AMERICAN FLAG A VICTORY LOAN PRIZE

American Flag which Flies over National Capitol to be Given State which Attains Largest Percentage of Over-Subscription.

Columbia, April 5.—Word from Washington was received today by the Victory Liberty Loan committee for South Carolina announcing that the large American flag which floated over the dome of the capitol during the inaugural ceremonies and other historic occasions would be awarded the State which attains the largest percentage of over-subscriptions of its quota in the Victory Loan campaign.

At the recent conference of the Fifth Federal Reserve District held in Richmond, this State was congratulated on having the most complete organization to date and the Liberty Loan committees predict that South Carolina will keep in the lead in the coming drive which opens April 21.

This flag of honor was presented to the United States Treasury Department by Elliott Woods, Superintendent of the capitol. It was first floated over the capitol dome on March 5, 1917, when President Wilson was inaugurated and again when the President delivered his war address to Congress April 4 and 5, 1917. This flag was also flown on the occasions of the visits of the various foreign missions to the capitol and raised proudly the day the armistice was signed.

The Bureau of Publicity of the Treasury announces that this priceless flag will be presented as a permanent souvenir to the State making the highest record in the Victory Loan Drive. The attention of the chairmen of the various counties in South Carolina will be called to this offer and every effort made for this State to win the contest.
