This is the car stolen in Athens, Ga., Monday, and abandoned at a Clinton service station about 1:00 p. m., when two 17-year-old boys fled the scene after stopping for gas. Two Georgia Car Thieves Captured Here With Auto

After a chase that extended over a wide area south of the city, Clinton officers and two local men captured two young Georgia automobile thieves Monday afternoon.

The chase extended from Sanders Service Station (formerly Dees' Station) on Highway 72 to and through the Lakewood subdivision about a mile away.

Arrested and brought to the Clinton jail were Larry David and Ronnie Sorrow, both 17 years of age, of Athens, Ga. David was said to be on probation in Georgia on a breaking and entering charge.

Held also was a Chevrolet Corvair, said to have been stolen in Athens earlier in the day.

Clinton police turned the boys over to Georgia officers, who came for them Wednesday.

The sequence of events started about 1:00 p.m. when the boys drove up to the Sanders Station for gas. While the gas was being put in the car, one of the boys walked away. The other boy explained to the station attendant that the first boy had the money for the gas and he would go get it. Joining his partner, both boys set out at a fast pace across nearby fields, leaving their car at the station.

Harry Baldwin, local man who happened to be at the station, called Clinton police. Baldwin and E. T. (Curly) Bryant, another local man, in one car, joined police in the chase, it was stated.

Local officers at the scene were Assistant Chief W. B. Blakely, City Officer J. T. Ellison, and Sheriff's Deputies Arthur Dunaway and Ralph Riddle.

One of the boys was overtaken and captured by Blakely and Ellison, it was stated, after several shots were fired, and the other was taken by Baldwin and Bryant in their car when they met him on a road in the Lakewood area and told him to get in the car. He offered no resistance.

In the meantime, local officers called State Law Enforcement Division headquarters in Columbia to send bloodhounds. They arrived at about the time the boys were taken into custody.

Power Off Sunday In Clinton Mill Area

Due to necessary maintenance work on the electrical power distribution system, it will be necessary for the power in the Clinton Mills area to be off approximately three hours Sunday, July 12, beginning at 5 a. m.

This work is necessary to correct a condition at several places caused by overloaded circuits, mill officials state.

A widespread sewer and water main extension program is underway in the city that will bring service to users of city utilities in four areas of the city.

Work in one section, started earlier in the year, is virtually complete, while work in other sections will continue until late September or early October, it was stated by city officials this week.

The areas of the city where extensions are underway include Bond Street and vicinity (northwestern area), Oak Street (off West Carolina Ave.), South Bell Street, Calvert Ave. and extension where an outfall line will be constructed to a lagoon to serve the southeastern section of the city.

A pumping station will also be built in the northeastern area with a line to connect with the outfall line in the southeastern section. This will replace a septic tank in the northeast that is not functioning properly.

The sewer line and 6-inch water main for Bond Street was let to a separate contract earlier this year and is completed, but residents cannot connect to the line until a new outfall line in the area is constructed to the present collection station. That work is currently in progress, officials stated.

The State Highway Department is expected to rebuild Bond Street and hard-surface it before the end of the year.

The Bond Street contract was let to E. T. Rhodes Co. of Newberry at a cost of $11,212.95.

The balance of the work is being done by Spartan Construction Co., of Spartanburg at a contract price of approximately $22,000.

The work is being financed by a $125,000 revenue bond issue, approximately $80,000 in federal funds, and some $45,000 in city surplus funds.

Besides the work going on in the city, the task of grubbing and clearing of 22 acres of the lagoon site, approximately two miles to the southeast, is currently underway. The lagoon itself will cover 12.5 acres, which, with clearing, earthwork and equipment, will cost about $75,000.

Bids Accepted for Construction Of Three New Buildings at College

Low bids totaling $1,695,023 for three new buildings have been accepted for Presbyterian College's largest construction program in history, President Marc C. Weersing announced today.

He said work will begin immediately on a new science hall, dining hall and PC's first women's dormitory. Triangle Construction Company of Greenville was the low bidder on the general contract with a figure of $937,000 for the three structures. Separate contracts also were awarded to the Sanitary Plumbing and Heating Company of Greenville for the heating, plumbing and air-conditioning work and to Utility Sales of Greer for electrical installations.

The cost of the science hall will total $748,760; the dormitory, $478,420; and the dining hall, $432,943; with $97,000 earmarked for contingencies and other equipment.

President Weersing said the three buildings will be erected simultaneously and will be ready for use by September, 1965. They are to be situated together on a newly formed east plaza at the present site of the intramural fields, with the science hall at the head of the plaza and the other two buildings on the sides facing each other. Exterior construction will follow the colonial Georgian style of architecture in keeping with the present campus pattern. All three will be air-conditioned.

The placing of the science building at the head of the new plaza directly behind the present dining hall will necessitate the immediate removal of two of the three Verville apartment buildings and the closing of Holland Street where it runs through the campus area. Approval already has been given to close the street here, with traffic to be routed on Liberty Street. The third Verville structure will be removed when the science hall is completed.

Completion of the women's dormitory, to be known as Clinton Hall and to accommodate 122 girls and a matron, will usher in a new era of full college education for Presbyterian College. Dr. Weersing said the plan is to fill the dormitory gradually over a three-year period to assure a balance of resident women among the classes.

The new dining hall will provide for a capacity more than double that of the present facilities. Cafeteria-style serving, with two service lines, will be able to accommodate approximately 1,500 persons during the interval of each meal. The actual seating capacity will be 450 in the main dining area, with two private dining rooms of 25 each capable of being adjusted to provide a single private room to seat 50.

Dr. Weersing pointed out that these three new buildings were the main objectives of the 1962 capital funds campaign conducted by Presbyterian College throughout the Synod of South Carolina. Subscriptions for these buildings and for endowment additions now total just over $2,000,000, of which the local Clinton area provided $317,000 for the women's dormitory.

Dr. Weersing said initial plans called for $1,100,000 to be expended on the three buildings, but construction costs and expansion of the plans in some areas brought the total to $1,695,023. He added that efforts already are underway toward raising the additional funds needed for this purpose.
