

"That man cheats," said a golfer as he entered the club-house. "He lost his ball in the rough and played another ball without losing a stroke."
 "How do you know he didn't find his ball?" asked a friend.
 "Because I've got it in my pocket."

GOOD FORTUNE
 loves me! Good fortune loves me not! Who knows?

Accidents are no respecters of persons! A cook kicked at a cat and spent three months in a hospital. A school principal suffered blood poisoning from a thorn-prick received as he handed a bouquet to a girl graduate! Who knows! Who knows! Who knows!

DETECTIVES

The greatest detective system in the world is the famous Scotland Yard, which is the crime-hunting section of the British government. And the best detectives of Scotland Yard, its high officials say, were born and reared on the farm.

There are several reasons why farm boys make good detectives, after proper training. Robust health and physical vigor count heavily. Farm boys grow up with the habit of observing little things, and most criminals are caught because of little clues which they did not notice. The habit of patient, hard work, without expectation of instant results, is ingrained in the boy on the farm. Catching crooks is mostly a job of patient, hard work.

Most of all, farm boys grow up with respect for law and hatred of crime, where the city boy, observing petty infractions of the laws all around him, tends to become tolerant of crime and criminals.

CATS

Cats of the Isle of Man are famous because they have no tails. Somebody imported long-tailed cats and the tailless breed is disappearing. Manxmen have begun a campaign to revive the old Manx strain by selective breeding. Every farmer knows how that is done.

Eugenists say the same process of breeding up to higher standards should be applied to the human race. Slave owners used to do that. But even if free men consented to external control of their matings, who would set the standards to be bred to? The authorities in charge would quarrel over that. Each group would insist that its own standards were best.

Nature is gradually mixing the human race. A million years from now, perhaps sooner, as international barriers break down more rapidly, all mankind will be as homogenous as the Chinese are today. Then it will be time to consider breeding up to standards on which all can agree.

ROBOTS

"Robot" is the name coined by a Bohemian playwright for a mechanical man who could do everything but think. Engineers and others now use the term for automatic devices which relieve the operator from the necessity of thinking. Inventive science has found ways to build the engineer's brains into the machine. The latest Robot is the gyroplane, full brother of "Metal Mike."

"Metal Mike" is the gyroscopic steering device used on every big ship, more accurate than any human helmsman. Elmer Sperry, its inventor, has built his brains into a similar device for airplanes, which relieves the pilot of all strain except in taking off and landing.

Before long starting and landing will also be under automatic control and flying will be safer than motor-ing is today.

NEW YORK

Without New York City where would the farmer sell his products? New York consumes one-fifth of all the fresh fruits and vegetables shipped in the United States, according to the Federal Bureau of Railroad Economics. Every state except the Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska and Wyoming ships green stuff to feed the metropolis. Some folk believe that the inhabitants of New York are a species apart, concerned only with mysterious financial operations on the stock exchange. As a matter of fact, they are mostly from the farms and small towns and they still have to eat. The more they are concentrated in the city, the greater their dependence upon the farmer.

It is foolish to imagine that New York is not vitally concerned with every measure looking toward the improvement of agricultural conditions.

AUTOMOBILES

An English maker of "baby" cars, with a six-foot-three-inch wheelbase, is starting a factory to make them in America. American roads are now good enough to permit little cars like that to go almost anywhere except across the continent. There are still no through routes from the Atlantic to the Pacific which have not long stretches of dirt, almost impassable in bad weather. If these "baby" cars prove popular, American makers will imitate and improve on them. That is automobile history.

Automobiles were invented in Europe. Gasoline cars were in use there years before any were made in America. Europe had good roads to begin with; roads built to haul cannon over. But European people have had to spend so much money for cannon that they still have no money with which to buy motor cars, by comparison with America.

Laurens Defeats Clinton, 18 to 12

Laurens and Clinton met Friday afternoon in their annual football classic, in which Laurens was the winner by one touchdown. It was a game well worth the while, and was enjoyed by a large number of enthusiastic supporters from both Laurens and Clinton.

The game was played hard by both teams from the first to the last whistle, and lots of thrills were furnished for the spectators. Joe Pitts, Clinton captain and quarterback, made the prettiest run of the game when he ran about 60 yards through the entire Laurens team for the first touchdown of the game. Later in the game he circled end for about 40 yards to cross the last white line, but was called back when his interference cut one of the Laurens boys from the rear. Clinton's second and last score came in the last few minutes of play when McFadden caught a pass, and Boland carried it across.

Laurens made two of their touchdowns on passes, and the other was carried across on hard straight football. The Laurens boys played a beautiful game, in which Jim Little, captain and end, was the outstanding star. Riddle and Norwood also played a good consistent game. It is hard to pick the stars in the line for they all played well, and when it was necessary, held like a stone wall. Both lines were about evenly matched, with the exception of one time when Laurens went through the Clinton line for about 30 yards.

For Clinton, McFadden and Burroughs played well at ends, and Ott and Lawson did splendid work at tackles. Pitts and Boland were the best ground gainers, while Adair was good as a passer.

Laurens and Clinton have been keen rivals for about ten or twelve years, and during this time Laurens has defeated Clinton twice and Clinton was winner in the other contests. Last year Clinton defeated Laurens, 2 to 0.

Creative Merchandising

The Harvard Bureau of Business Research in commenting on department store methods contrasts creative merchandising with imitative merchandising, and we particularly like the term "creative merchandising." It exactly expresses the policy of this store—to buy and sell in an original and alert manner the merchandise best designed to meet the special requirements of our customers.

Redfern Corsette

A FOUNDATION
fit for the
PRINCESS LINE

Now that the waistlines are back and everyone is studying the effect of the new princess silhouette, the most smartly dressed women are concentrating upon their foundation garments. With no hipline belts to hide the stouter women's curves and with the increasing interest in softer lines, careful corseting is more important this season.

Because it is fitted to your own figure, you will have the comfort of this "Redfern" garment and you will delight in the smooth, graceful lines which adapt themselves so perfectly to the new princess silhouette.
