"Everything That a Drug Store Should Have"

This is the compliment that one of our patrons paid us. It is so true of the real method behind our business that we are quoting it.

Primarily this business makes the prescription department the main object of its care. Experts check every prescription and our large files show that our care is not in vain. Every new and worthy drug is immediately bought and placed on our shelves so that we need never say "we are just out of it," but we say, "We have it now."

Then these departments are always busy because of one final fact: "Good Goods for Your Money"—first and last.

YOUR REASONABLE SERVICE

June 25
"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"—Micah 6:8.

Who could find fault with these requirements? Who could say that in setting such a standard for His creatures the Almighty required too much? On the other hand, how could we imagine a just and loving Heavenly Father requiring less than is here stipulated. God's law, variously stated, always amounts to the same thing. The statement of it, as given to the Jews at Mt. Sinai, embodied in the Decalogue, corresponds with this statement, as does also the presentation of it set forth by the great Teacher, saying, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind, soul and strength; and thy neighbor as thyself."

Many of us, after confessing with St. Paul that the Divine Law is holy and just and good, have been surprised to find that which our minds heartily approve, we are unable to obey—to the full. For thirty-five hundred years the Jews have sought to keep that Divine Law, under the promise of eternal life for so doing, but none of them have been able to gain the prize.

When as a nation they realize their inability, and not sooner, they will be ready to receive at God's hands, as a free gift through the Redeemer, the forgiveness of their violations of the Divine Law. And then, under their New Covenant (Jer 31:31; Heb. 8:8-13), they will have Messiah's assistance in regaining that perfection of mind and body and a "new heart," which will enable them to obey in every particular the Divine Law.

That blessing, which is soon to come to natural Israel, under Messiah's Kingdom and the New Covenant, will be extended through them, as the natural seed of Abraham, to every nation, kindred and tongue, in harmony with the Divine promise made to Abraham.

Analysing Our Subject
Applying this principle of justice to our words, it means that we should not speak evil of either friend or foe; that we should not even insinuate evil. It means that we should not tell unnecessarily what we know to be the truth, if it would harm our neighbor, disparage him and discredit him in the eyes of others. It means that we should love our neighbor and his interests as we love our own, and should defend his interests and guard them as carefully as we would our own.

Justice, in order to thus operate in our words and deeds, must operate in our hearts—in our minds. "As a man thinketh, so is he." If he thinks unkindly, ungenerously, unjustly, he will find it impossible always to avoid unkind, unjust, unloving words or actions. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." It follows, then, that to do justly signifies absolute righteousness in thought, in word, in conduct. This none of us are capable of.

The nearest approach to this is the perfect or just intention of the heart, corroborated by all those who become followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. The intentions and good endeavors of these are accepted of the Father.

To Love Mercy
All recognize mercy as a very proper, a very desirable quality. All realize their need of Divine mercy. All should know that the Divine purpose is that only those who show mercy to others will themselves receive mercy at the Lord's hands.

Many, however, while admitting all this and while seeking to practice mercy, do not love it. Rather, they love vengeance, and are merely constrained to mercy by the laws of the land, public sentiment and the Word of God.

Time and again this has been shown in the case of lynchings. Mobs have gathered for the infliction of punishment, glad of an opportunity for setting aside mercy and letting loose justice, as they might express it. And in those mobs have been many guilty of perhaps as great crimes as the one who was mobbed. "O, consist thou art a Jew!"

Walk Humbly With Thy God
In a word, those who are just and merciful are very apt to find themselves possessed of a spirit of pride, a feeling of superiority to their fellows, a hindrance to their having a humble walk with God. Those most humble toward the Almighty are frequently those who have had great sins and great weaknesses, which have helped to humble them.

Thus the great Apostle, St. Paul, was allowed to retain a measure of visual weakness as a reminder of the time when he was a persecutor of Christ—"the Church which is His Body."

Tribute of Respect.

Whereas an all-wise God, who is "too wise to err, too good to be unkind," has called our friend and worker, Mrs. John C. Pike, to lay aside the labor of love in perpetuating the halcyon memory of the days that are no more, the days that gave to the world the heroes whose fame will live as long as time will last, and whereas we are reminded of this melancholy fact, that each year history records the departure of some one, who was a link in the past and present, this sad truth is borne in on us:

They are slipping away, the sweet swift years.
Like a leaf on the current east,
With never a break in their rapid flow
Into the beautiful past."

But the sad story is not told in full, for going with the years are those whose places are hard to fill, those who lived in the years gone by that tried the souls of men and women, the years of our deathless Southern Confederacy; therefore be it resolved:

First. That in the death of Mrs. John C. Pike, Paul McMichael Chapter, U. D. C., has lost a useful, active member and we deplore her loss.

Second. That we commend to the members of our Chapter her zeal, enthusiasm, and untiring interest in all things pertaining to U. D. C. affairs. That we emulate her virtues and graces, and realizing that soon we will be called to enter the Beautiful gates, may we fall asleep as sweetly and calmly as did our departed friend.

Resolved third. That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be sent to the families of our deceased friend, and a page in our Minute book be inscribed to her memory.

Mrs. J. N. McMichael,
Mrs. T. C. Albergotti.

He Left Politics For Love.

Ambition did not satisfy nor did a guilty conscience make a pleasant companion for solitude. But the love of a woman could do both, so the hero of "Coniston" began to try to be worthy of her. Winston Churchill's novel is a great moral lesson, wholesome and true. Formerly published at $1.50; now fifty cents. Sims Book Store.

WITH THE FUNNY MAN

Her Patriotic Protest.
The force of natural and instinctive pride in one's country has been endlessly expressed in literature of all times and climes, but rarely more dramatically than in the following little incident:

Grieg, as every one knows, is the musical idol of all Norwegians, although it has been the fashion of less talented outsiders to underrate him. One of the most indefatigable of these detractors was the German composer Bargaier, a man of an instinctively jealous nature.

One day one of his pupils, a Norwegian girl, brought for her lesson a concerto of Grieg's. Bargaier took it from her with a smile of most superior disdain.

"But I told you to bring your music, and Grieg is no music," he said, scornfully.

"What! Grieg no music!" was the indignant reply. "Adieu, Herr Professor!" and she swept out of the studio never to return.

Insuring His Honesty.

A shrewd old Vermont farmer came into a lawyer's office the other day and proceeded to relate the circumstances in a matter about which he thought it would be profitable to "go to law."

"You think I have a good case?" he finally asked.

"Very good, indeed!" the lawyer assured him. "You should certainly bring suit."

"What would your fee be for the whole thing?" the old farmer said.

"Fifty dollars," was the prompt response.

The client pulled out an old wallet, extracted a roll of bills and counted out $50.

"Now," he said, "you hev got all you would get out of this case anyhow; so s'pose you tell me honestly just what you think my chances of winnin' a suit are?"

Compared With Chinaware.

A little girl and her mother were walking down the street, when they came to a place where straw had been spread over the pavement to deaden the noise, because of the illness of a woman living in that square. "Oh, look, mamma," cried the little girl.

"What's all that hay doing out in the street?"

"That's because Mrs. E. — has a tiny baby, which God just sent her," said her mother, gently, and after a moment's pause the little girl said slowly:

"Gwacious, she must have been packed well!"—Philadelphia Times.

Just in Time.

A German shoemaker left the gas turned on in his shop one night, and upon arriving in the morning struck a match to light it. There was a terrific explosion, and the shoemaker was blown out through the door almost to the middle of the street.

A passer-by rushed to his assistance, and, after helping him to arise, inquired if he was injured.

"The little German gazed at his place of business, which was now burning quite brightly, and said:

"No, I ain't hurt. But I got out shust in time. Eh?"—Lippincott's.

And the Old Man Grinned.

"Duke," said the heiress, eagerly, "did you see father?"

"Yes."

"Well?"

"We talked about the weather."

"What? Lose your nerve again? Why don't you brace up and talk like a man?—a subject of a king on whose domain the sun never sets!"

"Can't," groaned the duke. "All the time I was in your father's office he kept grinning at a big painting."

"What painting?"

"The Battle of Bunker Hill."

His Exhibit.

"He tells me he is going to exhibit at the horse show."

"What of it?"

"Is he in the habit of exhibiting at the horse show every year?"

"Well, he usually makes an ass of himself."

The Accessories.

"I hear you've picked up an abandoned farm."

"Yep."

"Genuine farmer now, are you?"

"My city friends won't believe it until I pick up some abandoned dialect."

A Quick Remedy.

"Your daughter is getting very round shouldered."

"Well, doctor, spare no expense. What's the best way to get her to sit up straight?"

Mildly Interested.

"Emerson, your little brother has a tooth."

"Indeed?" responded the Boston youngster politely. "And is it an incisor or a bicuspid?"

Wife—You promised that if I would marry you my every wish would be granted.

Husband—Well, isn't it?

Wife—No; I wish I hadn't married you.

"His brother is in a very shady business."

"What's that?"

"Awings."

Wise or Otherwise.

Every man has some good habits that are never found out.

The faults of our neighbors are persistently exaggerated.

It is surprising how popular some people are with themselves.

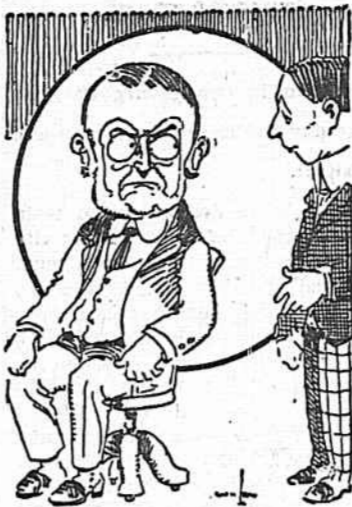

It takes a real estate promoter to make a mountain out of a molehill.

A man who is too proud to beg isn't necessarily too honest to steal.

A wise man can break into the fool class in a few minutes by talking too much.

BARGAINS IN FUN.

Ryan Walker.

"Sir, I should like to work only half time during summer."

"Keep right on, my boy; you are working only half the time now."

De Poet—Ah! the delusions of childhood! Those were the things to charm away."

De Quick (interrupting)—Nonsense! I used to have a charm for warts when I was a kid, but it wouldn't work worth a cuss!

"I wonder if hunters had any kind of equipment in Nimrod's day!"

"Of course not. They hadn't invented cameras and press agents in those days."

"That chorus girl appears to be in a happy frame of mind."

"No wonder. She has a millionaire dude on the string, and an ugly bulldog on the chain."

The Amateur—I've shot off my gun several times, and it kicked me over every time.

The Guide—It must be a source of satisfaction to ye to know that ye brought down somethin', anyway.

The Visitor—How did your father acquire such skill with a golf club, Willie?

Willie—I think it was from practicing on me with a bedslat.

HIGH LIFE.

Walter Wellman.

"Papa and mamma both say I can select my own husband and marry anyone I please."

"They have a good opinion of you, haven't they?"

"I gave Charley his answer last night, and the foolish boy went and got full afterward."

"Did you say 'Yes' or 'No'?"

Claude—One is almost afraid to marry these times when there are so many divorces.

Clara—That is what makes it less dangerous, I think.

Dorothy—Do you think that portrait does me justice?

Dan—There's no such thing as justice nowadays.

Bessie—A fortune teller said I'd be rich some day.

Bert—One told me I'd marry a rich girl some day.

Papa says I must marry a man of will and determination."

"Well, tell him I have firmly determined to marry you."
