Do not forget to put your name on your club roll.

Tomorrow is the state candidate's day in Chesterfield. If you desire to see the gentlemen who so much desire your vote, go to the county seat and look for yourself.

The annual meeting of the editors of South Carolina will be held at Chick Springs Hotel next week. We wish for all a pleasant rest from newspaper tribulation and we regret that we can't be among the number.

"Everybody should drink Chesterfield water. It answers every beverage requirement, vim, vigor, refreshment, wholesomeness. A glass will satisfy you."—Chesterfield Advertiser. Yes, thanks, a glass is a plenty.

We see by the papers that the North Carolina editors were furnished home-made scuppernong wine at their meeting down on the coast last week. We are glad that none of them had to be tagged and shipped home as a result.

In another column is an article urging parents to give the boys a chance and we desire to sanction this advice. The lack of cooperation between father and son has been the cause of more young men leaving the farm than any other one thing. As the writer of the above mentioned article says, a boy is not a machine and he doesn't care to be eternally obeying orders from even his father. He doesn't object to general oversight and he is willing to recognize his father's authority, but he craves a little freedom of movement and he wants to be responsible. Give the boy a chance to show what is in him, and he will never show himself unworthy of your confidence. Hold the boy responsible for the results and give him the reins.

The campaigning in South Carolina is not unusually warm this year. The candidates for Governor are getting along nicely. Richards and Simms have been accused of coattail swinging, and this they deny strongly. John G. Clinkscales is advocating compulsory education from every platform and the people are applauding.

The senatorial candidates have a little warmer time of it. Pollock and Jennings are pouring hot shots into the governor, and he is on the defensive. Smith is not dealing in personalities but is telling the people what he has been doing in congress and what he hopes to do next session.

It is rather early in the game, but we risk the guess that Blease and Smith will be in a second race and that Smith will be the winner. Also that Richards and Clinkscales will run the second race—and we hope Clinkscales will be the winner.

We just knew that blackberry editorial would come, and we are glad to pass it on to you. B. Clegg Ashcraft is bound to write at least one each season so long as blackberries continue to grow and he sits at the editorial desk of the Monroe Enquirer. Here it is: "Blackberry time, glory be! There ought to be a law making it a misdemeanor to cut a blackberry pie into more than four pieces. The very nature of a blackberry pie shows that it never was intended to be cut into more than four pieces. Why, even in the spring of '65, after Sherman's raid, when times were sure enough hard, they were not so hard that our mothers had to cut the blackberry pie more than twice across the plate and certainly now there is no reason for making that favorite pie into more than four wedge-shaped pieces that a fellow can just shove into the opening in his face. And then, too, the overly-nice fellow who wrote some book etiquette that pie should be eaten with a fork, did not mean blackberry pie. He meant this society pie that nobody knows what's in it and is not "fitted to eat nohow. Good, honest old blackberry pie was intended to be eaten the way things were eaten long before forks were invented. Blackberry pie, may its season be long in the land, for during that season niggers and editors can have something to eat that's just as good as any millionaire can buy."
