limb directly over the mouth of the pit, which was concealed by a light covering of canes, leaves or pine straw. When Mr. Wolf came along, he scented the bacon, leaped for it, and whether he reached it or not, he naturally fell through the light covering into the pit, where he stayed 'till dispatched next morning by the handy rifle. Another plan was when the hogs or beeves were butchered to throw the refuse meat into the pit whose top was left uncovered. The strong odor of the fresh meat would entice the wolf into jumping into the pit, which was so deep that he could not get out again. One of the early settlers on the east side of Blaak creek one morning found six wolves thus entrapped.

Our University Letter
 By Robt. Turner
 The University of Soute Carolina will have vacancies in the Normal Scholarships in the following counties for the session of 1914-15: Abbeville, Darlington, Dorchester, Florence, Georgetown, Greenwood, Jasper, Lexington, Marlboro, Newberry, Sumter, and Union. These scholarships will be awarded upon a competitive basis, the young man from each county who make the best marks on the examinations receiving the award. This presents a fine opportunity for some young man in each of the open counties to obtain a good education with little cost.

The University baseball team has been showing up in good form and has retrieved itself from the first defeats suffered by winning two straight victories over West Virginia Wesleyan. Prospects were never brighter for a winning team than at present.
 All students are planning for the greatest of Easter weeks. From present indications and plans the coming Easter Week celebration is going to be the event of the session.
 Wednesday night in LeGonte College Mr. Sullivan, who is in charge of the Weather Bureau at Columbia, spoke to the students on the "Workings of the Bureau." He emphasized the importance of securing the cooperation of all the people and the newspapers for most effective work.

"How can you tell when a woman is only shopping?"
 "When they intend to buy they ask to see something cheaper. When they're shopping they ask if you haven't something more expensive in stock." — Ex.
Mr. Quick at His Old Home.
 Senator John L. McLaurin, Warren Moore, Tom C. Chavis and H. E. Teal attended services at Prospect church, near McLaurin's mill Sunday morning, and heard a fine sermon by Rev. John Wesley Quick of Pageland. Mr. Quick is a native of Marlboro, and was once a candidate for coroner. He is now postmaster and pastor of a church at Pageland. He is making quite a reputation as a preacher. — Bennettsville Daily.

Electric Scrubwoman.
 Machinery has now invaded the field of the poor scrubwoman, for an electric scrubbing machine has just come into use. It is a little pushcart, supplied with electric power through a wire connected with a lamp socket. The operator simply pushes it over the marble floor and controls its operations by levers on the cart handle. A set of brushes revolves on the floor while a little stream of water trickles down through them from a tank. Powdered soap is fed to the water in easily regulated amount. As the car is pushed ahead the dirty water is swept up to a pipe, and a little pump sucks it up from the floor.

In Out of the Wet.
 An Irishman was fishing in a river when it began to rain heavily. Pat not desiring to get soaked through, sought shelter under a railway bridge spanning the river, and here he plied his rod with true Waltonic zeal, utterly regardless of the rains that incessantly thundered to and fro over head. Presently another individual appeared on the scene and politely asked Pat what he was doing.
 "Fishing," was the laconic report.
 The stranger laughed. "Pray what is the use of fishing under the bridge while such an infernal noise continues?"
 "Oh, shut up, man," replied Pat, indignantly. "Sure, ye don't know these fish. They'll come under here to get out av the rain!" — Exchange.

Neighborly.
 A South Dakota senator recently gave a new illustration of that fine saying of an ancient philosopher, "man was born for mutual assistance."
 A customer entered the small town barber shop.
 "How soon can you cut my hair?" he asked of the proprietor, who was seated in an easy chair, perusing the pages of a dime novel.
 "Bill," said the barber, addressing his errand boy, "run over and tell the editor that I'd like my scissors, if he's got done editin' the paper. Gentleman waitin' for a hair cut." — Everybody's Magazine.
