"Yes, sir," replied a score of voices. "the flag of the United States." "Do you know the flag of Texas?"

asked the president. "Yes, sir."

"What is it?"

"The lone star."

"Are you loyal to both flags?" "Yes, sir."

"I bet you are. Now my children, do you know who I am?"

"Yes, sir." . "Who am I?"

"President Taft."

"I rather think that you believe the president has more power than he really has." "He is a sort of figurehead for the nation for four years," continued the presiednt seriously.

"He is a kind of man that they blame everything for, if it goes wrong and if it goes right he does not get any credit for it. But, my children, if you will permit me to call you such although some of you are far beyond the time when you, perhaps, ought to have that name, that flag represents the sovereignty of your country, and the reason why you are here this morning to see me is because for four years I am the chief executive officer of the United States, and as such for that time represent the sovereignty of the nation, and am entitled, as long as I conduct myself properly, to your respect as the head of the nation. In four years I will step down and out, and I won't be entitled to your respect any more than any other citi-

Another little lamb has gone To dwell with Him who gave; Another little darling babe Is sheltered in the grave.

God needed one more angel child Amidst His shining band And so He bent with loving smile, And clasped little Claudy's hand.

The little crib is empty now , The little clothes laid by. A mother's hope, a father's joy In Death's cold arm doth lie. Go, little pilgrim, go to thy home On yonder blissful shore; We miss thee here, but soon will come Where thou hast gone before.

Thy gentle voice now is hushed Thy warm true heart is still, And on thy young and innocent brow Is resting Death's cold chill. There was an angel band in heaven

That was not quite complete, So God took little Claudy To fill the vacant seat.

And now, dear parents, the only consolation that is vouchsafed you is the sweet realization of the fact that your precious babe is at peace. The one upon whom you have lavished your affection is now in that land "Where the weary are at rest." And the poor little frame will never more be racked with the agonies of pain, and suffering is at the end. Just think, 'twill only be a little while until we all will cross the dark river and join our loved one among the hosts of the saved on the other
