No real pitched battle will be fought by the Italians and Turks until the moving picture machines get a good focus on both armies.

Contrary to the view of the big corporations, the anti-trust law was never intended as a comic supplement to the Congressional Record.

If manufacturers are to figure the amount of tariff protection they think they ought to have, why not let the consumer pay what he thinks would be about right for his taxes?

The acquittal of seven men tried for complicity in the Coatsville lynching shows that the sentiment North and South does not differ much when it comes to a matter of that kind.

Should Governor Bleese give up the fight for reelection as governor and enters the race for Senator Tillman's toga, it will be a dear case of jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

There will be some long editorial sermons preached on the Honea Path lynching, but they will do no good. The very next time a fiend forgets himself he will be strung up, just like Jackson.

The trusts should be made to understand that the business world is a highway on which everyone has a right to pass without being held up by the bandits known as the captains of industry.

Governor Wilson's fellow citizens want him to exterminate the mosquitoes up in Jersey. They should remember that there are some things that even a great reformer can't do, and we fear exterminating the mosquitoes is one of them.

President Taft seems to think that he can make Rockfellers right hand pocket compete with his left hand pocket. That is about the only way the so-called disolutions of the Standard Oil Trust would amount to anything.

No trusts should be allowed to split up into bogus dividing out its panes by merely droiting out its assets among them as the Supreme Court has given the Standard Oil and the American Tobacco Company permission to do.

The next event of State-wide importance is the State Fair, which is to be held in Columbia, beginning October 30, and ending November 3, and the next event of County-wide importance is the County Fair. Don't forget these two events.

The cable tell us that sixty or more troop ships have sailed for Tripoli from Italy with an army to fight the Turks. Now if Italians has had the foresight to send along a battalion of organ grinders with their monkeys every Turk will take to his heels as soon as they hear the organs.

The Times and Democrat has no words of denunciation for the men who put the Honea Path fiend to death. We would rather see the law respected and enforced through the courts, but when we consider the fact that a little eleven year old child was the victim of this burly brute's lust, we are rather disposed to excuse the men who shot him to pieces.

The ease with which the Portuguese authorities have dispersed the monarchial bands that invaded the country leads to the hope that the government is firmly established. It would be a pity if it were otherwise for whatever may be the present crudeness and inexperience of the government a republic is more in harmony with modern ideas of popular liberty and rights than a corrupt monarchy like that of which Manuel was the head.

A desire for wealth may be all right but a lust for wealth is all wrong. The desire may express itself along legitimate lines and money thus acquired is honestly gained. But when men have a lust for wealth they scruple at nothing, they have no regards for the rights of others and very little for law if law stands in their way. It is this spirit so dominating most trusts that has made them so disliked and suspected by people generally.

Some of Mr. Bryan's political enemies have discovered another mare's nest in Mr. Bryan's statement that he hopes the Republicans will nominate La Follette instead of Taft for president. The nomination of La Follette by the Republicans would force the Democrats to nominate a progressive also, and this would insure the election of a tariff reformer regardless of which party won. Where there is any treason in this on the part of Mr. Bryan we fail to see.

Boost Your Home Town.

It is singular how so many people will yell themselves hoarse rooting for the home ball team, who would not give a dollar to establish a new industry here, nor would they bother to suggest to friends contemplating a removal that this would be a good town to live in. The intense partisanship manifested in any athletic sports in behalf of the home players indicates a large sentiment of home loyalty. It is an unselfish sentiment, excellent so far as it goes. The men on the bleachers do not get a nickel addition to their wages because home boys win.

Of course in some cases the cheering men may have money on the game. Yet our observation is that the better is too worried to cheer. It is the man who wants the home team to win from simple home loyalty that makes the noise. Why is it that this most commendable sentiment is so abounding under such circumstances, and so lacking when there is still more vital need for its expression?

The cities that have grown populous, powerful wealthy that have become great centers of industrial life and cherished locations for residence have become so because some small group of men loved the soil of those localities longed to have them true to high ideals, had faith in their future, had the self sacrifice to keep pulling all the time or breath to spend in mere criticism.

The mainspring of this action is a home patriotism differing only from that of the crowd at the ball game, in having a bigger field for its expression. We may not all of us do big things for this city. Not all of us can be presidents of boards of trade or land new industries. But if everyone of us took every possible occasion to say that this is a business in, a wide spreading circle might good place to live and do of home patriotism would be let loose the final reach of which would be incalculable.

Bright Prospects Ahead.

We do not know a town in the State that has a brighter prospect ahead for solid growth and healthy expansion than Orangeburg. All we have to do is to pull together and boost a little, and time will do the rest. We may have some who do nothing to help along the growth of the town. They may neither pull or push. They are perfectly willing to take their share of the benefits that are brought by the growth and prosperity of the town, but they are unwilling to do anything to help along the movement for a bigger and a better Orangeburg.

All we ask of such folks if there is any here is that they don't pessimistic in public so far as the town is concerned. Don't say that the town is dead, that its citizens are back numbers, that the population is steadily decreasing and a hundred other evils that exist only in your own mind. If you can't say anything good then keep still. Don't let other people know that you haven't the energy to move away from such a miserable hole as you claim you are living in. If you are a property owner don't tell the whole world that your property is worth just half as much now as it was last year.

It is very possible they may believe you and some day you may want to sell that property and you will be able to get just at half its worth. So you see when you talk against your home town it only hurt yourself. Your town has as good a chance as many other towns, of becoming an interesting city. It needs a few good "boosters." So put your shoulder to the wheel and "boost" and the result will richly repay you for your trouble.

A Great Loss to Journalism.

The death of W. E. Curtis, the distinguished newspaper correspondent, is a loss to the literary world in general and to journalism in particular that will not speedily be replaced. A great and observant traveler his impressions of the lands he visited and of the noted people he met were given at first hand. He enjoyed the confidence of many men high in political life both in this country and in foreign lands, and that fact gave his literary productions additional value. The charm of his style and his great command of language helped to give an unusual popularity to his letters written from nearly every part of the globe. That historical and other inaccuracies sometimes appeared in his writings and to some extent lessened their authority was but natural considering that he wrote on almost every conceivable thing he met in his travels and that oftentimes he was compelled to write at high pressure. But in spite of that one drawback Mr. Curtis' writings were illuminating and instructive to many thousands of people who but for them would have had a very limited knowledge of other lands and the manners, customs and institutions of their peoples.

Speak Out Your Choice.

Several prominent men are now being mentioned for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and now is the time when people are expressing their preference for some one or other of the many prospective Democratic candidates for the highest office in the world. This is a prerogative which every Democrat may exercise and no one has the right, legal or moral, to say him nay. This liberty of thought, speech and action is a fundamental principle of our government and national life. And in so far as any man shrinks from making known his preference out of fear of some other man he is untrue to that principle and cannot but suffer in self-respect. And any man who may use his official or other position to attempt the intimidation of one who differs from him as to choice of candidate also violates that principle and is no true American.

lean. So let it be known which of the gentlemen being discussed as the prospective leader of the Democracy is your choice. Which one of them, Wilson, Clark, Harmon, Underwood or others, do you think is best calculated to lead the party to victory next year and serve the people best when he is elected. The rank and file of the party should speak out on the subject so as the leaders will know what to do.

Another Triumph for Decency.

Decency and humanity scores another triumph in the refusal of the British authorities to allow a prize fight between Johnson, the colored champion bruiser and an English pugilist. While the proposed fight was advertised as a boxing contest the government was not to be hoodwinked. The contention of some that the fight was prohibited solely because of the fear that the white man would have lost loses its force when it is remembered that the clergy and churches of all denominations were chiefly instrumental in securing the decision. A prize fight is nothing but a brutal encounter, utterly destitute of sport revolting to humanity, and engaged in simply for the money that is in it. With the rapidly increasing growth of public sentiment against such affairs the time will soon come when it will be considered disreputable in the extreme to attend one. Let us hope that day will soon come, and come to stay.

MRS. MCGILL BROKE DOWN

Gives the Real Facts In Regard to Her Case and Tells How She Suffered.

Jonesboro, Ark.—"I suffered a complete break down in health, some time ago," writes Mrs. A. McGill, from this place. "I was very weak and could not do any work. I tried different remedies, but they did me no good. One day, I got a bottle of Cardul. It did me so much good, I was surprised, and took some more.

Before I took Cardul, I had headache and backache, and sometimes I would cry for hours. Now I am over all that, and can do all kinds of housework. I think it is the greatest medicine on earth."

In the past fifty years, thousands of ladies have written, like Mrs. McGill, to tell of the benefit received from Cardul. Such testimony, from earnest women, surely indicates the great value of this tonic remedy, for diseases peculiar to women. Are you a sufferer? Yes? Cardul is the medicine you need. We urge you to try it.

N. B.—Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.
