

THE WATERES MESSENGER

CHAS. W. BIRCHMORE, Prop. Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Camden, S. C.

Wednesday, August 28, 1935

No diet has yet been devised to reduce a fat head.

Hollywood cameramen, too, are always aiming at the stars.

Two people can really live as cheaply as one if both are on relief.

Tolerant people concede the right of others to make fools of themselves.

Usually the fellow who drives fast isn't going anywhere in particular.

We learn from the experience of others that we seldom learn anything from the experience of others.

THE DECLINING YEARS

Nothing is more tragic than poverty stricken old age.

And nothing, especially in these times, is more prevalent.

Something like seventy per cent of men, once they reach the age of retirement, find themselves without money sufficient to provide for the needs of life. To subsist, they must accept public charity, or become burdens to their relatives and friends.

Many such men were once wealthy. Many more earned comfortable incomes during their working years. Some managed to create sizeable estates only to lose them. Most of them made some kind of an attempt to guard against the exigencies of the future. They failed. They can look back now and see the mistakes they made—and feel the bitterness of futility. In most cases it is too late to mend.

Those disastrous examples should be pondered on by men in young and middle years. They have a chance to avoid the pitfalls that caused the downfall of so many of their elders. Today the ways are open to them whereby they can create an estate, on the 'easy installment plan'—an estate that will exist when they need it most, and that will not have been wiped out by a calamity they could not foresee.

Through life insurance, annuities, trust funds, and similar methods, thousands of men are preparing for a self-sustaining and independent old age. They can look forward to the declining years without fear.

STAMP OUT THE DEFICIT

Now that Congress is in a scramble over ways to raise more money and cut down the deficit, it isn't well to pass up this one.

It seems that the Postoffice department sold from March 15th to June 15th, around 1,600,000 worth of a special series of stamps.

Now these weren't ordinary stamps. They weren't perforated and they were not gummed. They were never meant to go on letters, and no postman has had yet to walk a mile on account of them.

They were sold to collectors who put them in albums. There is something in stamp collectors that makes them buy such stamps and keep them. The rest of us will never know what it is, but its there.

Now the profit to the government must have been around 1,500,000. That means that this performance only need be repeated about 18,000 times to pay off completely the public debt.

Talk about living by taking in one another's washing! All we need to do is become stamp collectors and buy one another's stamps.—Sumter Daily Item.

METHODIST UNITY

A joint conference of three principal branches of the Methodist church, held recently in Evanston, Ill., another plan for bringing all three into a single reunited body was proposed, and is believed to have good prospects for success.

The three branches concerned are the Methodist Episcopal Church (Northern branch), the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church. Their union would bring into the United Methodist Church, the name suggested for the new body, about eight million communicants, 20 million constituents, and property valued at about one half billion dollars. It would be the largest Protestant denomination in the United States.

There would be more than 35,000 churches, with 29,000 ordained ministers and about 19,500 local preachers. It is estimated that the operating budget of the United Methodist Church would be about 100 million dollars annually.

Efforts to bring about such a union have been made for many years without success, but the 45 commissioners who participated in the latest joint conference are optimistic over the present outlook. The new plan would require ratification by the general conferences of the three branches concerned before it could be put into effect.

EQUITABLE REGULATION AT LAST

The bill providing for regulation of trucks and buses in interstate commerce has passed both branches of Congress and has been approved by the President. No fanfare of trumpets accompanied its passing or signing, and it did not 'make' the headlines. But, from the standpoint of general welfare, few pieces of legislation passed by recent Congresses can compare with it in importance.

The bill does not penalize the bus and the truck. It simply places their regulation within the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has strictly regulated railroads in every phase of operation. It puts all carriers on the same equitable basis, so far as regulation and federal supervision is concerned.

The bill's passage will produce two immediate results, both of which are of vital public interest. First, it will make it possible to control and eliminate the so-called "wildcat" bus and truck operator, with improper equipment, inadequate insurance, and no sense of responsibility that falls upon those who transport persons and goods. In this way it will be of immense benefit to established, well-operated truck and bus systems, which have been greatly damaged by the irresponsibles within their industry.

Second, it will give our greatest single industry—the railroads—a fair chance to compete for business. Railroad purchasing will increase, more men will be put to work, schedules will be speeded up, new construction will be undertaken and every worker and investor will feel the good effects.

Passage of the bill is one step toward clearing up the chaotic transportation problem. Changes in such outmoded measures as the long-and-short-haul clause of the Transportation Act are also sorely needed.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better.
