

WILSON DECLINES TO FURNISH SOME OF PEACE PAPERS

Tells Committee Confidential Papers Would Involve Other Nations.

WASHINGTON, August 11.—President Wilson sent out the foreign relations committee today a copy of the original American draft of a league of nations covenant but declined to furnish other papers relating to the peace negotiations asked for in senate resolutions.

In reply to a committee request for "all data" used in preparation of the treaty, the President wrote that most of the documents and memoranda were left in Paris and that many were of a confidential nature so that "on grounds of public policy" it would be unwise to make use of them "outside the conference."

He sent only the American covenant draft and a copy of the covenant as agreed to before his first return from Europe. To another resolution asking for a copy of the letter written by General Bliss regarding the Shantung problem, Mr. Wilson replied that he regarded the letter as confidential since it contained certain references to other governments.

He said the communication, in which Secretary Lansing and Henry White concurred, "took a very strong ground" against the proposed settlement of the question but could not "properly be described as a protest against the final Shantung decision."

The American league plan, made public for the first time, revealed that the American delegates had proposed a covenant conforming in many particulars with that finally adopted but differing from it in others. American League Plan.

Like the final draft the American plan contemplated a league council and assembly dealing with "any war or threat of war," an arbitration procedure under supervision of the council, advice by the league as to reduction of armament, an economic boycott against covenant breakers, publicity of treaties, and a mandatory system.

The much debated article ten, under which the members would guarantee one another's integrity against external aggression, had its counterpart, almost word for word, in the American plan.

At variance with the covenant as finally included in the treaty, however, the President's covenant would have omitted reference to the Monroe Doctrine and the right of withdrawal, would have empowered the council to "inquire into the feasibility of abolishing compulsory military service," and would have contained a provision relative to the freedom of the seas.

The council and assembly would have been differently constituted and instead of unanimous vote being required in the council, any nations represented would have been empowered to veto any decision.

When the American plan reached the capitol Secretary Lansing, concluding his testimony before the foreign relations committee on the treaty, was laying before the committee and copy of the resolution embodying league principles presented by him at the peace conference.

The resolution, which never was acted on formally, followed in general the American covenant draft. At the end of his testimony, which concerned chiefly the Shantung agreement and related subjects, the secretary was asked to send before the committee tomorrow David Hunter Miller, as state department official who acted as adviser of the league of nations commission at Versailles.

MISS SOPHIE PARSONS CARROLL LA BORDE

On June 7th, Miss Sophie Parsons Carroll, La Borde departed this life, which for a term of many years she had spent in the service of others. She was a daughter of Dr. Maximilian La Borde, who was for thirty years a professor in South Carolina College, and her girlhood was spent in Columbia. She was a woman of culture and unusual intellectual attainments, and while these qualities made a strong impression upon those with whom she came in contact, it was her Christian character that made the deepest impression.

Early in life, prompted by the spirit of service, she became one of the pioneers in her native State as a professional nurse. After graduating at Bellevue Training School for Nurses in New York City, she took a post-graduate course at St. John's Training School for Nurses in London.

While there she worked in King's College Hospital and Charring Cross Hospital, and on her return to America worked in Christ Church Hospital, Jersey City, and in Belleue, and was head nurse in St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

For several years she worked with the Sisters of the Good Shepherd Episcopal, New York, in their Day Nursery, the first in this country. For eight years she was a matron of the Church Home Orphanage, while that institution was located at Charleston.

She was an associate of The Sisters of St. Mary Episcopal, Sewanee, Sewanee, Tenn., and assisted them in their missionary work in the mountains of Tennessee for some years. At the time of her departure she was living near Clinton, S. C., with her sister, Mrs. Robert C. Davis, and though hampered by the infirmities of age, continued to do relief work among the poor, had been active in Red Cross and war work, and her patriotism was unsurpassed.

Wherever she lived she was a missionary possessing a large measure of the grace of unselfishness. In many a life there came "some flowers that but for her had never bloomed."

She lived "in always Perfect Wisdom and Perfect Love." While her many friends and relations mourn her departure, it is with the full assurance that she has "come to these unspeakable joys prepared for those who unfeignedly love Thee, Almighty God."

had entered into a covenant violating American traditions and impairing the constitutional powers of congress. Tomorrow Chairman Lodge, of the foreign relations committee, will speak on the league of nations.

A sub-committee was named by the senate judiciary committee today to consider whether there is any constitutional barrier to ratification of the special defensive treaty with France. The action was in response to a resolution by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, calling on the committee for an opinion. Senator Nelson, Republican, Minnesota, heads the sub-committee.

GERMANY'S PAY DAY

The peace treaty, which Germany has unconditionally accepted, binds her as to the following requirements:

Her European domain is reduced from 208,825 to 172,000 square miles; population from 66,000,000 to 54,000,000. She loses all her colonies, an area of 2,950,000 square miles.

Portions of Germany go to Poland, Czechoslovakia and Belgium. Danzig is internationalized, and plebiscites are to be held in upper Silesia, East Prussia, Schleswig and the Saar district to determine their national status.

The German army must shrink by March, 1920, from 2,000,000 men to 100,000 men; the navy will retain six battleships and six cruisers out of 41 battleships and 49 cruisers, and there must be no military or naval air forces.

German forts for 50 kilometers east of the Rhine must be dismantled, and the fortifications in Heligoland demolished.

Germany is allowed to produce but little war material and cannot trade in it. She must open her pet Kiel Canal to craft of all nations, and permit the Allies to occupy certain districts for fifteen years or until she makes full reparation.

She becomes responsible for all damages to the Allied Governments and their citizens, promises reimbursement of civilian damages, with an initial payment of $5,000,000,000 and consents to the trial of the Kaiser and others chargeable with precipitating the great war.
