Music Club In Regular Meeting

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. T. D. Jacobs was hostess to the Clinton Music club at her home on South Woodrow street.

Mrs. Robert Wyso, III, president, presided over the business session.

An interesting and enjoyable program on "Romantic Opera" was given, with Mrs. Caldwell Henderson as leader for the afternoon. She gave a paper and played the following recorded music:

Overture to "Der Freischutz" (Von Weber); overture to "Tannhauser" (Wagner); Elizabeth's Prayer from "Tannhauser," sung by Astrid Varnay, soprano; Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" (Wagner), sung by Miss Varnay; Prelude to Act I, "Lohengrin."

Later a social hour was enjoyed and cake, coffee and salted nuts were served. Assisting Mrs. Jacobs as hostesses were Mrs. J. F. Jacobs, Mrs. Bill Shields, and Mrs. Hugh Jacobs. In the living room bowls of ivy were effectively arranged on the white mantel, with long sprays cascading downward.

Henry-Purcell Wedding In Greenville of Interest To Friends, Relatives Here

Greenville, S. C., Dec. 30.—Among holiday events of particular interest in the Carolinas was the wedding here on Tuesday afternoon, December 27, in McKay Memorial Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church at which Miss Mary Etta Henry, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clemson Henry of East North Street, became the bride of David Craig Purcell, son of Samuel Mitchell Purcell of Salisbury, N. C., and the late Mrs. Purcell.

The double ring ceremony at which the Rev. W. Kirk Allen, Jr., of Greenville, Texas officiated, took place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon following an elaborate program of nuptial music in which two of the bride's former teachers, Mrs. John G. Young and Wendell Keeney, director of music at Furman University, took part. As Miss Henry, a gifted pianist, the bride has occupied a prominent place in the city's musical life, and was at the time of her marriage president of the Crescent Music club.

Mr. Keeney played his own arrangement of Bach's "If Thou Be Near," a composition which the great composer wrote for his wife, and also the beautiful Chopin "Nocturne in F sharp minor."

Mrs. Young played the wedding marches and also the accompaniments for Mrs. William P. Barton, soprano, who sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Greig, just before the arrival of the bridal party, and also Barnby's wedding hymn, "O Perfect Love", at the close of the minister's prayer.

The musical prelude, which began twenty-five minutes before the ceremony hour, opened with some chamber music played by Mrs. Marion Fowler, cellist, and Lawrence George Nilson, organist and choirmaster at the First Presbyterian church. Their numbers included: "Through The Years" by Vincent Youmans; "Ari For The G String" by Bach; "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond; "Ave Maria" by Bach-Gounod; and "Intermezzo" from "Cavaleria Rusticana" by Mascagni.

Mr. Nilson also accompanied Jack Snoddy, tenor, who sang "O Promise Me" from Reginald de Koven's opera "Robin Hood."

The vows were taken against a background of bridal green and white. Back of the pulpit, the wall was draped from the ceiling with altar cloth over which ivy was laid. This was centered with a sunburst of white gladioli interspersed with woodwardia fern. At each side, potted palms were effectively mixed with native greens. The place where the couple stood was marked by tall ornamental baskets also filled with gladioli. And back of each of these was a seven-branched candelabrum whose white tapers shed a soft light over the lovely scene. The special pews were marked with bouquets of (Continued on page seven)
