The Lutheran brethren ought to have postponed their visit to Pine Grove until puddings and sausages were ripe.

The Manchu dynasty, which has ruled China for over two hundred years, has about reached the end of its row, and is now looking for a soft place to fall.

The Democrats carried Kentucky on Tuesday by over forty thousand, winning everything in sight, and adding the Blue Grass State to the solid South once more.

President Taft went to Cincinnati on Tuesday and voted for Boss Cox's ticket, but he failed to save it, as the Democrats elected their ticket by a good majority.

On the face of the returns it looks like Grace has been elected mayor of Charleston. If such proves to be the fact, he will be the first Catholic that has ever been elected mayor of the old city.

There is no encouragement in Tuesday's election for President Taft. His home city, which is nominally Republican went Democratic by a good majority. The Democrats captured several other cities of Ohio.

It is rather significant for a Republican state like Kansas to send a lie tariff reform Democrat to Congress in place of a dead standpat Republican. President Taft should make a note of this.

Wu Ting Fang, at one time Chinese minister to the United States, in a statement made to the Associated Press Tuesday announces that he has joined the movement to establish a Republican form of government in China.

Gov. Foss, of Massachusetts, was re-elected Tuesday on a tariff reform issue. This is not very encouraging to President Taft, who vetoed all tariff reform bills passed by the Democrats and Progressive Republicans through Congress.

How rapidly foreign institutions modeled after American become Americanized. Already the infant Chinese parliament has commenced impeachment proceedings against one of the government. The next thing probably will be senatorial investigations.

The Democrats have nothing to be gloomy over in the result of the elections Tuesday. While they met reverses in some places in others they made gains. The fact that they made more gains than they suffered reverses is very encouraging to all Democrats.

It is in order for that clergyman who says that the morality of the Bible is of inferior quality to present the world with an original code of morals. In the meantime the people will do well to keep the ten commandments and accept the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount.

The vexed question of whether Thanksgiving should be held on November twenty-third or the thirtieth has been decided by the President for the latter date. It means that the small boy has to wait another week for a slice of turkey and mince and pumpkin pie, it also means that the turkey will have one more week to fatten for the dinner.

The latest political gossip at Washington is that the old guard Republicans have despaired of electing Taft for a second term, and are secretly working up a sentiment in favor of Supreme Court Justice Hughes as a Republican presidential candidate and are conducting a gum-shoe campaign in his behalf throughout the country. We believe the trusts will find it as hard to elect Hughes as they would to re-elect Taft.

After it became known early Wednesday morning that Grace was elected mayor of Charleston on the face of the returns, some of his followers went to the News and Courier office, the Consolidated Company and broke in the front doors with sticks and stones. They also visited the residence of Mayor Rhet and made a noisy demonstration against that gentleman. It was a good thing for Grace that his rowdies were held in check until after the voting, or the result might have been different.

One of the most significant results of Tuesday's voting was the election of Jas. A. Taggart from the Second Kansas District to Congress over Ulysses S. Guyer, his Republican opponent, by a majority of 1,200. The election was to fill the unexpired term of the late Republican chairman, A. C. Mitchell. Mitchell carried the district in 1910 by 3,430 over John Caldwell, Democrat. There had to be a change of nearly five thousand votes from the Republicans to the Democrats. Kansas is a rock-ribbed Republican State.

State-Controlled Cotton Warehouses.

One of the most significant and certainly one of the soundest propositions, from an economic standpoint—advanced by the recent conference of southern governors, was a recommendation to the effect that the various state governments of the South lend their encouragement to the establishment of state-bonded cotton warehouses. The plan largely parallels that already authorized by constitutional amendment in Louisiana. The people of the latter commonwealth voted to allow private parties to erect a gigantic model warehouse plant, equipped with the latest modern appliances and fire safeguards, subject to regular and rigid inspection, so that the receipts for the cotton stored therein should have all the validity in the world's money markets of a state-stamped paper.

It will be noticed, as the Atlanta Constitution points out, that this plan does not contemplate that any extra expense shall be put upon the tax-payers. The warehouses are to be erected and maintained by private enterprise and fixed charges. There is no reason why the same plan, or some modification of it, should not prevail in every state of the cotton belt. One of the chief menaces to a stable price for cotton is the fact that it is, as a rule, dumped on the market, within three or four months of its being harvested. The facilities for holding it are extremely limited, and only within recent years have they been generally placed at the disposal of the farmers.

A cotton warehouse operating under the authority of a sovereign state would mean the extension of the selling period over the year, instead of over a period of one-quarter of the year. It would mean that the farmer depositing his cotton therein, provided it came up to specifications, could negotiate loans on the receipt therefor and discharging his immediate obligations, hold his cotton until the market responded to the legitimate influences of supply and demand. This system, in conjunction with a reasonable method of forecasting the world's probable consumption, would come as near hedging the South against loss on the staple as is open to human devices. Erraticism in the market would be reduced to a minimum and the millions now annually sacrificed would go where they belong—to the farmer, and through him, into every Southern business channel.

The Constitution truly says if any other section possessed the royal asset of the cotton crop it would have long ago adopted some such procedure. So long as the South fails to do so, it is depriving itself of a source of just revenue and giving it as so much velvet to other factors in the commercial world. It is time the South was coming to the rescue of the men who are making her rich and great. What helps the cotton planter, helps every man in the South as well as in the nation. They have been robbed and plundered by speculators too long, and it should end, and end at once. Who will lead the movement in South Carolina? A good leader in each Southern State is all that is lacking to make state-controlled warehouses a grand success and save to the cotton farmers of the South millions of dollars.

Fifteen Million Bales Needed.

With the publication of government estimates to the effect that the world demand for cotton the approaching season will approximate 15,000,000 bales, the bottom should drop from the bear market, and cotton should rise in price at once. In this issue we publish the Associated Press dispatch sent out from Washington that the world will need over fifteen million bales of American cotton. According to this government report, world-wide in its sources and official, if cotton is worth a cent to civilization, it is worth not less than fifteen cents.

Consuls from around the globe tell Washington that world consumption, ending next September, will be in excess of 15,000,000 bales. This estimate exceeds Italy and England. The former country will take in the neighborhood of half a million bales of American cotton, the latter, nearly three million. Consolidating these statistics and making due and conservative discount, it appears that world demand for the year will be in the neighborhood of 15,000,000 bales. The Atlanta Constitution says in the face of these seeming reliable facts, the attempt of market thimble-riggers to take advantage of the fears of the cotton producer because the crop is large is nothing short of criminal.

Hold your cotton. The bankers of the south, the merchants of the south, southern business men generally are equally interested in seeing that the section is not actually trick-out of millions of dollars. It should be a simple business transaction for all factors to co-operate in financing "distress" cotton, in advancing money needed to hold cotton until the world learns that the south will not be mulcted of a just return for the most important staple in civilization. Read the government statistics. Analyze them. Then hold your cotton.

In the language of the Constitution, why could not the government have compiled these estimates before three or four million bales went on the market at unjust prices? Why should it be literally coerced into aiding the producer, when it has, heretofore, appeared so eager to save the hide of the wretched bear gambler? The National Agricultural Department by its false and unwarranted crop estimates robbed the cotton planters of the South of millions of dollars. Congress should investigate its open espousal of the bear cause in the cotton market.

Numbers Instead of Names.

How would it do to number instead of naming children until they reach an age when their bodies and minds are developed and their characteristics displayed beyond a doubt? While as a rule the present system may work all right not often the names given are a sort of misfit. It is rather incongruous that a hot, quick-tempered woman should bear the name of "Patience," or that one tipping the scales at 250 pounds should be known as "Tiny," "Lily," "Daisy" or "Birdies." And so with men. It makes one smile that some poor creature who dare not call his soul his own has such a misfit name as "Lycurgus," that one mentally deficient should go through the world as "Solon," that a domineering uncharitable egotist should be introduced to society as "Robert E. Lee," and that a "George Washington" should be a Jew, low down delinquent. The ancient Jews and other nations gave names that reflected some characteristic or that spoke of some notable achievement, and often on occasion they changed a man's name. Such a practice cannot well be followed in these days, but it might be well for some parents to show greater discrimination in the names they give their children and not weigh them down through life with some absurdity.

Stops Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a reliable remedy for any kind of horse lameness. Will kill the growth of spavin, curb or splint, absorb enlargements, and is excellent for swellings, fistula and thrush.

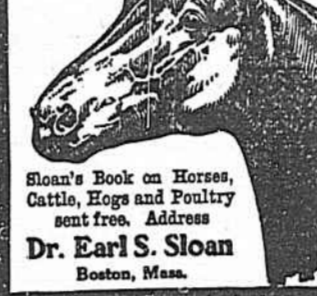

Here's Proof.
"I used Sloan's Liniment on a mule for high lameness, and cured her. I am never without a bottle of your liniment; have bought more of it than any other remedy for pains." BARRY KIRBY, Cassidy, Ky.

"Sloan's Liniment is the best made. I have removed very large shoe boils off a horse with it. I have killed a quarter crack on a mare that was awfully bad. I have also healed raw, sore necks on three horses. I have healed grease heel on a mare that could hardly walk." ANTHONY G. HYVES, Oakland, Pa., Route No. 1.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is good for all farm stock.
"My hogs had hog cholera three days before we got your liniment, which I used for three days and my hogs are almost well. One hog died before I got the liniment, but I have not lost any since." A. J. McCARTHY, Iadville, Ind.

TEXAS WOMAN GETS RESULTS

When the Doctor Failed to Help Mrs. Moncrief, She Helped Herself With Cardui.

Belton, Tex.—In a letter written from this place, Mrs. Ethel Moncrief says: "I suffered with womanly troubles ever since I first entered womanhood. The doctors failed to help, so I began with Cardui. From the first, I could see good results, and I kept on taking it. I was relieved of all my dreadful suffering. Cardui has built up my system, and my friends are all surprised to see the good results I obtained. Cardui is as good a doctor as any woman needs. It can't be beat. I cannot praise Cardui too highly." For more than half a century, Cardui has been used successfully to prevent unnecessary pains caused by womanly troubles, such as headache, backache, side ache, dragging sensations, etc. It also acts as a general tonic, for the weak, tired, worn-out womanly system. Whether seriously sick, or simply weak and ailing, take Cardui. It helped a million others. It will help you, too.
