

Useless Policy.

The Argentine board of health has recommended to the sanitary authorities of Uruguay that the strict quarantine now enforced be abandoned and, instead, that each ship from an infected port be disinfected and dealt with on its merits, without relation to other ships; but Uruguay can't see it that way and suggests a reduction of the time vessels are held, "which is only a reduction of the nuisance and useless policy," as a Buenos Ayres paper puts it.

IT'S A SICKLY SMILE

Arp Says He Tries To Be Good to Republicans.

MEETS THEM WITH A SMILE

But Bill Says That It is a Very Weak Article—Didn't Know There Were So Many McKinley Men.

The scriptures tell us to rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with those who weep. I am trying to do it, but it is an awful strain. When I meet a McKinley man I try to smile but it is only a sickly grin and is only skin deep. They are pretty thick around here now since the election and so between mourning with the Bryan men and rejoicing with the republican countenance has lost its normal and natural condition and it is hard to tell whether I am crying or smiling. We did not know that there were more than a dozen respectable McKinley-ites in the community, but it turns out that there were scores of them. Nearly all of the plutocrats voted that way on the sound money platform. They lend money and want it paid back in gold. A good many farmers who have some cotton on hand were led to believe that it would go up again to 10 or 12 cents if McKinley was elected, but it dropped 15 points the day after the election. But it is all over now and the wheels keep rolling on. Let them roll. The millionaires and plutocrats can't eat their money or wear it out. It is obliged to go back to the colliers, the people, in some way. The Standard Oil Company declared a dividend yesterday of 40 cent. He gives away a big slice of education and utilizes the rest. What a blessed thing it is, that a man can't take his money with him when he dies. If he could I reckon we poor folks would perish out in a generation. After all it is not money that brings happiness. A good living, a competency honestly earned, brings far more happiness than riches. This kind of talk is 4,000 years old, but the people don't believe it yet, everybody wants money, a big pile of money. I would like it myself; I want some for a rainy day and some to give away, but we are not in distress, and never have been, though for some years of the war and just after we were on the ragged edge. Talk about prosperity, I saw it last week over in South Carolina. There is a nice little town over there called Prosperity, but I didn't see it. It went to the old town of Darlington. I was there eighteen years ago. It was a good old town then, but it has renewed its youth and taken on new life and I hardly knew the place. Cotton mills and oil mills and good farming have done it. The cotton crop of that county is 20,000 bales and the tobacco crop was 6,000, 600 pounds and it brought half as much money as the cotton crop. Fifteen years ago there was not a pound of sale raised in the county. They didn't know it would grow there. Now there are three large warehouses, where it is auctioned off every day. I attended the auctions and it was a revelation to me. The farmers' wagons were unloading all around and their tobacco was piled up neatly in long rows and their names and the number of pounds written on a card and stuck in the split end of a little white pine stick and that was stuck in the center of the pile. For an hour or two before the auction begins the buyers from Richmond and Winston and Durham and Liverpool and other markets went all around and examined the quality of every pile and took notes. The auctioneer talked so fast I could not understand him, but the buyer did. I reckon there were two or three hundred piles in each warehouse and the auctioneer and the crowd went from pile to pile and sold each one where it was. I heard some knocked down as low as 9 cents and some as high as 57 cents. There is one curious rule about tobacco auctions that does not apply to any other auction. The farmer can reject the highest bid and keep his tobacco. If he and his boys have resolved that their crop shall bring 20 cents a pound and it brings only 19 he turns the card down and takes his tobacco home, or maybe hauls it around to another warehouse, where the same buyers find it next day and maybe bid over 20 cents for it. This is one of the trucks of the trade. The difference between the grades was hardly perceptible to my eyes, but the buyers know. It was all a bright yellow, but some was brittle and wormeaten and some was soft and pliant as a kid glove. This was bought for wrappers. This evolution has come within ten years, and is increasing every year, for an acre of good tobacco will bring $100 and it costs only 25¢ to cultivate it. My friend, Mr. Williamson, the banker, told me he had thirty-five acres planted this year and it netted him $77 per acre. There is another evolution in Darlington county. Ten years ago no wheat was grown there. Now every farmer sows wheat and a large flour mill has recently been built. It was the same way in middle Georgia. Until about five years ago all that region was under the ban, and the farmers did not prefer to grow wheat. Now they make more wheat to the acre, all around Griffin and Barnesville, than we can make in north Georgia. And so evolution and revolution is going on, but they don't give McKinley credit for it in South Carolina. It is amusing to hear them tell about the prosperous negroes over there. Between cotton and tobacco they pocket a pile of money, and spend nearly every dollar before they leave town. One man sold them thirty-seven Rock Hill bugles in one week, and Mr. Williamson told me of a draky who drew $37 and spent $35 of it that day for a fine gun and a pointer dog. He will be begging his landlord for an advance before Christmas. He had a d-lightful time at Darlington and a smartsville and Bishop-ville and last at Rock Hill. Bishop-ville ought to be named "Sweet Abbuth, the loveliest village" of the plain." I found old friends and acquaintances at every place and was honored far beyond my deserving. My wife hasn't got me back in the traces yet. Near Bishopville I found an old time friend, Mrs. Reid, the sister of my schoolmates, Ned Goulding and John, and of Frank Goulding, who wrote the "Young Marooners." She is now eighty-nine years old and came nimbly down the steps to meet me. Her husband preached in Mt. Zion church, near by, for forty-four years and is buried in the Mt. Zion graveyard, where that eminent missionary divine, Leighton Wilson is buried. The tears glistened in the dear old lady's eyes as we talked of her honored father, Dr. Goulding, and the old people of Columbus, who had passed over the river. And Rock Hill was another revelation. It is a beautiful little city of 7,000 people and four large cotton mills and the largest buggy factory in the south. It turns out 10,000 a year, all kinds and prices, from a darkey's cheap vehicle for $30, to a rubber tire for $150. And then the college girls. Oh, my country. Four hundred full grown girls in uniform, and they looked so happy, and healthy, and loving, that I found myself humming, "Oh, would I were a boy again." It made me feel sad to reflect that all these girls were born to be mated as well as married, but some would be neither, and alas, some would be married but not mated. —Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

MYSTERIES OF DARK ISLAND.

They May Be Cleared Up in Part by Cutting Off the Heavy Timber Land

A large wooded island in the Missouri river, near the Lyman county line, this state, that has been the scene of many bloody deeds during the last three-quarters of a century, is about to be converted, to the use of civilized man, by having a large sawmill erected upon it. In early days it was known to the whites as "Dark Island." The history of this name is not definitely known, but it is thought by old settlers that it may have acquired the name from the fact that it is heavily wooded, and therefore dark and gloomy as compared with the open plains on either side of the river, or, more probably, that it was the scene of many a dark deed.

It was on this island that two Jesuit missionaries lost their lives in 1845. They had come out to work among the Indians, and had crossed over to the island to consult White Eagle, a powerful Sioux chief who lived there. This was the last seen of them. Some years afterward the Indians of this tribe used to display two white men's scalps with long black hair, and it is thought they were taken from the two Frenchmen. A few years afterward emigrants found, this a convenient place to cross the Missouri, but nothing was ever heard of them after they reached the island.

In 1893, at the time when the Federal government was converting the Rosebud Indian reservation into organized counties, Frank Phelps occupied the island. At this time Mot Malson, a Swede, who lived on the west bank of the river, directly opposite Phelps' shanty, was murdered in front of his own door. Henry Schroeder, who was at that time employed by Phelps in cutting wood for the steamboats, was accused of the crime. He was arrested and confessed his part in the murder, but implicated Phelps as the instigator of the crime. Schroeder is now serving the seventh year of a life sentence in the penitentiary at Sioux Falls.

Phelps was arrested and in the long trial that followed spent all that he was worth, including the island, in trying to secure his freedom. He was found guilty, however, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. He appealed his case to the Supreme Court and on the very day on which the opinion of that court was handed down affirming the decision of the lower court he suddenly died in his cell in the jail at Alexandria.

Many other dark deeds have been connected with the island, but it has recently passed into the possession of a company that has commenced the erection of a sawmill for the purpose of cutting the timber and clearing the land and putting it under cultivation. Much interest is manifested in this work as it goes on, for it is thought that in cutting down the giant trees and in clearing off the land where so many dark deeds have been committed evidence will appear that will throw light upon many mysteries which surround the spot.—Minneapolis Journal.

Novelties in Note Paper.
Deerskin and pocketbook note paper are eccentricities of the season. The deerskin is a soft gray, smooth of finish and edged with white. The portemonnaie is in imitation of yellow alligator skin and the envelopes are in the form of a pocketbook, fastening with a silver seal.
Crep paper of yellow-brown, decorated with odd little sketches in equally odd colors, is a Chinese novelty. It is, however, too novel for any use but invitations to a fancy dress ball or a children's party.
Great sheets and enormous square envelopes of this smooth finished paper, something like onion peel in texture, are sold for foreign correspondence. The paper comes in two shades, cream and rose, and is mottled with little hairy lines of blue and of red.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well. Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in plying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your sources, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere. You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with fright, and you cannot sleep. Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case should be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the un-failing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Dismal Swamp Canal.
The Dismal Swamp Canal, which was originally surveyed by George Washington, was formally opened for navigation October 14, 1829. For more than a hundred years the waterway was abandoned. A procession of vessels passed through, the United States torpedo boat Talbot bringing up the rear. The canal cost $1,000,000, and we have already illustrated its construction. It allows small vessels to go south through the inland route, avoiding the dangers which always exist in rounding Cape Hatteras. This route avoids the noted Diamond Shoals. The canal extends from Deep Creek, near Norfolk, to Pasquotank River, North Carolina, and is twenty-two miles long, ten feet deep and eighty feet wide. There are two locks, one at each end.

RAM'S HORN BLASTS.

HE beatitudes are more than beautiful attitudes. With some men here is no usefulness without usefulness. A man's wealth is never greater than himself. The steadfast life is settled on the goodness of God. A covenant-keeping Christian finds a covenant-keeping God.

The sweetest song you can sing as you work will not atone for sweeping the dust in the corners. He who knows he is right fears no ridicule. Big game are often killed with little guns. Green branches do not grow on dead roots. The child of God is never at home without his Father. The admission ticket to society often costs the sacrifice of the Saviour. The mills of the cross may mortify the flesh, but they are the best tonic for the spirit. The devil often puts garlands on his victims. Youth lives in the future and age in the past. The natural is inconceivable without the supernatural. Liberty is freedom to do what you ought, not what you like. Application to idols is deists accomplish more than mere appreciation of them. The worldly Christian refuses the bread of life and pretends to rejoice over mud-pies. When the wicked flourish like a Green Bay tree, the saints get under its shadow and expect to prosper.
