"LADIES NIGHT" A MERRY AFFAIR

Chamber of Commerce Entertains Its Ladies With Feast, Entertainment and Enjoyable Music.

"Ladies Night," an annual event at which the wives and friends of the members of the Chamber of Commerce are always honor guests, took place Tuesday evening in the club rooms in the form of an elaborate banquet and social entertainment that was well up to the past standard, and pronounced by many as the most enjoyable occasion of its kind ever held by the organization. The actual and prospective wives never looked prettier, and the men with great skill and ease, absorbed the excellent viands of the banquet delightfully prepared and served by the local James B. Parrott chapter, Order of Eastern Star, ably headed by Mrs. A. B. Blakely and a large contingent of assistants.

The company, numbering 125, gathered in the reception hall shortly before eight o'clock, and from that time on the evening passed rapidly and was a happy mingling together with good speeches, readings and enjoyable musical selections.

The musical program was presented by James McCravy, Miss Margaret McCravy, and Miss Sadie Riddle, all of Laurens. These talented musicians at once captivated the hearts of their audience and were heartily and repeatedly encored.

The large room used for the party, was transformed into a mass of color and beauty with its fall decorations. The tables were attractively arranged and handsome roses and chrysanthemums added to the lovely setting of the occasion.

Carlton F. Winn, president of the organization, presided, and expressed the club's pleasure in having the ladies present as well as a number of out-of-town guests. The speeches were well received and for such an occasion were neither too frequent nor too long. The invocation was offered by Dr. D. J. Brimm of the Presbyterian college faculty.

After the sweets of the menu had been reached, the toastmaster rapped for order and the evening's program was entered upon. Rev. John McSween, who was not listed on the printed program, was first called upon for a few remarks and his happy impromptu response was well received.

The Rev. F. T. McGill, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Cross Hill, responded to a toast "To the Ladies," and expressed a beautiful sentiment and appreciation of woman's influence and worth in religious, educational, business spheres, and the home.

The principal address of the evening was made by Lieut. Gov. Thomas B. Butler of Gaffney, and one of the state's outstanding lawyers. He selected as his subject, "Where the Money Comes From and Where It Goes," and delivered an address that received and held the rapt attention of all his hearers.

The address of Lieut. Gov. Butler was a striking one on the tax problems of South Carolina, discussing in an intelligent manner, both the direct and indirect forms of raising money for the operation of the state's varied interests. The speaker showed in a forceful way, how the state's revenue is provided with special emphasis on the great benefits and enormous money-raising power of the indirect system known as the nuisance taxes.

The distinguished speaker showed that the greater part of the $10,000,000 appropriation bill is being utilized for educational purposes, both for the public school system and higher education. He made an impressive plea for the education of the state's boys and girls that ignorance may be dispelled that his surrounded and enveloped our people. The spending of money for the education of the youth, in his opinion, was cited as the most profitable investment that can be made. Col. Butler's entire address was an intelligent presentation of the state's financial problems and he was cordially received and welcomed by the large assemblage.

Delicious punch was served during the evening by a number of the lady guests.

Attractive program covers were placed at each plate, giving the list of members, together with the officers and directors. The occasion came to an end shortly before eleven o'clock after an evening of enjoyment and good fellowship in evidence on all sides.

BLUE STOCKINGS AFTER DEACONS

To Meet Wake Forest Next Tuesday In One of Season's Hardest Fought Battles.

Working in a drizzling rain the Presbyterian Blue Stockings began their preparations for the coming game with Wake Forest. The game is to be played at Wake Forest Tuesday, Nov. 19. The Wake Forest team is very heavy and has a fast group of backs. The line will average around 200 pounds while the backs average around 180 pounds. They have a good team, this being shown by their showing against Wofford last Saturday when they defeated the Terriers, 18 to 0.

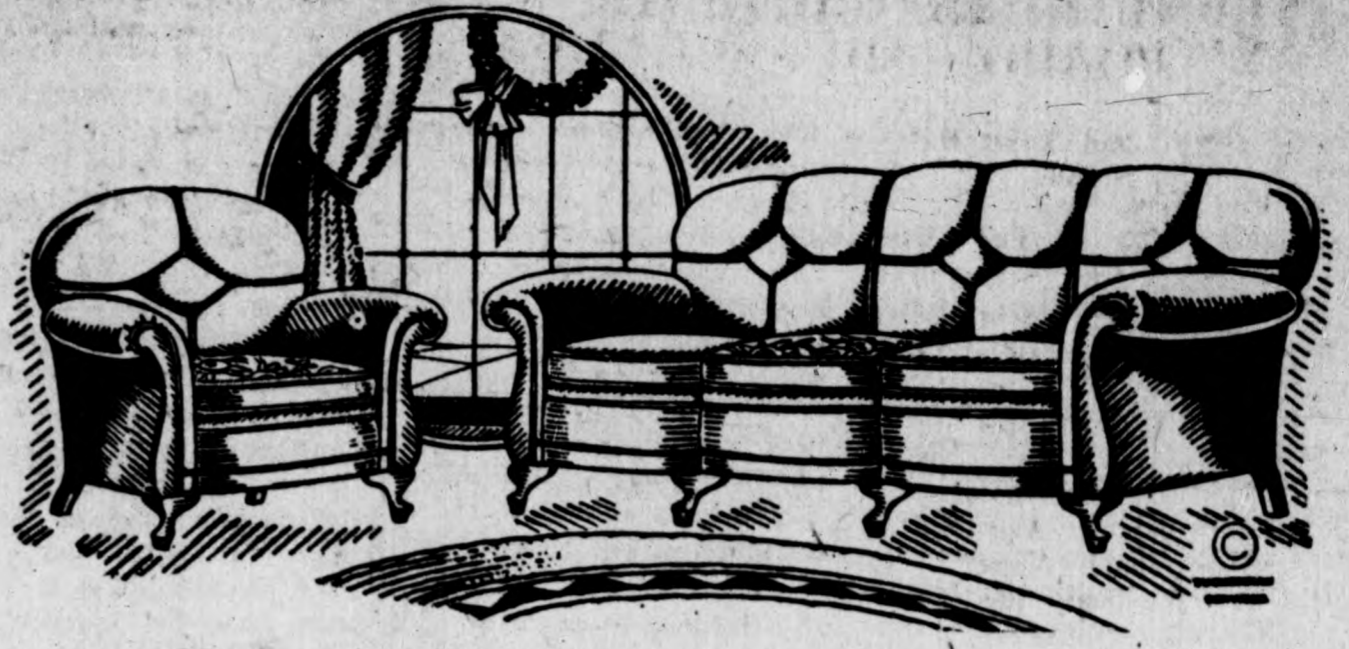

In the past three years that P. C. has played Wake Forest the Presbyterians have been victorious and the Baptists are anxious to win this one. Going into the game as slight underdogs, the Presbyterians know what they are up against and are down to real work. They have been going through their practices with plenty of snap and the Presbyterian followers believe that the Calvinists have overcome their jinx of the past games and will give Wake Forest a battle royal for the victory.

The team came out of the Erskine game with only one injury. "Skeet" Galloway, who played a whale of a game against Erskine, was removed near the end with an injured back but has been improving each day and by the time the game comes around it is hoped that he will be ready to start. Yesterday the team went through a light practice in signal drills. The work was out in a slow rain and Coach Johnson sent the team in early. The team enjoyed a short swim in the new Leroy Springs pool. The pool was opened up for the first time Monday. The pool, a gift of Col. Leroy Springs, cost approximately $50,000 and gives the Presbyterian college one of the best equipped athletic plants for small colleges in the United States. The pool is one of the prettiest seen in this part of the country and the Presbyterians are indeed very proud of this wonderful gift. The pool is supervised by two college boys and open to the students every day and to the public on Tuesdays and Fridays.

For the Teeth

A small amount of powdered pumice mixed with the regular tooth paste or powder and brushed over the teeth every four or five weeks will remove stains.
