If we are not going to enforce the speed limit ordinance we should repeal it. Open violation of one ordinance induces contempt for all other ordinances.

From every man, however obscure, there radiates some influence. It rests with himself whether that influence shall be good or bad, lifting a fellow man up or dragging him down.

The peculiar character of the decisions rendered by some of the jurists of lower courts upon matter affecting combines and trusts will have a tendency to strengthen the movement for judicial recall.

Taft will be the next nominee of the Republican party for president, and he will be defeated by Woodrow Wilson, who will lead the Democratic hosts to the greatest victory they have won since the war.

The hookworm commission says the disease is less prevalent in South Carolina than in any other southern state. The Advocate says "it is less prevalent in Anderson than in any other town in South Carolina" except Orangeburg.

By delay and treachery in the Canadian reciprocity agreement the Republicans in the United States Senate hope to kill that measure. But the people will see through their deception, and will hold them responsible in the next election for not giving consumers the relief they so much need.

The corrupt politician is willing to sacrifice principle for the sake of his party while the true politician is ready to sacrifice his party, if need be, for the triumph of principle.

It is true that all things come to who waits, but it is clear that some do not always recognize that for which they have waited when ultimately it does come.

The Advocate says "there is much interesting and valuable history in Anderson county that is fast being forever lost. There are many names once famous, and makers of history of the county, now extinct. Why not turn the data over to State Historian Salley? He gave Orangeburg the best county history in the United States, and he would give Anderson county the next best.

In the good old days when "lick-in' and larnin'" went together, a teacher's preparation did not necessarily include a course in a university or a normal school. A county examiner in one of the states of the Mississippi valley once asked a young man what special preparation he had made for teaching. The candidate answered: "I've dug my taters, sold my mare, and now I'm ready to go at it."

The Charlotte Observer says: "The potash dispute between the combinations of American fertilizer manufacturers and German mine operators has been settled practically on a basis which means that the advance in prices will not rest on the first-named combination's shoulders for even a brief period but will be transferred to the farmer at once." Will that be the result after the fuss made about the matter in congress?

The Hartsville Messenger says "The crop outlook is pretty gloomy. What we need is more earnest prayer. A prosperous people are prone to think that their success is due entirely to their own efforts. This is a mistake. It is a fearful thing to leave God out of our affairs. He rules and controls the universe and there is no way we can devise to get along without His help. We should remember this at all times and we would all get along better." The Times and Democrat suggested sometime ago that meetings be held and special prayers be made for rain.

Now comes one Rev. M. D. Gage, who served as chaplain in Sherman's army, claiming that Columbia was set on fire by a "bummer" of Sherman's army and not by a soldier. That might do for Mr. Gage, but he will excuse us if we decline to swallow this belated story. Unfortunately for Rev. Mr. Gage and others, who try to prove that Sherman did not burn Columbia, the great incendiary burned other places. He burned Orangeburg, and his line of march could be traced by the ruins of homes he burned. We do not blame Mr. Gage for being ashamed of the diabolical acts of such men as Sherman, but when he undertakes to prove him guiltless of them, he simply undertakes the impossible. Sherman was the destroyer of homes and the insulter and persecutor of women and children and history will so record him."

Teddy After Votes.

Under the title "Wisconsin: An Object-Lesson for the Rest of the Union." Mr. Roosevelt contributes an editorial to the Outlook in which he says:

I doubt whether American students of social economies fully realize the extraordinary work that has been accomplished during the last decade, and is now being accomplished, in the State of Wisconsin under the lead of Senator La Follette and of the group of entirely practical at the same time zealously enthusiastic workers who have come into active control of the State mainly or largely because of the lead he has given them.

When Mr. Roosevelt was President he said of Senator Root: "Elihu Root is the ablest man I have known in our Government service. I will go further. He is the greatest man that has appeared in the public life of any country, in any position, on either side of the ocean, in any time."

The New York World says it is a most catholic political admiration that can embrace both Senator La Follette and Senator Root; but Mr. Roosevelt is capable of admiring any political influence that is likely to control a considerable number of delegates to a Republican National Convention. It ought to be very flattering to the Senator from Wisconsin to know that he has reached a point at which he can be as useful to Mr. Roosevelt as Elihu Root.

Driest May on Record.

The Columbia Record says "the drouth now menacing the crops all over the state as well as making life exceedingly hot, really had its beginning last November. The present dry spell is part of the larger cycle of lack of rain fall.

"Since November 1, 1910, there has been 7.48 inches of rain; the normal precipitation is 22.76 inches for the same period. Thus the deficiency is 15.28 inches, or the rain fall since November 1 has been about 33 per cent of what it should have amounted to.

"There have been 29 days in May without rain, according to the United States weather bureau Monday morning. The precipitation of rain has been 14 inches—the driest May on record, the next being the May of 1899, when the fall was .65 inches. The normal for this month is 3.19 inches; 4 per cent of this amounts practically to nothing. "May has broken the record for number of days in succession without rain; 25 years ago, or perhaps longer still, is the only spring known to rival it. There are no prospects for rain in the next 36 hours, says the weather bureau at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

The rivers all over South Carolina are exceedingly low, and the creeks have gone bad altogether in many sections. The gardens by report at the weather bureau are in a sad plight, amounting, in fact, to no gardens at all."

This Takes the Cake.

A remarkable story about a hen comes from Tarrytown, N. Y. The story runs that "the White Leghorn hen owned by John Grohan, of Glenville, which a few weeks ago followed him to the trolley car to pay his fare with a nickel he had forgotten, is today being praised for her latest act of loyalty to her master. "Grohan had started to build a small chicken coop. The hen stood by and watched him pick up the nails and drive them home. After he had picked up half a dozen the hen walked over and picked up one with her beak and dropped it in his hand. This was simple, and Grohan was getting along well with his job when he smashed his finger.

"With this handicap he couldn't hold the nails. The hen, seeing that something was wrong, held a nail in her beak. Grohan placed the hen's head near the board, and with a gentle tap, started the nail, and the hen then picked up another. It was an easy job after that, the hen holding the nails against the boards and Grohan driving them home. The coop was soon completed."

This hen story takes the cake. It beats the best fish stories of the season, and puts Grohan at the head of the class of story tellers.

Still Harping on Bryan.

The Greenwood Journal says: "There are indications that the Hon. William Jennings Bryan is not dead. He is beginning to move around and make speeches here and there. We see that he is to visit Georgia and South Carolina soon. This raises the question as to whether the Democratic party is to have this man to deal with in the next presidential campaign. Is it possible that he will aspire to leadership and seek to get the nomination? Should he be nominated it would mean sure, certain and most ignominious defeat. But we do not believe that he can be nominated. We wish that something could be done to keep Mr. Bryan in the back ground. We have had too much of him, and a great deal too much at that." Will the Journal be kind enough to point out the great harm Mr. Bryan has done the Democratic party or the country? Why should he be kept in the back ground, and in what way, have we had too much of him? Does the Journal consider Mr. Bryan a bad man who should be suppressed? Our regret is that we have not more men like Bryan. They are badly needed in this time serving, hypocritical, money-loving age.

The Hobble Skirt.

There are fashions and fashions in the matter of dress. Some at once commend themselves by their neat and graceful appearance and for the comfort they give. But then there are others so outrageous in design so decidedly uncomfortable to wear, so offensive to good taste, and so repellent to good judgement, that one wonders how any woman can bring herself to wear them. There is the "hobble skirt." It is well named, for any one foolish enough to assume the garment cannot walk—she but hobbles. There is nothing more graceful or more healthful than a good carriage and firm, elastic step, but that is impossible when one disfigures herself with a hobble skirt. It has not one redeeming feature about it, and probably those who wear it do so in obedience to an arbitrary decree of fashion or because they seek notoriety.

"Everything That a Drug Store Should Have"

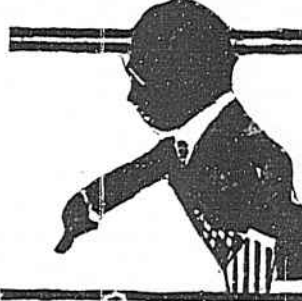

Don't Wait

This is the compliment that one of our patrons paid us. It is so true of the real method behind our business that we are quoting it. Primarily this business makes the prescription department the main object of its care. Experts check every prescription and our large files show that our care is not in vain. Every new and worthy drug is immediately bought and placed on our shelves so that we need never say "we are just out of it," but we say, "We have it now."
