SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D., Associate General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association.

International Sunday School Lesson for December 1
THE CHRISTIAN HOME IN A MODERN WORLD
Luke 2:40-52

The home is the basic institution in the life of the world. It naturally comes before the state or church. Rooming house and eating out, which is part of the trend of the times, is not upbuilding the home. Problems that arise from discord and divorce make the song "Home, Sweet Home" a parody. No matter how modern may be the world the necessity for the old fashioned home continues. Therein was the trinity—father, mother and child or children. The home was God-established, both in the very nature of our being and also in His enactments. As the truths apply vitally to our daily living and future ambitions special attention should be given to the carefully selected passages of Scripture. They are Deuteronomy 6:3-9; Matthew 19:3-9; Luke 2:40-52; 24:28-32; Ephesians 6:1-9; I Timothy 1:3-5; 3:14-15.

No people has honored the home more than the Hebrews. The first Bible selection calls attention to the instruction that God gave about writing the Scripture on the door posts of the home and teaching it to the children within it.

Jesus, the boy, was a product of such a Hebrew home. The Bible rolls were his reading book and he had been faithfully instructed in their content.

At the age of twelve this well trained lad was taken with Joseph and Mary from Nazareth to Jerusalem that he might join in the Feast of Passover. Read the story in Luke for all the interesting incidents. He had learned well during the growing years at Nazareth, and understood the fulfillment that the prophecies called for. He became engrossed in listening to those in the temple who were versed in such matters and soon began to ask most intelligent questions. He was so absorbed that he failed to note the departure of the caravan for Nazareth. But at the call "Come home," Jesus went and the record of the following years in the Nazareth home is perfection: "and he was subject unto them. And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." The golden text is timely: Honor thy father and mother." Eph. 6:8.

Prayer and thanksgiving to God should be features in every modern home, even as was the way in the Emmaus home, to which Jesus walked with two disciples on the day of His resurrection. Problems are granted to meet daily conditions as they arise. A family that prays to the Father together is not so apt to start a family argument.

Clinton High Defeats Saluda

Clinton high school defeated the strong Saluda aggregation Friday afternoon, 14-13, in a loosely played contest, both teams playing erratic ball. Clinton scored both of their touchdowns in the first half, and Saluda scored the same number in the second half. Each team played superior ball during the half in which they did their scoring.

Cooper was a consistent ground gainer for Clinton, scoring the first touchdown and also bucking the line for both extra points after touchdowns. McFadden made Clinton's second touchdown on a pass by Adair, and raced across the goal, working his way through Saluda's secondary defense. Clinton lacked the necessary drive when they were held on the one-yard line for downs. During the second half Cooper, Clinton's fullback, was taken from the game on account of injury, and then it seemed that Saluda could gain almost at will through the line.

Saluda's star was Jenkins, who made both touchdowns and one extra point. He was the best ground gainer for the visitors, and also did some pretty work on defense. Saluda showed little power during the first half out came back in the second, and fought with a new determination, and out-played Clinton during this part of the game, as the scoring will indicate.

Resolutions

J. Isaac Copeland

Seldom ever is it vouchsafed to man to render such an excellent life of service consistently to his Maker, as did James Isaac Copeland.

And when the opportunity of service is offered, seldom ever has man taken advantage of the opportunity more faithfully and diligently than he.

Beginning many years ago in his early manhood he became affiliated with the First Presbyterian church of Clinton; was ever deeply interested in the welfare of his church; never shirking in the performance of his duty, and always ready to bear more than his share of the responsibilities and burdens of the church; so that after many profitable years he naturally and deservedly became known, and was highly revered by his fellow members as one of the greatest pillars of strength of his church. To him: was referred many of the problems of church management, and upon his broad shoulders was laid year after year the principal responsibilities of the church.

Whereas, Almighty God has seen fit to remove from our midst such a noble Christian gentleman, such a willing worker, such a helpful church officer, therefore, we, the Deacons Court of the First Presbyterian church of Clinton, desire at this time to give expression to our feeling of great loss at his departure.

We would in these resolutions publicly express the serious misfortune that has befallen the church upon his removal, and at the same time proclaim the great blessing which his life was to the church, and to all his fellow men who labored with him as officers.

At the present time we would endeavor to offer hope and consolation to his bereaved family, by reminding them of the noble life of service which he lived, and the great contribution he made to the cause of Christ, through active service in his church.

be the first to fail, at an age when it should be at its best?

The answer is, the heart is poisoned from within. Strangely enough, by food—food—useful, necessary food! Eaten at improper hours, in gluttonous quantity. The body is stuffed with heavy proteins at hours when digestion is impossible. I still maintain that the six o'clock dinner-debauch is killing more of our middle-aged men than cancer! The heart cannot obtain its own proper nourishment from a torrent of undigested proteins within the blood-stream from which it must be sustained.

The six o'clock dinner is an assassin that creeps upon its happy victim by stealth—and gets him ultimately. Our pioneers, who knew more than we do, died of old age. Mush and milk for supper is a good prescription—mighty good.

We would also assure his family of the deep feeling of loss sustained by the Deacons Court, who mutually share with the family their bereavement.

At the same time the Deacons Court in an expression of deepest sympathy and consolation would point above to that great giver of all hope, with the thought that "The Lord hath given, the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

These resolutions unanimously passed by the Deacons Court of the First Presbyterian church, are ordered spread upon the minutes of the Deacons Court, with a special page ascribed to the memory of James Isaac Copeland, and that a copy of the resolutions be supplied to the bereaved family, and be published in The Clinton Chronicle.

WORTH CONSIDERING

While the average span of life has been materially lengthened by the splendid progress in medicine and surgery, yet the fact remains that more men of middle age or just beyond are dying in a given period of time than ever before. In fact it seems now that middle-age is the critical period for men. They are found dead in the bathtub, at the steering-wheel, on the golf links, at the desk—and the newspaper diagnosis is usually "heart disease."

It is true that the heart does more work than any other unit within the human being. It lifts from ten to eighteen pounds of blood seventy-two times a minute; multiply that by sixty to give you the pounds lifted per hour by the heart—I think it is something over 77,000! Think of a day—a week—a month—a year—a lifetime! The power of this heart is simply staggering to belief.

Then, when the body is in action—when exercising, or indulging in field sports, the muscular pressure on the blood-vessels is doubled—trebled—and the labor of the heart increased in exact proportion. The heart is actually made stronger and more efficient by wholesome exercise in work or play. Just why should this wonderful organ

Loosening the Grip of Time

ASKING no favors, playing no favorites, time gives to every man twenty-four hours every day.

Nor can one moment be added. To scientific skill and human ingenuity remains the task of making the most of the time that we have. How well these efforts have been rewarded is common knowledge. Today man completes in moments—with a mind free for other duties—work that a few years ago required hours. Modern transportation draws distant points hours closer.

Working hand in hand with each advance—faster than the fastest—is the telephone. Wherever you call—in town or out—you get your connections even quicker than you did last year, much quicker than the year before.

The grip of time is being loosened, but it must be loosened even more to meet the needs of tomorrow. A refusal to be content with present accomplishments is the spur that urges the 23,000 employees of this company to exert their best efforts to make your telephone service faster and better.
