

General Pershing Makes Memorial Address

Romagne, France, June 1.—"Farewell, dear comrades. Here under the clear skies of the green hillside and amid the flowering fields of France, on the quiet hush of peace, we leave you forever in God's keeping."

With these words General Pershing, commander of the American expeditionary forces closed his memorial day address at Romagne in the Argonne cemetery, where more than 9,000 Americans who fell in the fighting are buried. General Degoutt, representing the French government, and Marshal Foch, allied commander in chief, spoke briefly, mentioning all the battles in which the Americans had participated and dwelling upon the everlasting memory in which those who had died for the cause of liberty, justice and civilization would be held by all France.

The speaker's stand was on a hillside overlooking the sloping acres of the white crosses. In the center of the plot a huge American flag was flying and at the corner other staves held the national colors at half mast. With the conclusion of General Pershing's speech, four 75's of the Third Division artillery fired the national salute. The guns were the ones which had been turned on the enemy on the Marne when last July the Germans started their last great drive toward Paris.

Amid the booming of the guns a soldier sang "Lead Kindly Light," and after this a company of infantrymen from the Fifth Division fired three volleys off towards the north over the graves. A bugle corps sounded "Taps" and all the flags were raised to mast top as the exercises ended. Ten thousand troops representing all the divisions that participated in the Argonne engagement, were present.

"Memorial Day this year has for us a peculiar significance," said General Pershing. "Our nation has taken an important part in the greatest war of history. With tremendous expenditures of life and treasure an end has come to the terrible conflict which has wrung the world for four years. It was a war of humanity. It was waged against militarism and a despotism and their arbitrary extension to other lands. Thousands of brave men had fallen in defense of their firesides, till allied hope seemed all but lost. In righteousness, more people rose and our armies in ever increasing numbers vigorously threw their strength to the allies on the side of civilization. Reared in the land of freedom, these valiant men, but partly skilled in arms, came willing to give their lives to the cause without desire for gain. By their energy, their devotion, the tide of war turned, invaded homes were set free, and human liberty was saved from destruction.

The principles which our forefathers fought to establish, the heroic dead who lie here fought to maintain, and their ideals have brought our gift to the old world. But beyond this our own people through these sacrifices gained much honor as individuals and as a nation. There is given us a more lofty conception of the grandeur of human liberty and with it a distinct vision of a better world. To realize this fully the foundations of society must be laid deeper and the structure more firmly built.

"The times demand of us clearness in thought and firmness in action. The solidity of our nation must be the bulwark against incidious and destructive tendencies. The glory of our independence must remain the leaven and our flag the emblem of all that free men love and cherish. Strengthened by the practical test of war and with an abiding faith in the Almighty, let us be steadfast in upholding the integrity of our traditions, as a guide to future generations at home and a beacon to all who are oppressed.

"It is especially given the soldier to know clearly the price of liberty. Those to whom America pays tribute here today came with us in the full vigor of their youth. They left their homes encouraged by beloved ones who remained behind. As they went to battle they were united with a holy inspiration, realizing their mighty task and their obligations to their country and they fought with unparalleled stoicism and determination.

"We saw enthusiasm and confidence carry them on with irresistible force. We saw them at Cantigny and again at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel and on this historic field in the decisive battle of the war.

"We can again see them yonder moving forward as they steadily advance across the shell torn field under withering fire. They cheer and gallantly charge the enemy's strong positions. They put him to flight. In the shock of arms. Onward, ever onward, they go through weary days and sleepless nights of continuous struggle, on to the final great victory.

"We weep today over their graves because they are our flesh and blood,

Secretary Daniels Wants Ready Navy

Between Now and End of War Department Will Have Time to Carefully Consider Situation.

Washington.—Although the navy department has placed itself on record as being opposed to launching new building programs which would give the United States a navy "second to none in the world," it is in favor of rushing to completion all capital ships already authorized and of maintaining temporarily at least, a force of men capable of handling "any emergency which might arise."

Secretary Daniels, continuing his testimony before the house naval affairs committee, read a communication from the general board which recommended that the 10 battleships and six battle cruisers authorized in the 1916 program should be completed as soon as possible.

Recommendation was made by the secretary that provision be made in the 1920 appropriation bill for a navy of 250,000 men, only 23,000 less than are now in the service. He asserted that unless this number was authorized, the navy would be unable to aid materially in bringing American troops home from Europe and in addition would be "dangerously weakened."

Mr. Daniels emphasized that the navy department did not intend to ask Congress at this time for a permanent navy of 250,000 men but only for a temporary force large enough to take care of the work arising in the transition period between war and peace. Between now and the end of the war, the secretary said, the department would have time to study carefully the situation and arrive at a definite conclusion as to the country's needs.

EDMONDS CHAMPIONS CAUSE OF SOUTHERN COTTON MEN

Atlantic City, N. J.—There can be no universal prosperity in America until the cotton growers of the South get a square deal," declared Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, in addressing the opening session of the 23rd annual convention of the American Cotton Growers' Association.

"We are not asking for government paternalism. The South is not seeking any favors. What it does ask is that the cotton crop shall be regarded not as a sectional product but as a great national asset," he continued.

"Never since 1865 have the cotton producers attained a fair measure of prosperity. Every effort to better prices for them have been vigorously assailed in manufacturing and financial circles in the East and in England.

"If the South had never produced a bale of cotton it would have been infinitely better off today. Without cotton the South would be the center of the food producing power of America."

LYNCH IS LYNCHED BY AN ANGRY MOB AT LAMA, MO.

Springfield, Mo.—Jay Lynch, slayer of Sheriff John Harlow and Harlow's son March 3, was hanged by a mob at Lama, Mo.

Lynch, who was captured in Colorado a few weeks ago, was being arraigned in the Barton county courthouse. A mob quickly assembled and, taking the prisoner from the officers, hanged him in the courthouse yard.

Lynch was mobbed while seated in the courtroom. Men held the officers and seizing the prisoner, dragged him down the steps of the courthouse to an elm tree about 25 feet from the entrance. Lynch had entered a plea of "guilty" to the charge of murdering Sheriff Harlow and his son and had been given a life sentence.

THE SMOOTHEST SMOKING TOBACCO

TIME—given the right chance—puts character in a man's face, horse-sense under his hat, and mel-low fren'liness into his tobacco.

Velvet Joe

Time is a big factor in giving Velvet Tobacco its mildness and "character."

Velvet ages for two whole years in wooden hogsheads. During this long period the choice Burley leaves take on a kindly quality of coolness, a rich fragrance, a "taste" that appeals to pipe smokers—old and young.

Don't hurry, but just walk into the next store and lay down a dime and a nickel and say "VELVET"—the tobacco that isn't harsh but is friendly.

An attractive, snug, convenient, roomy little bungalow;

Graceful lines, embodying the most modern of architectural ideas; securely, substantially built to make it lasting and comfortable in the most severe weather. Built with a view to convenient arrangement. While small in appearance, its rooms are in reality of ample size for every comfort.

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW NO. 44

while beautiful, convenient, roomy and thoroughly substantial, is built at a tremendously reduced cost, due to the immense savings in quantity production. From the flooring to the roof, from the siding to the interior finish, it is already prepared for erection and partially built. In buying a QUICKBILT Bungalow you

SAVE

WASTE—All the material is already prepared and the large waste piles of scrap lumber are thus eliminated. Every foot of lumber is used. You buy no surplus material.

TIME—Every piece of material has its own place. Everything is numbered and systematized. The instructions to the carpenter are complete and the order of erection simple. No time is lost in looking for material. The time ordinarily required in preliminary cutting and trimming is saved. Furthermore, as a large portion of the house is already built in panels, just that much time and cost is eliminated in construction.

LABOR—With the entire process of erection systematized and instructions complete and the great building "bungalow"—preliminary preparations—eliminated, the labor in the erection of a QUICKBILT Bungalow is reduced to a minimum, and therefore, of minor consideration. A carpenter of average speed and experience with two laborers, can erect the house in 8 days. The ordinary house will take almost as many weeks.

MONEY—A saving in waste of material, time and labor, is a saving erection is cut in half, but that is not all. You need not pay a contractor's fee. The erection is so simple and systematic that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it with ease. Many owners build them themselves. You pay no architect's fee. The complete plans with all specifications and instructions are furnished FREE. And yet, the plans are made after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, with a view to eliminating waste and gaining the greatest possible convenience, economy and strength. The cost of the material is further reduced by the fact that you buy it from the mill, manufacturer and forest in one. Our complete plants cover the entire process, from the tree to the completed house. You pay no middle-man a profit. You buy direct from the source of material. In our complete plants in which hundreds of houses are built simultaneously, every short cut to perfection is used and every waste avoided. As the houses are made in great quantities you gain the advantage of the low cost of quantity production.
