Notes From The County Agent's Office

By C. B. CANNON, County Agent

Nickles Buys Irrigation System
Dr. M. B. Nickles, Laurens, has bought an irrigation system and tested it out just before the rain a few days ago.

The system is what is known as low pressure system, requiring approximately 60 pounds of pressure at the pump and 35 pounds of pressure at the end of 1900 feet of pipe. The sprinklers attached along the pipe will cover an area at one setting of approximately five acres, delivering approximately one inch of water per acre on the five acres in about three and one-half hours of operation.

The pump delivers approximately 39,600 gallons per hour of operation. It requires approximately 28,000 gallons of water to put one inch of water on an acre of land. One big factor in irrigation is the supply of water.

Dr. Nickles owns a farm in the Lisbon community, producing beef cattle of the Hereford breed. Dr. Nickles is hopeful that this question of dry weather is solved for the future, in so far as growing grass for his cattle.

Veterinarian From Turkey Visits County

Miss Gursel, a graduate in veterinarian from Turkey, was a visitor to Laurens county on December 10 to study the Laurens Cooperative Artificial Breeding program in operation here in the county. Dr. Victor Hurst, Associate Dairy Husbandman, Clemson College, accompanied Dr. Gursel on the inspection trip. Dr. Gursel will spend several months in the United States, studying livestock programs before returning to her native country. She was an interesting person to talk with, and we feel honored in having Laurens county selected to visit.

While here in the county, James Adair, Technician for the Artificial Breeding Association, showed the visitors through the laboratory and discussed the program in general. Dr. Hurst, under whose supervision technician work at Clemson College, spoke highly of Mr. Adair's work, and also of James Jacks, Asst. Technician, who took training at the same time Mr. Adair had his training.

The lady from Turkey thought it was very fortunate for livestock producers of Laurens county to have an opportunity to use the breeding program offered them. The bulls used in Clemson College Dairy herd are the same ones used in the breeding program carried on in this county.

A technician is on duty seven days each week to meet calls for the association. No one will be on duty however on December 25, which is Christmas Day. The breeding fee has been reduced to seven dollars. Both dairy and beef type bulls are used in the breeding program by the association.

Control Turnip Leaf Spot By Rotation
Farmers and merchants complain about leaf spots on turnips. This leaf spot has caused a ragged appearance of turnip greens and in many instances has rendered the greens unsalable. The disease damage is more serious on unrotated land. Market gardeners and others will do well to rotate turnip green patches. A certain amount of evidence indicates that sprays or dusts will be helpful, but main reliance should be on rotation.

New Vegetable Garden Circular
Clemson College Extension Service has published a new circular No. 389 titled, "Home Garden Information for Piedmont South Carolina," that deals only with gardening in this area, and is free at the County Agents' office to any person calling for same.
The circular deals with the recommended varieties of vegetables, time of year to plant seed or set plants, amount of seed to sow in 100 feet of row and space of rows, and distance in drill. Also information in control of diseases and insects.
Root-knot is a problem to many gardeners, but can be controlled rather satisfactorily by the use of chemicals.
The root-knot nematodes (small worms) enters the roots of plants and remains in one place in roots for its entire life. This injury cause galls or knots to form. These kind of knots should not be confused with legume nodules which are caused by beneficial nitrogen-fixing bacteria.
Root-knot is found on tomato, okra, collard and cabbage roots, and many other plants. The plants affected with root-knot are first noticed as lack of vigor in its growth. In many cases, the affected plants wilt, followed by defoliation and in severe cases dying of the plants occur.
There is a material known as DD or Ethylee Dibromide that is applied to the soil as a liquid that kills the small worm through fumigation. The directions of the manufacturer should be followed for best results.

Extension Circular No. 382 titled, "Control of Root-Knot and Other Nematodes," gives detailed information on the control of root-knot. The pamphlet may be had free at the County Agents' office.
