This section was visited by splendid rains last Sunday the best we have had since last July.

A great deal of wheat and other small grain is being sown in Marlboro county this fall and one hears the farmers on every side declaring that they are going to plant very little cotton next year. Brownville and Blenheim communities have organized an association among the farmers of these two communities, in which great interest is being taken, the express purpose of producing more foodstuffs at home and reducing the acreage of cotton to a small fraction of what they have been planting. Many of the leading farmers of this section are back of the movement and doubtless good results will be produced.

Sam T. Atkinson of Greenville spent Saturday night in the city.
