

ANOTHER RAILWAY HORROR.

Fifteen Killed and Over Fifty Injured in Wreck of a Football Train Near Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 31.—Fifteen persons were killed and over 50 injured, some fatally, this morning by a collision between a special passenger train on the Big Four railroad and a freight engine drawing coal cars. The accident happened in the edge of the city. The passenger train of 12 coaches was carrying 954 persons, nearly all of whom were students of Purdue university and their friends, from La-Fayette to Indianapolis for the annual football game between the Purdue team and the Indiana university squad for the State championship which was to have been fought this afternoon.

In the first coach back of the engine were the Purdue football team, substitute players and managers, three players, the assistant coach, trainer and seven substitute players of the university team were killed and every one of the 53 other persons in the car were either fatally or seriously hurt.

While the work of rescue was going on there arrived in the city over 900 cheering followers of the red and white of Indiana university at Bloomington.

As the happy and excited students poured from the train news of the tragedy to the black and gold of Purdue was received. Instantly all was sadness and sympathy. The throng melted into sorrowing groups that separated to search morgue and hospital for friends, or took cars for the scene of the wreck to lend any possible aid.

Surgeons are still working over the injured, and it is believed the death list will be swelled to 20.

THE CIRCUS IN GREENWOOD.

The Mayor Arrested the Manager and Treasurer and Employees—All About a License.

Greenwood, October 31.—At one time last night it looked as if the great Barnum & Bailey show would have to miss its engagement in Columbia, for the reason that the county jail was filled with about twenty of its employees, including the general manager and treasurer. The story of how this came about and the why of it is all interesting. The circus management had obtained the use of a piece of ground within the city limits before coming here, but just before arriving it was ascertained that they could get a lot from Dr. R. B. Epling just beyond the city limits. They did this and thought no doubt that the matter of a city license was easily disposed of. However when General Manager Andrews came to arrange about the license for the parade the trouble began. Mayor Park told the general manager that the scale of licenses was from a minimum of fifty dollars to a maximum of two hundred dollars, but as the show was not to take place within the city limits and the license for the parade was the only thing he would leave the matter to Mr. Andrews's fairness, after having stated the amount fixed by ordinance. Mr. Andrews then offered twenty-five dollars. This Mayor Park refused to consider, as the amount was only half of the minimum. Mr. Andrews at that time refused to give more and with the idea that both sides, the town and the circus, were to look after their own interests, he left. Before leaving he offered the mayor some tickets, which he declined. Having intimated to Mr. Andrews that he was going to have the vendors of tickets, balloons, etc., arrested for not having a license Mayor Park at once instructed the police to begin arresting the vendors of every sort.

COPELAND BROS.,

OUTFITTERS FROM HEAD TO FOOT.

Mr. Andrews was also at work and had these people off the streets in a short time. After the show, however, the arrests began and soon about sixteen men were in the county jail, the city lockup being too small to hold them. When the general manager came up he, too, was arrested and jailed. Before his arrest, and before the performance even, he came back to the mayor and offered the fifty dollars. This was refused, as the terms of the mayor's first proposition would not admit of this compromise after having left the matter in the first instance to Mr. Andrews's own idea of fairness.

When the general manager was jailed the affair began to look serious enough. Messrs. Graydon and Richardson and D. A. G. Ouzts were employed. Bond was asked for. It would be granted for the appearance before the mayor the next morning at 9 o'clock, were the terms the mayor offered. This wouldn't do, so the whole affair rested for a few hours. After supper the treasurer, accompanied by one of the workmen, came up to the mayor's office and asked to see Mr. Andrews. The mayor told him he was in jail and showed him the direction in which to go. The treasurer asked the workman to accompany him. The workman refused, saying: "Guess I better stay away." As soon as the treasurer had started over to the jail the mayor directed Chief Macmillian to follow and arrest him. When he gave this order the workman, who was standing by, pulled off his hat and said, "Well, gentlemen, I am only a damn dirty dish washer, good-night," and took to his heels.

About 11 o'clock the mayor was sent for and the sum of two hundred dollars was offered under protest. It was refused. Finally the circus people weakened and surrendered. The money was paid over. It is said that when they were released some of them said that it was the first town they had failed to conquer.

Every circus that has come to Greenwood, with one exception, since 1900 has been "jugged," or made to pay. Of course its a business proposition with them to make all they can, but their policy is sometimes short-sighted. For instance, it cost them two hundred dollars yesterday, when fifty would have let them off if they had been fair and the parade would no doubt have caused many to go into the big show who did not. HOW HE BECAME A LAWYER.

The Story of John Sherman's Admission to the Bar.

Gen. "Jack" Caseman, the veteran railroad builder, who fought during the civil war with Gen. Sherman, and who was his intimate friend until the latter's death, tells the story of John Sherman's entrance into the practice of the law, as related by his warrior brother, says The Washington Star.

When John Sherman was quite young he was taken into the law office of his brother Charles at Mansfield, Ohio, to help about the office and make himself generally useful. One day when he was in his 21st year he took Charles one side and asked him quietly for a loan of $50.

"What?" Charles exclaimed. "What do you intend doing with so much money?"

"I am going to Columbus to be admitted to the bar," John replied.

Charles was greatly surprised, as John had never asked him for any advice regarding the profession, nor had he ever appeared to be interested to any extent in the study of law.

"You can't be admitted to the bar without some knowledge of the law," said Charles.

John maintained that he knew more about law than some others, and assured his brother that he would try and raise the money somewhere.

"You know," he added, "it will be necessary for me to have respectable clothes and money enough to pay my traveling and hotel expenses."

Charles finally ordered the clothes and provided him with the necessary money. At Columbus, on the day he became of age, John was admitted to the bar. On his return he said to Charles:

"I am going to Iowa to practice law."

Charles remonstrated with him. "There is room for both of us to practice law here in Mansfield," Charles told him.

They then and there became partners and continued to practice together until the formation of the Republican party, when John was sent from the Mansfield district as a Representative to Congress.

Later he was elected to the United States Senate and the balance of his life became a very important and interesting part of the history of the country.
