People who fight others politically must always remember that chickens will come home to roost.

A Princeton graduate has died of a very rare disease, which he contracted in the South.

The Democrats in Congress are getting down to hard work with a good will. The members of the party seem to be united and are pulling together.

The Greenwood Journal has become a daily and now makes it appearance every afternoon. We wish Brother Gardner great success in his new venture.

This is a free country and every man has a right to run for political office if he so chooses, but the people have the right to give the office to whom they please. Kicking does no good.

Uncle Joe Cannon stands in fear of the steam roller the Democrats captured by his party last November. If the old sinner behaves himself sort of decent we, hope he will escape it.

The Progressive Farmer says it will be a great day for the South when there is a general recognition of the fact that upon the fertility of Southern lands the permanent prosperity of the South must be builded.

There have been several killings lately by ten and twelve year old boys. The Lake City News thinks that if a few parents were indicted as particeps criminis to such homicides firearms would not be left so handy for children to handle.

The best special issue of any county paper we have seen is the Easter edition of the Greenwood Index, which contained 44 pages, colored covers, and numerous illustrations. Brother Watson knows how to get up such things, as well as publish one of the best newspapers in the State.

A group of convicts who had been engaged in the work of cleaning the state house presented to Governor Blease a "joint" petition a few days ago. The men had been recently at work in the governor's office, where a new furnace was installed and a thorough cleaning was had, so they felt they had a "call" for clemency.

At last Uncle Joe Cannon's hide has been punctured. He takes every reference to his autocratic performance as former speaker seriously and "rises to a question of personal privilege." But Uncle Joe may as well realize that he is down and out for all time. Even the interests that he served so well can't restore him to power.

A bill has been passed by the California Legislature and signed by the Governor of that State providing that in case of a conviction for non-support a husband may be sentenced to jail and be required to work on the public roads or other public works. The county will pay $1.50 to his wife and children for each day the non-provider works.

Thursday was the fiftieth anniversary of the firing of the Confederate forts and batteries in Charleston harbor on Fort Sumter, which surrendered two days later. As a boy, the editor of The Times and Democrat witnessed the greater part of this memorable battle from the battery in Charleston, in which city he lived during the entire war.

The Times and Democrat intended no offence to any one by saying Mr. Friday would make a good run for the Legislature. Nor did we make the suggestion on behalf of Mr. Dibble's friends, as we are not authorized to speak for them. We simply mentioned Mr. Friday in connection with the Legislature because we heard that he would probably be a candidate for a seat in that body.

Champ Clark did not drive those Missouri mules down Pennsylvania avenue, but he took charge of affairs in the House all right and is running things on schedule time. But, as the Hendersonville Hustler says, he is a princely old gentleman, open and frank in his dealings with fellow members, and will hold the scales of justice evenly. There is to be no czar rule while he occupies the chair.

The female teachers in New York have won their fight and will receive as large salary as male teachers of like grades. We agree with the Lake City News that this is entirely proper. There never was any reason for the discrimination against women which is seen everywhere. Woman is coming into her own—lawfully hers. She is being emancipated from her abominable slavery and she is making good in every sphere in which she works by the side of man.

Robbing Cotton Farmers.

The New Orleans Cotton Exchange charges that a combine on the part of the jute bagging and cotton tie interests are being formed for the purpose of further robbing the cotton farmer by raising the tariff duty on these articles, and calls on Congress to put them on the free list. This the Democrats in the House has done, and it is to be hoped that they will be enabled to enact it into law.

It is charged by the Exchange that with a cotton crop of twelve million bales, a yearly toll of approximately a million dollars is paid by the farmers to the government and to the bagging and tie trusts. That the tariff is almost prohibitive, is incidental by the fact that no ties are imported, and that the tariff on imported bagging yields only $100,000 to the government. The remainder of the million, or about $900,000 is the contribution of the southern farmers each year to the bagging and tie interests of the nation, brought about by the high tariff allowed under the Republican administration.

These facts are admitted, but it is claimed that the trusts are not yet satisfied. It is alleged that there is a combination among the bagging and tie manufacturers of the country to have increased the duties on these articles, so as not only to make the tariff absolutely prohibitive, but to allow an even higher price to be charged the farmers for these necessary articles of cotton production. In this way, the toll levied upon the southern farmer by the bagging and tie interests will be heavier and greater than ever before.

The Greenville News says "in addition to the present condition of the tariff, and the alleged future state of things unless the action is forestalled, there is the added injustice of discrimination between southern and western farmers, to the misfortune of former class of agriculturists. Binder twine, which is a great factor in the wheat and other grain crops of the western fields, is on the free list, and consequently the western farmer, whose principal crops are those which are bound with twine, is free from the toll to the trusts."

On the other hand, the Southern cotton farmer, whose largest crop is that which must be bound in bagging and ties, pays heavy tolls on both jute bagging and cotton ties. This discrimination is made in favor of the Western farmer because he votes the Republican ticket while the Southern farmer votes the Democratic ticket. It is time the plundering of the Southern farmer for the benefit of the trusts should cease, and we hope the present congress will be patriotic enough to do it.

The Lorimer Tragedy.

Michael Link, who was indicted for perjury in the Lorimer case and turned State's evidence, was found dead Tuesday. Apoplexy killed him. He had expected death, arranged his affairs for it, warned his friends. There can be little doubt that his connection with the scandal of Lorimer had shortened his life. In commenting on the Lorimer tragedy as it calls it, the New York World says:

"It is useless, the attempt to take a flight on flippant view of this matter. It is a ghastly tragedy of American politics. Link lies dead of it. With the $2,500 that he deposited to his credit in Chicago, Holstlaw accepted and must always feel the contempt of those who had respected him as the banker of a little country town. White and Beckemeyer, self-confessed takers of bribes, find their avowal no jest. Browne, who wore the blue belt stuffed with bank-bills about his waist, and Maury Abrahams, the bell-wether of the bribed, can scarcely enjoy their public prominence.

Suave, smiling and cynical, the man whose triumph has cost so much anguish and shadowed so many homes still sits in the Senate. He was chosen in Springfield by the mysterious votes of 53 Democrats and only 48 of his own party members. In Washington 22 out of 57 Senators of his party faith voted to deprive him of his seat. That is the title by which he holds. Is it good enough—in view of the new testimony brought out at Springfield—for the present Senate?" There is only one consolation, and that is the people will soon choose the Senators themselves, and then such men as Lorimer will be scarce in the United States Senate. The days of the hoodles is drawing to a close.

Bryan Was Right.

Under the above caption, the Yorkville Enquirer says: "In a controversy between men like Mr. Bryan and Mr. Bailey, especially in such a matter as the selection of a leader of the large democratic minority in the senate during the present crucial period, we are unreservedly with Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan is a great and able man, beyond question, and although only a private citizen is far more representative of the democrats of the nation or even of Texas than Mr. Bailey. Mr. Bailey and his kind have worn in the present instance, temporarily at least; but unless things go Mr. Bryan's way, as compared with Mr. Bailey's within the next few months, the democratic will stand a poor show—a very poor show, of retaining domination even of the house of representatives. Twist and turn it as we may, the present situation is largely due to triumph of the labors of Mr. Bryan." The Enquirer is right, and what is more, the people of the country are looking to Bryan to lead them in the paths they should go to reach true, permanent prosperity. Beside Bryan, Bailey cuts a sorry figure.

Those folks who imagine for one moment that Bryan is dead politically are deluding themselves. His recent reception in Washington proves this. Mr. Bryan has not succeeded in his personal aspirations, but there are abundant evidences to show the real satisfaction he has experienced during recent years, in seeing "his policies," adopted by the American people and their representatives in congress. The greatest private citizen in the United States today is William Jennings Bryan.

"Everything That a Drug Store Should Have"

This is the compliment that one of our patrons paid us. It is so true of the real method behind our business that we are quoting it.

Primarily this business makes the prescription department the main object of its care. Experts check every prescription and our large files show that our care is not in vain. Every new and worthy drug is immediately bought and placed on our shelves so that we never say "we are just out of it," but we say, "We have it now."

Then these departments are always busy because of one final fact: "Good Goods for Your Money"—first and last.
