By Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D., Associate General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association.

International Sunday School Lesson for July 28
THE STORY OF DANIEL
Daniel 1:1-4, 19, 20; 2:17-24

This book which will be studied for three weeks is rich in thrills. Youth is particularly fascinated in reading these accounts which help to emphasize the fact that truth is stranger than fiction. Plan to read all twelve chapters in these three weeks. Portions especially indicated for study this time by the lesson committee are 1:1-2; 2:13-19; 4:19; 7:28; 8:15-18; 9:20-23; 10:1-19; 12:9.

Daniel did not follow the saying which is an excuse for many extras when away from home: "When in Rome do as the Romans do." Had he even observed the example of his own people when back in Palestine he would have followed the base customs of the Babylonians. Here is a lad who was deported as a captive and who held to the ways he had learned in his home back in Judea.

This fine young fellow was soon noted by Aspenaz, the keeper of the eunuchs in the household of Nebuchadnezzar. When the king asked that likely lads be searched out and brought to him for special favor this Jewish boy was chosen, as well as three of his companions. The specifications were a "youth in whom is no blemish, but well-favored and skillful in all wisdom, and endowed with knowledge and understanding science, and such as had ability to stand in the king's palace." At once these four, with others in Babylon, were invited to eat fancy food that was provided at the court table.

Principle asserted itself above the desire to gain a place in the house of the king. There, meats that had been offered to idols would be served. These the Jew must refuse for conscience sake and Daniel does this very thing. He asks that he and his friends may follow a vegetarian diet and drink only water during the coming ten days of preparation. They know that they will be physically better than those who would eat foods that would not be body-building. When the test came it took only a glance to show that the appearance of those who followed the simpler diet was superior.

Then came the mental examination. In this they stood "ten times better" than all the lads of Babylonia whom Aspenaz brought forward. Thus Daniel was well started on the road that led in time to the prime ministry of the country to which he had been carried as a captive.

Farm Demonstration Notes

C. B. Cannon, County Agent

Boll Weevil Continues To Damage Cotton

I believe Laurens county has a more even distribution of boll weevils this year than it has had in years. I also believe that Laurens county has increased poisoning for weevil control several hundred per cent over any previous year. Never before have farmers and business men studied weevil control as they are now doing. As proof of my statement, I have been officially notified that Laurens county has the largest number of Aero dusting machines than any county in South Carolina. This machine is driven by gasoline engine and will cover from 150 to 175 acres of land every 10 hours of work. Up to July 11th Laurens county had 22 such machines. This year 12 three-to-five-row machines have been placed. As to the number of small dusting machines placed I am not in position to estimate, although quite a number have been bought. One concern of this county has bought something over 60,000 pounds of calcium arsenate of one brand.

The county agent is very hopeful from the prospect of a cotton crop that Laurens county now has. There are farmers in this county who are not making any effort whatsoever to protect their crop against the weevil. Looking at this from a business standpoint, it looks like bad business. In the next three to four weeks the fight will be over, the battle won or lost.

In dusting cotton use from 4 to 6 or 8 pounds of dust per acre. Cotton is getting too large for sweet poisoning now, as the weevils have left the buds of the plant and have gone to the squares to feed and raise.

Laurens County Peach Crop

The outlook for peach shipments and prices for this county is the brightest it has been in many years.

An estimate has been made of about 80 cars that will be shipped. We have had this year quite a bit of worms in fruit. The person who has taken care of his orchard, whether home or commercial, is the one who will realize something this year, judging from the daily market reports. I would advise local people to take advantage of the nice fruit in order that they might get their supply for canning in time. These peaches can be bought at any of the packing houses for $1.00 per bushel, general run of culls, or $1.50 per bushel for picked culls, and the U. S. No. 1 peach may be bought on the basis of car prices. There are peaches in the culls that are as good as any peach shipped, but due to being a little soft, or over-ripe it is thrown out and termed as a cull.

Farmers Week At Clemson College August 5-10

Indications are that a large number of farmers and farm women will attend the Farmers Week at Clemson this year. An interesting program has been arranged. This trip will be well worth your time and money. The only expense will be 50c per meal. The rooms will be free, but of course you are expected to bring your sheets, towels, soap, etc.

New Fords still gain. Just read in an automobile magazine that the day for the Ford Motor Co. to build 10,000 cars a day is not far off. June was the biggest month the company has ever had.

It strikes us that Clinton is a mighty good place to live in. What do you think about it?

We have a few good used cars:
A 1928 Whippet Coupe.
A 1927 Ford Coupe.

A 1928 Sport Coupe.
Two 1927 Ford Roadsters.
And a number of cheap cars.

A new bank clerk, dictating, was in doubt as to the use of a certain phrase, so he said to his stenographer: "Do you retire a loan?"

The wistful eyed one interrupted rather sleepily: "No, I sleep with mother."

"Wheah you all bin? Lookin' fur wuk?"
"Man, youah curiosity goin' to git you in trouble yit."

Our washing machine is going good. Bring your car in for a wash and a grease.

REDUCING

For several years now the country has been swept by a reducing craze. Listen to any group of women talking, and invariably the conversation turns to reducing. They are, of course, referring to the reduction of weight, but in most instances reduced health or reduced strength or reduced brain power—and sometimes death—accompanied reduced weight.

That is because women are so eager to be in fashion that they become indifferent and reckless toward everything except what the scales show.

No woman has any right to attempt to reduce her weight until she has learned from experts whether or not a reduction of weight is desirable or safe in her particular case. We are not all alike; some of us require less food and more exercise than others. No one is up to par physically or well formed unless he is carrying around the amount of flesh that his bony structure requires. All women were not intended to have boyish forms or sylph-like grace and it is folly for all women to try and attain them. Often the woman who has decided of her own accord that she is too "fat" actually needs a few extra pounds to give her body the proper contours. I have seen women who were but little more than human hairpins talk about reducing!

But the lazy woman who desires to reduce her weight is in the gravest danger of all—for she is the one who wants to get something for nothing. She wants to get rid of surplus flesh and have a beautifully rounded form and the accompanying vitality without exertion or self-denial. It is women like her who have encouraged men to put on the market expensive, powerful and destructive pills, which guarantee the desired reduction in a phenomenally short time. She might better save her money and buy a mild form of slow poison. Any woman will lose weight quickly if she begins to put into her system drugs designed to right the health-giving proprietaries of good wholesome food.

"Eat all the pastry and candy you want," the reducing pill manufacturer advises. "Let our Sure-Thin Pills do the work."

They do their work, only it is a deadly form of work that often causes nervous breakdowns, melancholia and permanently ruins the digestive powers and assimilation. The vital organs give way next—and often the coveted sylphlike form is borne off to the cemetery in a wooden box. Bath powders in which the patient is told to empty one of the powders into a steaming hot bath and lie there anywhere from half an hour to an hour are equally dangerous. They cause heart ailments and leave the flesh flabby and unsightly.

This is not exaggeration and I am no alarmist; I am citing truths, well known to every physician. The only safe, permanent and satisfactory way to achieve a beautiful figure is through hard work—regular exercise and an intelligent diet, rigidly adhered to, that provides sufficient nourishment to the bony structure of the body. No other method can be adopted without serious danger to health and to life.

SILENT ELOQUENCE

A calm summer day. Overhead, the great sun beams with kingly beneficence. The forest stands with glorious summits pointing heavenward. The grass, studded here and there with wild flowers, smiles its silent approval of everything above and around. A delicate perfume permeates the already sweet atmosphere. Silence—silence everywhere eloquent beyond expression.

It is the teaching of Nature. Even the unlettered may comprehend to fullness. No lexicon is needed to point out hidden philosophies; no dictionary to detail mysterious or perplexing orthography. Only the seeing eye is required, to be able to grasp the grandest of forensic flights, Nature pleading its cause.

A calm summer evening. The moon, blushing at first, rises in her flight, to become magnificent in her bewitching beauty. Listening earth hears through the majestic silence the nocturne, the symphony, the cathedral chimes... the music of the spheres. "The hand that made us is Divine," sing the stars. Sable night sweeps over all—the world has gone to rest. It is all so eloquently convincing, this silent oratory, this concerto. It proclaims with the creation its Great Creator. Close the printed tome with its hieroglyphics that fade with the years! Gaze on the eternal scroll of earth and heaven, and, read the wisdom of the Most High, whose silent eloquence resounds through the ages from the beginning to the end of time!

It is all so true—so beautiful. Doubt and deviation have no place nor part here in presence of the Absolute. I need no lexicon to counsel me; but, upon the stained page of this life of mine, I may write truthfully, "All hail the Infinite, of which I am offspring. Here I pledge my fidelity to all that is grand and inspiring, while I drink in the silent eloquence of heaven and earth that show His handiwork with undeviating, ceaseless fidelity!"

Government authorities tell us that thirty different diseases are transmitted by flies. Any one of these often proves fatal. Flies must be killed. Use FLY-TOX, the scientific product developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Fellowship. It is harmless to mankind but death to all household insects. Just follow instructions on blue label of bottle. INSIST on FLY-TOX with the perfume-like fragrance.—Adv.
