Here's a grocery problem you've often encountered

One can of peas at 18 cents—another can—same size—at 23 cents. What's the difference?

You don't know and ask the clerk.

Does he know—or does he just tell you "the 23 cent article is better."

Our clerks do know—they can tell you the why and wherefore of every product on our shelves and they're glad to do it.

They know groceries.

For instance, there's the question of the merits of various baking powders.

We recommend RYZON.

Not because we make a lot of money by selling RYZON, but because we have tested it and tried it and found it a product we can endorse.

RYZON is the scientific product of a great chemical organization, a decided favorite among the foremost domestic scientific and one which works perfectly in the home. Honestly priced at 40 cents a pound.
