The outlook for the cotton market is not what we would like to see, but it could be worse. There is great difficulty in shipping to Germany and Austria because of the English blockade, but it is claimed that the Allies will use enough more than the normal supply to balance what Germany ordinarily consumes. Cotton is extensively used in the manufacture of ammunition, and the Allies will doubtless use more than they ordinarily do, but how this increase will compare with the usual German supply we are not in position to say.

With a crop four million bales shorter than last year, and with the United States government ready to aid, it seems that conditions should not be so bad after all. We are inclined to take an optimistic view and hope for the best. We still contend that the people will be in much better shape this fall than last, even with cotton as low. We have prepared to live at home.

Very few editors read over their papers after they are printed, we believe. It is not a very great pleasure to look back and see that one has sent broadcast over the community the statement that all interested parties will meet at such and such a church on Thursday when it should have been Tuesday, that John Smith is visiting relatives at Someplace when he is at home several days, that Joe Brown's name was spelled Jo brown, that Rev. So-and-so is from Columbia when it should have been Darlington, that Mrs. Julia Wiggins is improving when she is really at the point of death. The editor finds it more pleasant to remain in blissful ignorance of all the errors and to express profound astonishment when his attention is called to them by irate or amused readers.

Most newspaper men conscientiously strive to keep their papers free from errors, but when one's best, under the circumstances, has been done there is little good in looking back and digging out more worry, just as if there had not been enough already. A lawyer or a merchant may conceal his mistakes, a doctor may bury his, but an editor—well, he just takes his cussin' and forgets it as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Little Entertain

Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Dan Little entertained a few friends in honor of their house guests, Misses Velma and Lucile McIntosh. Games were played, and later all repaired to the dining room where cake and cream was served. They were assisted in receiving and entertaining by Miss Netta Clark and assisted in serving by Miss Velma McIntosh and Mr. Harry Redfearn.

Fine Lads.

There was an Irishman who lined up his family of seven gigantic sons, and invited his caller to look at them says The Argonaut.

"Ain't they the fine boys?" inquired the father.

"They are," agreed the visitor.

"The finest in the world!" exclaimed the father. "And I nnyver laid violent hands on any of them except in self-defense."

Resolutions of Respect.

The death of Mr. J. C. Dalrymple has doubtless saddened the hearts of all who knew him. This is written in reverence of his memory and attainments as a co-laborer in God's vineyard and a true law abiding citizen.

He cultivated but few of the light graces of life, always plain, simple and direct in his modes of habit and thought. His many acts of kindness fell as the dews of heaven unseen and unfelt.

He was self possessed, good tempered, meek and patient, with an expansive, genial heart that looked much to the welfare of others, and was ever ready for their sakes to sacrifice his own.

He was a laborer with us in God's vineyard for six years, always prompt and orderly, his conversations always pure, agreeable, interesting and profitable.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the members of Cross Roads church desire to express their appreciation for his faithful and efficient work.

"Resolved, that we extend to his bereaved wife and family our heart felt sympathy in this sad bereavement.

If we keep the faith we shall see him again for there is no death. The stars go down to shine upon some fairer shore, and bright in Heaven's jeweled crown they shine for evermore.

We may well mourn the death of such a young man, full of strength, power, promise and unfulfilled possibilities, but we all must bow our head beneath the touch of death, but may we exclaim.

"Oh, death, where is thy sting."

CHURCH NOTES

BAPTIST, J. M. Sullivan, Pastor.
Our meeting at Liberty Hill was a grand success. The Lord blessed us with both temporal and spiritual showers.

Bro. Jones left us Thursday afternoon for a stop over with the home folks and on to Ridge-land for his regular appointment Sunday.

Friday morning we baptized 8 and during the meeting we restored 2 and received 3 by letter, making a total of 13.

We appreciated the nice melons given us last week by our friends.

We have had a number of invitations for this present week, but our "physical" man says rest, and we will be obedient for once.

Next Saturday Center Grove 3 p. m., Sunday 11 a. m. Our protracted meeting will begin at this time. We hope to have Bro. Leon Fundeburk with us to do the preaching.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL
J. A. McGraw.

On next Sunday we will have two services at Zion, with dinner on the ground. This will be the beginning of our meeting at this place. We will fill our appointment at Pageland at 4 o'clock.

METHODIST PROTESTANT
John W. Quick, Pastor

Our appointment for next Sunday will be at Rose Hill at 11 o'clock. Our special meeting will begin the fifth Sunday in August.

R. W. Cato's Appointments

1st Sunday—Mt. Moriah at 11 o'clock on Sunday, and 3 o'clock on Saturday.

2nd Sunday—Bethel at 11 o'clock Sunday, and Saturday at 2 o'clock.

3rd Sunday—Mt. Pisgah at 11 o'clock Sunday, and Saturday at 2 o'clock.

MONEY IN IDEAS

Bell, Howe, Singer, and other millionaire inventors began life as poor boys. Fortunes await other inventors. Can YOU think of something to patent? America's greatest inventor tells HOW TO INVENT in a booklet sent to you free by COPP & CO., Patent Attorneys, 745 8th St., Washington, D. C. Be sure to name this newspaper in your letter. Ask Editor about cost of Patent.

STUDIO

We will be at Pageland from July 28 to August 28 to do any kind of photographic work. See us.

Bring your films and have them developed.
