The Charlotte Observer thinks that while this may not be the time to do Christmas shopping it is the time to do Christmas saving.

When our County Fair is in operation the police must keep a sharp lookout for "Red Mike," the pickpocket whom the Governor has just pardoned.

The Atlanta Journal asks what is going to become of the old fashioned race horse. They seem to be making arrangements to create a demand for him in Charleston.

The Steel Trust magnates are not at all alarmed at Taft's little game concerning it. They know it is only a grand stand play to make people believe that a fight is really to be made on the trusts.

A German physician says that four thousand years from now, unless women stop wearing tight shoes American women will have only one toe, and it will be small. This need not worry us.

When any political candidate has to spend an enormous sum of money to make any headway with the voters like Senators Lorimer and Stephenson did, it is pretty evident that he is lacking in some very important requirements.

If Governor Blease believes that "Red Mike," the notorious pickpocket whom he has just pardoned, is a reformed man, all he has to do to be convinced that he is mistaken is for him to give "Red Mike" a chance at his watch or pocket book.

No one can reasonably complain of that natural increase of cost of living which results from the lessened purchasing power of the dollar. But what people do justly complain of is the artificially higher price that the trusts compel them to pay.

Neither Cardinal Gibbons nor Archbishop Ireland nor President Taft had the slightest influence in preventing California from adopting "the weapons of mobocracy," as the Archbishop of St. Paul calls the initiative, referendum, and recall.

A dispatch from Washington says that the demand for new money is very great. The Greenwood Index says that the demand in Greenwood is not any stronger for new money than for old. Same way in Orangeburg. Any old kind is all right down here.

El-King Manuel of Portugal does not act in a very kingly manner. Instead of putting himself at the head of his followers who are risking life and limb to put him back upon the throne, he takes his ease by having a comfortable and safe time of it in England.

About the only effect the suit against the Steel Trust will have will be to depress the prices of the stock long enough for Morgan, Carnegie and others, who know that it is all a bluff, to buy all that is offered at greatly reduced prices and make a million or two dollars.

Col. William Banks, for more than a dozen years attached to the editorial staff of The State, as military correspondent, reporter, city editor and recently as special feature writer has moved to Anderson and will on November 1 succeed Mr. A. M. Carpenter as editor of the Anderson Daily Mail.

While in Spartanburg last week Governor Blease said that he probably would visit some of the nearby cotton mills and see his friends. He said he always liked to meet the mill workers, as it was they who elected him. To a large extent that is true, and the Governor is right in giving the mill people credit for what they did for him.

Some people have strange ideas as to business morality. They are very exact in dealing with other men in business, but when it comes to their relations with the national government their conduct is sometimes very different. Men who would under no consideration defraud a private individual do not hesitate to defraud the customs of thousands of dollars, and in thus defrauding to perjure themselves up to the hilt.

However divergent may be the views on some of the amendments to the constitution recently adopted by California, in all likelihood there is unanimous chorus of approval as to the amendment whereby the criminal procedure will be greatly simplified. In fact its adoption sweeps away a whole lot of quibbling, technicalities and other legal cobwebs, in which experts may delight, but which time and again have produced grave miscarriage of justice. No longer will the law be set aside because of the technicalities that may occur in charges to juries.

General Northrop Criticized.

General L. B. Northrop, of Charleston, who was Commissary General, during the War Between the Sections, of the Confederate States at Richmond, has been soundly criticised for the way he managed the subsistence department of the Confederate army. General Johnson Hagood, who was one of the best and bravest of the Southern generals, in his memoirs caustically criticized General Northrop, charging that he was incompetent and neglectful in the responsible position to which he had been assigned.

Thomas Nelson Page is also criticizing General Northrop. In an article in Scribner's Magazine on "General Lee and the Confederate Government" Mr. Page charges in effect that the commissary general fatally hampered the operations of the Army of Northern Virginia in the spring of 1863. Mr. Page concedes that General Northrop was patriotic and honest, but says in substance that he was also obstinate, irascible and theoretical. General Northrop was criticised early in the war by General Beauregard, who severely arraigned him for the way he treated the army in Virginia immediately before and after the first battle of Manassas.

On August 23, 1861, right after the above battle, General Beauregard, having complained several times before of the inefficiency of General Northrop wrote to President Davis from Manassas, "I have the honor to enclose you herewith a copy of the statement of provisions, etc., remaining on hand at this point and available, on the 21st instant, for the army of the Potomac, by which it will be seen that little improvement has taken place in that respect since I last had the honor of addressing your Excellency on the subject on the 10th instant."

General Beauregard then went on to say that the army was still as unprepared to advance or retreat in consequence of the lack of rations as well as wagons as at the close of the battle. "A serious accident to the railroads from here to Richmond would place the army in quite a critical condition so far as its subsistence is concerned," said he. General Beauregard had implicit confidence in General Northrop's personal integrity and patriotism, but he thought a younger and more active man was required to properly discharge the duties of the position that General Northrop held.

Wall Street's Game of Bluff.

A gentleman of Columbia handed to The State a printed marked letter, dated October 16, 1911, sent out by "Warren W. Erwin & Co. Members Consolidated Stock Exchange" of New York, from which the following paragraph is taken: "A few weeks or months ago Wall Street expected to do what it could to elect President Taft. Today it is turning from him and expects to back Governor Harmon or some other supposedly safe and conservative Democrat. This change of the political outlook in Wall Street indicates clearly the desperation of the situation in Wall Street's view."

Much of this kind of stuff is being sent out from Washington by a bureau evidently established by Wall Street for the purpose of trying to fool the country that Mr. Taft is no longer a favorite with the trusts. This talk is being indulged in by the democratic interests for the purpose of killing off the Progressive Republican movement, which, if continued, is sure to defeat Taft or any other candidate the Republicans may nominate. If Wall Street and the Trusts can fool the country into the belief that they are opposed to the re-election of Taft because of his hostility to them, they think that the Progressive Republicans could be brought to his support, and his re-nomination would be sure and his election probable.

Wall Street is no more in favor of Harmon than it was in favor of Parker. The only so-called Democrat that Wall Street has ever favored was Grover Cleveland when he was elected the second time, and it favored would be a mere tool in its hands after him because it knew that he was elected, and the sequel proved that it was right. The truth of the matter is Wall Street is badly scared. It has seen the handwriting on the wall, and it is trying to postpone the day of reckoning as long as possible. That is why it is trying to fool the people into the belief that it is opposed to Taft, when he is one of the most subservient tools plutocracy has ever had in the President's office. He is even more so than Cleveland, and that is saying a heap. It remains to be seen whether the American people can again be fooled into electing a tool of the trusts President by a Wall Street bluff.

The Orangeburg College.

An effort will be made by the Baptists to put the Orangeburg College on a sound basis. A financial agent has been employed, who will canvass for funds to accomplish this laudable purpose. There is a debt on the college, which has hampered it from the start. The plan now is to raise a sufficient amount to cancel this debt and if possible an additional sum for increasing the equipment. Mr. Gaines, the new financial agent, will begin to canvass for funds at once. He asks a contribution of at least one thousand from the people of this city, and the balance that may be needed he hopes to raise from the people of this and adjoining counties. The canvass in this city will not be confined to the Baptists but will include all friends of the school, for while the college is owned and controlled by the Baptist denomination, its doors are open to all regardless of need. The educational and commercial value of the college to this city is great and fully recognized. Therefore it is hoped there will be no trouble in raising the amount desired from this city. The cancelling of the debt and with a better equipment, the college will be enabled to do more and better work. Halted as it is, the college is doing a good work now. The enrollment this year is larger than ever and the faculty is perhaps the strongest the school has ever had. Let all pull together for Greater Orangeburg College.

The Close Season for Editors.

Wonder where Governor Blease buries the editors he kills. While at Spartanburg last week he was asked why he vetoed the libel law passed by the legislature at the last session. His reply was that the law was worthless because a newspaper was exonerated if, after the publication of a libel, it published a retraction and apology.

However, the governor said, newspaper libels had been of great service to him and he welcomed the condemnation of the press, as it made votes for him. "If I were not in politics," said Governor Blease, "and a newspaper lied about me, I would whip the editor. And if I was not man enough to do it I would get a double-barreled shotgun and kill him."

The governor further said that Smith & Wesson made all men of the same size, and that although he had managed to keep out of fights he was glad that he could use a gun. The editors should be thankful that Governor Blease is in office, as that seems to a close season with him regarding them. A committee should be appointed at the next meeting of the Press Association to try and find out where the Governor buries the editors he has killed.

HOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by the Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help."

I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health.

It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical.

Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

In every community, there live some who have been benefited by Cardui. The beneficial effects of this time tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways. Try it.
