June 3, 1914

Monday, June 22nd is the regular time for criminal court for Chesterfield county, but there will not be any court this time. There is only one man in jail, and Solicitor Spears has written the clerk of court that unless there are jail cases to be tried no court is to be called. This is probably better than convening court for two or three hours, as has been the custom at the June term of court in this county.

Mr. R. H. Garland, who has been suggested for the legislature, informs us that it will be impossible for him to enter the race. He says he appreciates very much the solicitations of his friends, but he is firm in his refusal. He is not situated so he can get away from home and his work, he says, and while he appreciates what has been done for him he can't see his way clear to make the race.

The automobile in which the county supervisor rides has caused quite a little talk, and we are glad to be able to give the facts in the case as told by the clerk of the county board. The commissioners proposed to present the car to him, but as this is not provided for in the law, Mr. King declined to accept it. He therefore paid for it with his own money, and is, of course, free to use it as he may see fit.

The following is from the last issue of the Marshville Home:

"The Pageland Journal says a dynamo will be installed in connection with the oil mill plant at Marshville to furnish lights for the town. We are not enlightened as to where Tucker got his information, but it strikes us that it is a little 'previous.' We expect to have an electric line before many years—perhaps before twelve months. We may fail to get it, and if so, then other steps will perhaps be taken to secure lights. If arrangements have been made for the connection of a dynamo to the oil mill plant, the commissioners of Marshville and the citizens at large know nothing of it."

Sorry. We hoped it was so. One of the leading citizens of Marshville, one who has a record as a truth teller, informed us and we did not hesitate to report it according to his statement. But it seems there must have been a mistake.

The Waxhaw Enterprise had the following to say last week:

The Pageland Journal and the Lancaster News are engaged in a controversy as to who should be sent to the Legislature. The Journal thinks that the lawmakers, to make suitable laws, should be selected from a certain class or profession, while the News believes that the profession should have nothing to do with it but that men should be selected who are fitted for the work and stand for the principles advocated by the people. We think the Journal is a little off its base unless it wants to run for the Legislature itself."

Wrong there, brother. We did not say lawmakers should be selected from "a certain class or profession." But on the contrary, we have tried to make clear our belief that the lawmakers should never be selected from a certain class or profession, but from all the people. We have tried to show that the old practice of selecting nearly all the lawmakers from a "certain class or profession" is all wrong, said "certain class" meaning, of course, the lawyers.

The Enterprise man would hardly leave to us the work of trying for the national highway by his town, even if he had confidence in our ability to properly represent the town's interests. (Waxhaw is trying to get on the proposed national highway through North Carolina by Charlotte and Gastonia, you know.) He would be unwilling because he knows we are not interested, save in the general sense in which we wish all towns well. In other words, we do not care enough about it to work for it. Just so, we are unwilling to send a full delegation of lawyers up to make the laws. They are interested in the affairs of the laboring classes about as we are interested in Waxhaw's roads—interested, but not enough to work.

No, McNeely, we are not off our base because we want to run for the legislature but we fear you are a little off yours from a very natural leaning toward the legal profession.

Sunday School Conference To Meet in Florence

One of the most important religious gatherings to be held in Eastern Carolina during this year will be held at Florence, June 29, 30 and July 1, when the District Sunday School Conference of the Florence District Methodist Episcopal Church South, will hold its fifth annual conference. The Rev. W. A. Massebeau, Presiding Elder of the Florence District, will preside over this conference. Representatives from the seventy-one Sunday Schools in the District will attend the meeting. Prominent among the speakers will be Dr. J. H. Way, S. S. Field Secretary of South Carolina conference. All the pastors and many prominent laymen will take part in the discussion of important phases of Sunday school work. The Sunday school banners of the South Carolina conference are usually won by Sunday schools in the Florence district.

During the past year 1,048 persons were received into the church in the Florence District, a large percent of whom came from the Sunday school. This year no less than another 1,000 persons will likely be received in the church, most of whom are expected to come through the influence of Sunday School workers.

Cheraw Boy Flies in Mexico.

Patrick N. L. Bellinger, lieutenant (junior grade), United States navy, who has been aloft more often at Vera Cruz than any other of the navy aviators who hastened to that port aboard the Birmingham when Mexican affairs became critical, is a native of Cheraw and has a number of relatives in South Carolina.

Richard Harding Davis, writing from Vera Cruz, said of him recently: "He has a very young face, tanned to the color of a McClellan army saddle, his hair is yellow, eyes blue and always smiling. He is the picture of health. Clean living, clean thinking and the daily exercise of taking a chance with death have given him the look of a Greek god or one of Leyendecker's captains. He is much too good to lose. Were he my son, and he is young enough, I would give him a good talk for taking such risks, and in order to keep him out of danger would make him a paymaster or an admiral."

Lieut. Bellinger was born October 8, 1885. He was appointed to the Naval academy at Annapolis in 1903, and he has had five years and eight months of sea service.

Cross Roads, at V. B. Waddell's residence—J. W. Hancock, V. B. Waddell, D. A. T. Douglas.

As a good many of the clubs have not organized this year, the Executive Committee would like very much for such clubs to meet real soon and properly organize.

It is very important that each club have a Secretary and a member of the County Executive Committee.

Let the word go out to all the voters to enroll for there is absolutely no reason for any white democrat in Chesterfield county being deprived of the right to vote, provided he is 21 years of age, or shall become so before the general election, and a citizen of the State for two years, and has resided in the county six months and the voting precinct 60 days prior to the primary.

We shall be glad to give any information we can.

M. J. Hough,
Chairman Ex. Committee.
J. Clifton Rivers,
Secretary.

Not Superstitious

One night Pat was out to a ball and did not get home till late. When he got home a nurse rushed to him and unwrapping a soft bundle showed him triplets. Just then the clock struck 3 o'clock. Pat looked first at the clock and then said "Three," then looked at the triplets and said, "I three!" exclaiming, "Bedad, I am not superstitious, but it is a good thing I don't come home at 12."

Here are Two Machines You Need

Admiral Mower

because it is the only mower that has genuine underdraft, "floating" frame and uniform tilt, the three big mower features no farmer should be without if he values his own time or his team's strength, and wants the machine that does most work the easiest.

Steel Hay Rake

because every tooth is held individually and has a coil spring to protect it against sudden strains; because it is made entirely of steel and can be depended upon to stand up under constant wear and tear of work in all kinds of fields. Its long life makes it the most economical you can buy.

Make us prove these claims or convince yourself by examining the machines at our store.

Mower - $45.00 Rake - 22.50

We will only have four more mowers at the above price. The next will be $47.50
