Please does not mind being investigated, but he wants the job done by his friends.

Congress meets next week, and then we will have something else to worry about.

We have heard of three candidates for mayor. Either of whom would make a good one.

Under the circumstances, we do not believe we would care to be a member of the new winding-up commission.

The Missouri senate assembly passed a bill prohibiting dram shops from being licensed, except in incorporated towns.

"You can't throw a stone now in Indiana without hitting a spring poet," says an exchange. The South Carolina crop seems to be short.

It is dollars to doughnuts that Col. Felder will not submit his testimony to the new winding-up commission.

Senator LaFollette will lead the fight on the war game going on in the Mexican border.

Because Joseph Plummer, of Milton, N. H., was prevented by his father from marrying the woman of his choice he remained 40 years in bed.

Col. Roosevelt says Arizona was not given a square deal in being denied statehood because of certain provisions in its proposed constitution.

In a speech at Albuquerque, N. M., Col. Roosevelt denounced Senator Lorimer, of Illinois, and former Governor Haskell of Oklahoma.

Henry Watterson says if Sweet William Lorimer is going to attempt to live up to his canonization by the United States senate how is he to avoid resigning his seat in that body instantly?

Our honest opinion is that Col. Felder is engaged in a game of hot air, and that we have heard about all that we are going to hear about that grand expose that he says he will pull off soon.

The Spartanburg Journal, which is an independent newspaper politically, says "just watch Joe Bailey and see if he hands in another resignation."

The Mexican system of practical dictatorship is not favorable to the development of governing talent.

Wonder if the investigating business will ever come to an end? The new winding up commission will investigate the old winding-up commission, and, no doubt, a committee of the legislature will later on investigate the doings of the new winding-up commission, and so it goes.

A Chicago dispatch to the Denver Times says "Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri is a candidate for president. He 'admitted' today he would make a good candidate. This is the way he put it: "Well the Democratic party might go further and fare worse—and I think it will."

The Sumter Daily Item says: "Col. Felder either has the proof on the Governor and knows that the latter dares not risk an airing of the dispensary graft scandal in the courts, or is playing a bold hand to bluff those who began the attack on him."

The Boston Journal says: "When Colonel Bryan paid his first visit to Boston he was regarded by the east in general as a dangerous agitator. Now he is welcomed as a leader of a movement which to a large extent has abolished party lines and done away with the ultra-conservatism which brooked no concessions to liberal ideas."

The Boston Journal says: "On last Monday Governor Blease vetoed the act which he himself urged the legislature to pass for the investigation of the old State Dispensary Winding-up Commission."

Gone Out of Date.

The New York World says there is in progress in Montclair a "mothers' movement" against the "menace of the moving-picture show."

There was once a generation of mothers who would not have found it necessary to appeal to the Town Council for the protection of their children's morals.

The mothers of the old-fashioned type would have resented any delegation of maternal authority to a municipal body.

It does look as if the old race of mothers have gone out of date. But it is an easy matter to remedy the vicious moving picture show.

When Congress adjourned some weeks ago there disappeared from the senate a few men who have stood consistently for the interests of the people.

To the "old guard" the sound of the gavel of the vice president striking his desk as the hands of the clock pointed to midday resembled the thud of earth falling upon the political coffins of their departed leaders and comrades.

When Congress adjourned some weeks ago there disappeared from the senate a few men who have stood consistently for the interests of the people.

With the exception of Aldrich, all of the above men voted for Lorimer's retention in the senate.

Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan. Thomas H. Carter, of Montana. Chauncey M. Depew, of New York.

Charles Dick, of Ohio. Frank P. Flint, of California. Eugene Hale, of Maine.

John Kean, of New Jersey. Samuel H. Piles, of Washington. Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia.

With the exception of Aldrich, all of the above men voted for Lorimer's retention in the senate.

New and better men will take the places of these ringleaders, who have been sent to the rear by the people.

Mount Morris College, at Oregon, Ill., Senator Shelby M. Cullom's alma mater, has turned its Cullom picture to the wall.

Mount Morris college, assembled in mass meeting, that we condemn the action of Senator Cullom in voting as he did in the Lorimer case.

On last Monday Governor Blease vetoed the act which he himself urged the legislature to pass for the investigation of the old State Dispensary Winding-up Commission.
