ADDISON-STEVENSON.

Miss Rebecca Addison of Due West, and Rev. W. H. Stevenson of Clinton, were happily married on the 16th inst. Although she is a resident of Due West, the marriage took place at DeFuniak Springs, Fla., where Miss Addison had entered upon her second year as teacher of voice in Palmer College. The marriage took place in the home of the president of the college, where everything had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, with ferns, magnolia branches and shaded lights. The music of the occasion was rendered by Miss Genevieve McSween, vocalist, with Miss Jordan, teacher of piano in the college, as accompanist. The bride and groom entered the parlor from the president's study, where the pastor of the Presbyterian church, Rev. Mr. Currie, spoke the words that made them one, using the beautiful ring ceremony. The members of the board of trustees and their wives had been invited and were present, together with the teachers of the college. They left soon after the ceremony to spend a few days at Pensacola. The teachers and students accompanied them to the station and the happy couple were showered with rice from every direction.

Miss Addison is an honor graduate of the Woman's College, specializing in music at that college, and also taking a course in voice in New York under Sergie Klihansky, a noted teacher of that city. She taught voice for several years at the Presbyterian College at Durant, Oklahoma. Mr. Stevenson is a well known young minister

MAKE NUTRITIOUS FOOD FROM AIR

Harvard Professor Says Sunlight, Air and Water can be Used to Make Foods. Is Synthetic Article.

New York, Oct. 7.—That nutritious foods can be made from three elements—sunlight, air and water—is calimed by Dr. Winthrop John V. Osterhout, professor of botany at Harvard University, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, who yesterday gave some of the practical results of his recent experiments in synthetic chemistry.

Synthetic food making is as yet confined to the laboratory stage, Professor Osterhout said, but that is usual with most discoveries of this kind. Speaking of this method of producing food he said:

"Analyzing food, we learn that the three chief components are sugar, fats and protein. Until recently it was impossible to manufacture sugar synthetically, but now we have solved the riddle in several different ways. Iron rust, exposed to the prismatic rays of the sun through water, makes formaldehyde, since the rays of the sun, acting upon the rust as a contact agent, mixed with the carbon dioxide of the air, and water, makes this powerful chemical. From formaldehyde certain forms of sugar may be obtained. Other ways of making sugar synthetically are through the employment of ultra-violet rays, radium and electricity.

been to observe the process by which the plant transforms the carbon dioxide, gas and water together into sugar, and later into starch, either of which forms can be preserved. "So much for obtaining sugar. Protein is composed of certain acids. It has been found possible in the laboratory to take the carbon dioxide of the air, water and ammonia, which is also found in the air in small quantities, to form a simple kind of protein. Now, through the combination of sugar and protein, both of which have been manufactured in the laboratory, the necessary fat is obtained, with the resultant nutritious food.

"Of course one of the greatest obstacles in the way of production of food by this method is the present cost of making sugar, which can only be manufactured as yet in small quantities. Our greatest competitor in this important field is the plant itself, which thus far undersells the synthetic method."

Professor Osterhout is interested in the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign to raise $15,250,000 by the first week in October.
