

COLUMBIA TIGERS CLOSED UP.

Constables Stationed at Every Place and Give Dealers No Chance to Scurry—Some Kicking and Fighting.

Columbia Record.

Sometime before the fair opened it was rumored that an extra force of constables would be stationed here during fair week to look after the blind tigers. The rumor proved true, and if any blind tiger is doing any business it is done in the most clandestine way. In fact it may be stated that the tigers are completely out of business. Every place where it was known that whiskey was sold had a constable stationed in it. These took regular "shifts" relieving each other, and there was no chance for the dealers to do any business at all. Several of them yesterday afternoon closed their doors altogether, except those which happened to have restaurant attachments. These had to do strictly a restaurant business owing to the constant presence of a constable.

In one Main street restaurant a visitor called for a drink in the presence of a constable, and being informed that he could not be served he launched out in a general denunciation of constables. A fight resulted and there were hot times for a few minutes. The visitor was badly handled, though he put up a stiff scrap. Notwithstanding their close watch in the city the constables managed to go out into the country and capture a large quantity of contraband hidden in the woods.

As a chronicler of the sayings and doings of the people the Record states the fact that there is a good deal of kicking among a large class of visitors. They want a drink occasionally at night and they can't understand how they could get it last week and probably can next, yet must not be served this week. That's the way they talk, but the authorities are obdurate and are enforcing the law as it has never been done here before.

A Resourceful Woman.

New York Times.

"I think it is a foolish fashion that so many women indulge—that of telling their age wrongly," said the woman with the prematurely gray hair. "I can honestly say that I never practice it myself." "No?" said her friend, with many meanings in the monosyllable. "Well," said the first speaker, with a smile—she was a woman with a sense of humor—"the fact is, I don't have to. I have a way of making myself out younger than I am, if I wish to, without telling a fib at all."

"Really?" inquired the other curiously. "In what way?"

"I put the burden of the fib all upon the questioner. You see, when one of my dear woman friends—it is always women who are curious on this point—asks me how old I am I say: 'Oh, I'm a year or two older than you, you know, my dear—at least a year older. Let me see, now, how old are you?' And then she always knocks more off my age than I should ever have 'the nerve to do myself!'"

Wanted.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

October 14, 1902.

Mr. W. G. Mayes, Newberry, S. C.

My dear sir:—It gives me much pleasure to relate my experience with the Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen. The first one I owned I bought in 1886. This I used constantly until June 1891, when it was lost. Such perfect satisfaction did it give that I at once bought another A No. 2, an exact duplicate of the first. This I used exclusively through my Seminary course and in sermonizing afterwards. Our parsonage was burned Aug. 26, 1901, and my pen along with it. I can say with all good conscience that after ten years of constant use, my pen wrote just as well the night it burned as the day it was bought. In my financial embarrassment, one of the first things I replaced was another pen of the same make which I am now using.

Very truly, S. C. BALLENTINE, Secretary Lutheran Synod of South Carolina.
