Gen. Madero, commander of the revolutionary forces in Mexico, seems to be a man of nerve. It is well for the revolutionists that they have such a man at their head.

Something like 1,100 plural marriages in Utah last year, but that doesn't prevent the Mormon patriarch from sitting in the directorate of the Republican party.

You have laid the foundation for a successful business life, my boy, when you have learned to restrict your expenditures within your income. Don't forget this.

Where the government pays out $10 for the military it spends $1 for agriculture and about 30 cents for education. And yet we call ourselves a civilized, Christian nation.

The Oklahoman says with more than 20 applications for state bank charters it doesn't look as though the bank deposit guaranty law is likely to eliminate the state banks of Oklahoma.

Good roads will pay the farmer back in cash dividends. He should not hesitate to talk and vote for every good road proposition. Good roads is one of the best assets any county can have.

It is advisable for our people to let "get-rich-quick" scheme alone. Read the testimony in the wireless telegraph scheme now being tried in New York, and you will be convinced of this fact.

Friends of Ambassador Hill circulated a story that he had been forced to relinquish his post at the German court to make room for the appointment of a contributor to the Taft campaign fund.

It's a good thing for the country that a level headed, patriotic gentleman is president instead of the blusterer of Oyster Bay. If Roosevelt was president instead of Taft we would now be at war with Mexico.

It now looks as if the loquacious Mr. Hines "put Lorimer over" too far. When he is investigated the second time by the senate even Bailey will not be able to save the great beneficiary of fraud.

The following germs have been found on milk and other tickets: streptococci, staphylococci, pneumococci, and the pseudo-bacillus of Loeffler. The germs must indeed be dangerous if they are more formidable than their names.

It is astonishing how so many so-called liberty loving Americans are paying fabulous sums for little spaces from where they can see King George crowned. Some such thing as this no doubt caused Puck to remark, "What fools these mortals be."

The Spartanburg Journal says it is being suggested by patriotic persons that the shooting of Americans across the Mexican border will eventually lead to the organization of the Daughters of the Innocent Bystanders of the Mexican Revolution.

The Chicago News says that "if the Democratic senators annoy Bailey, he might resign." The News need not worry on that score. Bailey will never leave the Senate until the Democrats in Texas kicks him out, which they ought to do at the very first opportunity.

It turns out that the bloodthirsty politicians who sought the Hon. T. E. Watson's life were two small boys stealthily preparing to dynamite a neighboring fish pond, but the Hon. Thomas E. continues to foam at the mouth and swear that he is on the eve of being murdered because he knows a few things. The Hon. Thos. E. is either unbalanced or an unmitigated humbug.

What is needed in this country more than anything else to check the carnival of crime is a strict observance of all laws. Not only the laws that prohibits murder, but all laws, whether we like them or not. If every man who holds an office of any kind in the State would determine to obey all laws that bear on his office and see that others do the same, there would soon be a change for the better.

School year in most sections of the land is nearing its end and a mighty host of jubilant boys and girls will be set free to enjoy the long summer days. To that large army of teachers who have toiled with such faithfulness and success vacation will be equally welcome. Probably most people do not sufficiently realize the wonderful tact, patience and other qualities a teacher normally displays, nor the extent of the nervous strain imposed by the responsibilities of his or her position.

Take All or None.

In writing to some of his constituents, who wanted him to vote for a duty on a certain article, because it was made in his district. Congressman Johnson, who represents the Piedmont district, showed his fallacy of attempting to be half protection and half tariff for revenue, as the protectionists in his district wanted him to be. As he says, you must either be for one or the other. There is no middle ground. Congressman Johnson says: "We can't destroy a vicious system by becoming participants in it. If any man in the south sells his birthright for a mess of pottage, he is helpless. A man who seeks protection on one article made or grown in his locality, must stand for protection for all. He dare not fight any tariff iniquity, lest he lose his own graft. The strong beneficiaries of protection believe that they have the right to the cream and that you ought to be satisfied with the skimmed milk, even if you did milk it from your own cows."

"The steel trust, the meat trust, the rubber trust, the harvester trust, and all that horde that have grown fat will give you a few crumbs if you will stand for their graft. What little the south has gotten or will get from protection can best be illustrated by my boy's experience. When they cooked pop-o-cake (the real article) I stood around with open mouth to catch the crumbs from the bottom of the pan when the cake was taken out. The southern man who will help these great influences to get the cake will be permitted to scratch the crumbs from the bottom of the pan."

That is good, sound, Democratic doctrine, and our people should remember it. A congressman has no right to ask for protection for anything made in his district, unless he is willing to vote to protect things made in other districts. That is only fair. Therefore, when a congressman votes to protect an article because it is made in his district, he commits himself to the whole thieving tariff system, and cannot consistently deny protection to the things made in other congressional districts.

Takes the Right View.

Congressman Joseph T. Johnson, of Spartanburg, takes the right view in reference to the duty of a man holding the office he does. In answer to some of his constituents who wanted him to vote for a duty on certain things that they manufacture, and who wrote to him to that effect when they learned that he was going to vote to put them on the free list, he said, "If you were to convince me that I am wrong I would do the honest thing. The honest thing would not be to vote for protection, but to resign my seat in congress because my views on fundamental governmental questions are as well known to my constituents as is my face. I believe that campaign assurances and pledges, when followed by election, become binding and solemn obligations, which must be faithfully observed in letter and in spirit. If I should become convinced that as a candidate I was wrong on a fundamental proposition, like the one now in hand, I would be honest enough with myself and honest enough with my constituents to surrender my commission."

That is a high position, but is one that every congressman and senator should occupy. They do not represent themselves, but the people who sent them to congress, and they should vote as their constituents want them to or resign.

Stolen All But the Rooster.

The Indianapolis New Era says those who have memories encompassing the campaign of 1908 will remember that during Mr. Bryan's memorable speaking tour he took occasion to advocate the limiting of any concern to fifty per cent. of the country's production in any line. He proposed this that monopoly in that line might be prohibited. The proposition was received with ridicule by our business guardians. Now, E. H. Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, comes forward with the same plan, but puts the percentage at 60. His company now produces 55 per cent. of the steel products of the country. His proposition will be received by those who scoffed at that offered by Mr. Bryan as a good business regulation. If this purloining of Democratic doctrine continues during the next decade as it has during the last, the Democratic party will soon have nothing left that it can call its own but the rooster.

Judge Blair Knows.

Judge A. Z. Blair, of Portsmouth, O., who fined 1,600 men in West Union county, Ohio, for selling their votes and disfranchised the entire number for five years, is visiting in Denver. Speaking to a representative of the United Press, Judge Blair said: "I am in favor of the initiative, referendum and recall. I am firmly convinced that the adoption of these measures of popular government throughout the country will do more, perhaps, than any other one thing to put an end to corruption in politics, and particularly to the buying and selling of votes." Judge Blair knows what he is talking about. He has come in contact with the real article, and he feels the need of a remedy.

Illinois in Bad Shape.

Illinois, once the home of great men and statesmen, has certainly degenerated, and is now a most degraded commonwealth. Members of its state legislature, in return for cash, gave the votes which sent William Lorimer to the United States senate. Its legislature has now defeated the initiative and referendum. And the Chicago Inter-Ocean, commenting upon the fact, says that the twenty-nine members who enabled this to be done "deserve the thanks and honor of every patriotic American citizen." May we not expect next to see the Inter-Ocean accrediting the murderous Italian Camorristi with sainthood?

We agree with the Oklahoman that if there is a state in the Union that needs the initiative, referendum and recall it is Illinois. That it needs the recall is shown by the action of an Illinois court in liberating a trust magnate charged with participation in the conspiracy to debauch the legislature and purchase a seat in the United States senate. Not since the Borgias ruled over Rome has there been a more putrid political regime than that which now exists in Illinois. The nation holds its nose.

A Singer's Costly Forgetfulness. A prominent singer failed to appear at the Metropolitan Opera House on "Faust" night. The strange part of the affair was that, in a moment of divine forgetfulness, she went instead to the bedside of her sick lover, and, like Antony, threw a world away for love. The story is well known in opera circles, but was unrecorded until Elinor Macartney Lane wrote "Katrine," the life of an actual singer. Formerly published at $1.50, now fifty cents at Sims Book Store.

"FALL OF TROY"

The "Fall of Troy" which comes in the two full reels (over 2,000 feet in length) is conceded to be the greatest as well as most marvelous photo-play production that has ever been attempted by a manufacturer, and was produced by the Itala Co., at a cost of $30,000. Each reel is worth exactly $400.00 and are so valuable that a special representative travels with them from city to city. Theatres throughout the entire world are making an effort to obtain the rights to exhibit these master pieces, and Manager Herbert L. Gambati was forced to expend quite a large sum before he was finally able to arrange bookings for this city. The pictures has been pronounced by public and press to be the grandest ever depicted in animated photography, the dazzling settings, thousands of armored Gladiators, beautiful women, dashing chariots, artistic statuary, massive palaces, being only a suggestion of the splendor of the scenes to be witnessed in this stupendous reproduction of the Trojan War. This World's Greatest picture will be a feature at the Popular Photo-Play House—The Theato on Monday, May 22nd, 1911.
