About Your Health

Things You Should Know

By John Joseph Gaiden, M. D.

WITHOUT SURGERY

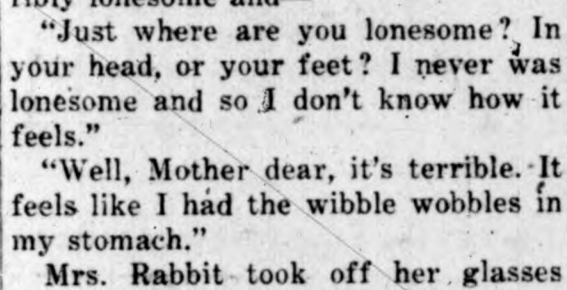

The slogan of the medical charlatan. Knowing the universal dread of operations (and who does not?), the quack advertises blatantly that he relieves many ailments "without surgery." I suppose our versatile miracle-worker would refuse rational treatment, and let a large abscess poison a patient to death, unless kindly nature burst the thing and brought relief and freedom from danger.

"Piles relieved without surgery," greets the eye from most every advertising column. Victims are warned of the dreadful scars left by surgeons; of the fearful hemorrhages induced by the cruel knife! All this, so that he may produce fibrous lumps with his "mild serum-like injections," lumps that remain for years, and are far more of a menace than the "scars" that no capable surgeon leaves.

The actual fact is, no real pile-tumor is ever properly gotten rid of without a minor operation. Suppose the "pile" is a venous one; painful in the extreme, acute, throbbing; who would be so silly as to fool with such a thing with "serum-like injections," when a small incision will turn the clot out at once, relieve the pain immediately, and cure the trouble?

Most piles are varicose in character, and fibrous tissue forms, making the thing permanent, unless removed completely. I have known patients to suffer along a month or two at a time, merely dabbling with a condition that could have been done away with in twenty minutes of skillful surgery.

All of which means that the quack is the costliest investment a sick man can make, paying invariably money in advance. Getting—what?

By Farmer Smith

"Mother, dear—" "Yes, darling."

"I feel lonesome." It was Bobbie Bunny speaking.

"How can you be lonesome when I am here with you?"

"I don't know, Mother, but I am terribly lonesome and—"

"Just where are you lonesome? In your head, or your feet? I never was lonesome and so I don't know how it feels."

"Well, Mother dear, it's terrible. It feels like I had the wibble wobbles in my stomach."

Mrs. Rabbit took off her glasses and looked at her Bobbie in surprise.

"What are the wibble wobbles?" she asked.

"I don't know what they are, Mother, but they are ten times worse than the pigetises and—"

"Have the pigetises got anything to do with pie?" asked Mrs. Rabbit.

"I wasn't thinking of that, but now that you speak of it, that was lovely cabbage-pie we had the other day. It makes my lonesomeness almost gone just to think of that pie," said Bobbie.

"I don't think I have anything to eat in the house, but—"

"Oh, dear, oh, dear! I can feel that lonesomeness coming on again," cried Bobbie.

FARM DEMONSTRATION NEWS

C. B. CANNON, County Agent

More Poultry For Laurens County

It is my opinion that poultry is one of the best side lines in farming that we have. Demonstrations with records kept on the flocks, seven in number, were held last year, and showed $21.15 cash gain above feed cost per bird. This year similar demonstrations are being conducted. In order to make poultry a success there are three things to consider, namely: Breeding, feeding and housing.

As you know, with scrub poultry there is no hope for profitable returns. There is a proper time to hatch poultry in order to have production at the proper season of the year. For dual purpose birds, such as the Rhode Island red and barred rock, should be hatched during the month of March. Egg laying breeds, which are the light breeds, such as white and brown leghorns, should be hatched in the month of April. By so hatching, these birds, if properly fed should begin laying in September and producing the most eggs when they are bringing the highest price. Of course if poultry is hatched out of season the hens produce out of season; therefore they will not be profitable.

In order to produce eggs poultry must be fed, not only a few months in the year but throughout the year. There is very little money in poultry if you have to buy all the feed. Feed can be produced on the farm and fed to the poultry profitably. I might suggest a good laying mash, as follows: 100 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of wheat bran, 100 pounds of wheat middling, 100 pounds of meat scraps and 5 pounds of salt. For scratch feed, two parts of corn and one of wheat; or, one of corn, one of wheat, and one of oats.

As to housing, you need not expect hens to lay eggs profitably when they have to sit in a pine tree to roost during the night. Poultry must be protected from the weather in order to produce eggs at a low cost. Poultry houses can be constructed at a very low cost, if properly arranged. Any farmer may secure bulletins free from this office, and I shall be glad to give assistance also to any one along poultry work.

Lice and Mites

Lice and mites are two insects that infest poultry. You need not expect poultry to do well that has these insects sucking their bodies. Lice may be controlled on the poultry by the use of nicotine sulphate, commonly called black leaf 40, by placing a little of this liquid on the perch poles just before the bird goes to roost at night. This liquid goes into a fume, which will penetrate the feathers, killing the lice. There are two kinds of mites, one that lives on the perch poles during the day and crawls on the poultry at night. This mite may be controlled by spraying the poles and houses with one-half kerosene and one-half old motor oil mixture. This old motor oil drawn from automobiles, or gas engines is ideal for this work. The other mite is known as the scaly mite, which causes poultry to have scaly legs. This mite feeds on the leg of the poultry, underneath the scale. By dipping the chicken's leg in kerosene in the morning about eleven o'clock will kill the mite and causes the scale to shed off and leave the chicken's leg smooth.

The poultry shipment from this county last Thursday was 5,981, which brought a total of $1,337.77, or a net profit to the farmers of $203.73 above the local market. About 125 farmers shipped poultry in this car. It will be my policy for the next few months to ship poultry when a surplus is in the county, and when I can see that I am bringing a profit to the farmers by so shipping.

There is published each month at Clemson college a circular letter on gardening and poultry, giving timely suggestions along the lines above mentioned. Any farmer may get these letters free of charge provided they notify me that they wish to receive them.

The background of architecture and furniture may endure for a long time—for generations, perhaps,—but the accessories of the home change style with amazing frequency.

Pictures wrongly framed or hung too high, with peaked wires; bric-a-brack that is passe, or arranged in a way no longer considered "good"—such small decorative errors as these brand the home as out of date far quicker than do its furniture or rugs.

The sofa cushions, reading lamps and erstwhile library scarf; the decorative screen fittings for the dining room—look to them carefully, for subtle changes have been at work among them, refining, simplifying, making them to the home what her accessories are to the French woman's toilette—seals that stamp the ensemble as up to date, or frankly "out."

Delicious Salmon Pudding

Remove the skin and bones from small can of salmon and rub fish fine with fork; melt tablespoonful butter in cup of hot milk; add one-half teaspoon salt and pepper to taste, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 beaten eggs and the fish. Put in buttered pudding mold and steam for 1 hour. Serve with hot white sauce.

Pays $750,000 Just To Get A Thrill

New York, Jan. 2.—Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and that's big money in any language, has been forked over by William F. Kenny, millionaire New York contractor, so that next summer he might enjoy thrills of being a baseball magnate.

For the $750,000 Kenny, a bosom pal of Governor Alfred E. Smith, receives a fifth share in the National Exhibition company, better known as the New York Giants.

By tossing out that big bag of banknotes Kenny joins ranks with three other baseball men whose desire to experience the thrill of owning ball clubs cost them vast sums.

The three are William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Nationals, Los Angeles Pacific Coast club and the Reading International; Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Americans, and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Americans.

Wrigley leads the list because he has undoubtedly spent more money with no return than any other man in baseball, and probably in the entire realm of sport.

"But don't think for one minute that I regret that $6,000,000," he says. "I wouldn't get out of baseball if it cost me $60,000,000 to stay. I love the game and it has paid me in thrills.

"While I have never received a cent for myself in return for my baseball investment, I have received thrills that money cannot buy."

Alva Bradley sank a fortune in buying the Cleveland club and is spending another acquiring players. Cleveland is still bidding for more stars, so there cannot be much financial regret in that quarter.

Colonel Jake Ruppert so far is the only one of the four who has gotten back considerable of the sums he spent on baseball. Pennant winners and the great batting shows put on by Babe Ruth have caused a golden flow at the Yankee turnstile and the good Colonel has something to show for the fat bankroll he and his former associate, Colonel Til Houston, dropped in buying the Yanks.

What about the FLU? HAVE you had it? Are you going to have it? What are you doing to prevent it? Everybody is asking these questions just now. Doctors say to keep out of crowds; be cheerful; eat good food; get plenty of sleep; keep the bowels open. At the first sign of constipation, take a dose of Thedford's BLACK-DRAUGHT. At the first sign of Flu, that is, when you begin to have a little temperature and feel like you are taking cold, go to bed and call your doctor. You can not cure the Flu on your feet. Prevention, as everyone knows, is better than cure. One of the best ways to prevent catching a cold which might develop into the Flu, is to keep your system free from impurities by using Thedford's Black-Draught For CONSTIPATION INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS
