Dobbins and Abercrombie to Vie for Senate Culbertson and Taylor Nominated for House

Second Race June 28

Close races in both State Senate and House of Representatives contests in the Democratic primary Tuesday in Laurens County will force a recount of ballots to determine the final outcome.

The recount will begin this morning (Thursday) at 11:00 a. m. in the city hall at Laurens, as ordered by the Democratic executive committee, members of which will do the actual counting or supervise the process.

Dobbins in Lead

For the State Senate, incumbent Senator William C. Dobbins took the lead to enter the second race on June 28. His opponent apparently will be Marshall W. Abercrombie. As the vote now stands, he is two votes ahead of King Dixon. The final standing for second place will be determined by the recount.

The vote in the Senate race was: Dobbins 2161; Abercrombie 1367; Dixon 1365. The other contestant, Hubert W. Graydon, with 1061 votes, was eliminated.

Culbertson To House

W. Paul Culbertson, with a substantial majority, definitely gained nomination for one House seat. For the other House post, David S. Taylor was apparently nominated, with a 15-vote majority over Thomas A. Babb. This was the other race that forced a recount. Paul Brown, the fourth man, was eliminated.

The House vote was: Culbertson 3608, Taylor 2893, Babb 2878, Brown 1781.

State Races

Laurens County, along with the rest of the state, gave former Governor Ernest F. Hollings a substantial majority over Senator Donald Russell for the U. S. Senate two-year term. The vote was: Hollings 3914, Russell 2185.

For the six-year U. S. Senate term, P. Bradley Morrah received a big majority over John Bolt Culbertson. The vote: Morrah 4482, Culbertson 1413. Hollings will be opposed by Republican Marshall Parker in the November general election. Morrah will be opposed by Republican Strom Thurmond in November.

Florida Court Approves Seaboard-ACL Merger

Jacksonville, Fla.—A three-judge federal court approved Wednesday, June 8, the merger of the Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard Air Line Railroads.

The court, in a lengthy opinion, denied an injunction sought against the merger by the Florida East Coast Railway, the Justice Department and railroad unions.

The court previously had sent the case back to the Interstate Commerce Commission for further study but the Supreme Court said the federal court should make the decision.

The Justice Department had opposed the merger on grounds it would create a monopoly and was against the public interest.

The railroads said they would save more than $20 million a year with the merger and this would enable them to improve service, reduce rates and eliminate many grade crossings.

The ICC approved the merger in 1963 but the three-judge court ordered the commission to re-study, it giving more weight to the effects of the Clayton Anti-Monopoly Act.

It was then that the high court sent it back for further review.

The Justice Department contended the ICC gave primary consideration to the fact that the merger would save money, despite the fact that both railroads were in good financial shape.

In its 38-page opinion, expected to be appealed to the Supreme Court, the three judges said: "Since the ICC correctly applied the proper standards and thus exhibited the familiarity with the complex problems in the transportation industry which Congress anticipates the ICC would achieve from its particular experience, we must and do sustain its order."

On the panel were Judge Richard T. Rives of the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and district judges Bryan Simpson and William A. McRae, Jr.
