Hot breads like these crunchy corn meal muffins are an excellent accompaniment for hearty whole-meal salads.

Crisp, nourishing salad bowls are always welcome at lunch or suppertime. Serve them with freshly-baked Corn Meal Muffins, and you're sure of a meal that's pleasing, celorful and satisfying. Hot muffins, spread with melting butter, are not only fine eating, but also complete the nutritional pattern of a salad meal. Euriched self-rising corn meal gives your family food iron, calcium and the three essential B-vitamins.

This appealing meal is easy to prepare, too. You can mix Corn Meal Muffins in a hurry with self-rising corn meal. Milk, eggs and melted shortening are the only other ingredients needed. The leavening and salt have already been blended into the corn meal. Pre-heating the muffin pans is an important step—do it while you mix the batter. It will give each muffin a golden brown crust, that's delightfully crisp and crunchy.

CORN MEAL MUFFINS

CORN MEAL MUFFINS 1/4 cup melted shortening 21/2 cups enriched self-rising corn meal 2 eggs, slightly beafen

1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons melted
shortening Place 1 teaspoon melted shortening in each muffin cup. Set nuffin pans in very hot oven (450°F.) 5 to 10 minutes while reparing batter. Blend eggs into corn meal. Add milk and mix nutil smooth. Stir in the 2 tablespoons shortening. Fill hot muffin ups almost to top; bake in very hot oven (450°F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 12 medium-size muffins.
