

Camp Hilton News

By I. Grostein

We can say, without any serious contradiction, that our camp, officially known as Veterans camp number four, of Blaney, S. C., is a fully self contained FERA encampment. The various crafts of our artisans and our diversified professional list make it unnecessary for the employment of any outside help in the maintenance or administration of this veteran city.

Our state director, Colonel James H. Palmer made an unexpected call at our camp last Wednesday. He found very few men in camp as most of them were out on either the Camden or Hermitage Mill Lake projects. He complimented the rest of the men on the 'ship shape' condition of all camp buildings and facilities. When the noon mess call was sounded Colonel Palmer sat down to a luncheon of cold cuts with Lieutenant D. W. Powell and chief of works, J. Randolph Little, surrounded at the other tables by the men remaining in camp and those brought in from the mill dam project by the bugler's recall. Our state director liked the idea of feeding the men remaining in camp the same fare that was sent out, in sandwich form, to the Camden projects. Thus all eat alike and the evening meal is the "big" meal of the day.

Our superintendent and his first assistant, Captain Edward R. Denny and Lieutenant George A. Middlemas, respectively, were not in camp during the Colonels visit. They were in town making purchases of work and camp supplies and attending administrative matters.

We have lost one of the best baritone voices of our vocal symphony, Archie E. Poindexter. Mr. Poindexter, whose official assignment was that of driver on the heavy duty Ford, left us on Friday for a brief stay at the Mountain Home in Johnson City, Tenn., where he will have his tonsils removed and otherwise undergo a general physical examination.

We take this means of thanking your FERA leader, Jack Nettles, for making the necessary contact between your correspondent and your editor for the establishment of this column. This is a real good-will medium and Mr. Nettles meant it to be so. That's the true spirit of reconstruction.

The first lady of our camp, Mrs. Edward R. Denny, made a second visit to our camp this week accompanied by Eddie, Junior, and the delightful Miss Ellen. Captain and Mrs. Denny are to be complimented on the genuine pride they show in our camp. Eddie, Junior, has gotten to be a real favorite among the men and Ellen's personality has endeared her to her fathers command.

There is music in the air here tonight. Our musical symphony causes our radio to remain unused. Our vocalists are Jimmy Devore, Wayne Hightower, Charles F. Jeffers, George I. Johnson, Andrew F. Pitteroff, Ernest C. Swann and Thomas A. Wright. They are the ones who started the symphony. They have us all singing now. Some day we will all insist on a solo by Lieutenant Powell.

Paul W. Buchanan, the "trouble-shooter" of our garage has put another Ford into service. We believe that the "modest" Mr. James L. McKenzie had something to do with it. The reason your columnist mentions Mr. McKenzie is that he has known him in Florida and whenever your correspondent came around with a pad and pencil, J.L. was nowhere to be found.

A true intelligencia has been noticed in the camp and yet the persons we are about to mention have never made claim to fame. Indeed, there is much wisdom in the air when such men as Louis Knable, Olie R. Broce, Hugh G. Holson or M. O. Pederson find time to say anything.

Our "amen" corner is usually held down by such amiable convivial conversationalists as our "top sergeant" Thomas J. Gray, barrack 2's section leader, Bill Hightower, Doc Gay James Hall, Pop Stafford, John P. McKenna, Chief Clerk Richard W. Lindsay and Owen J. Hearn. These men can discuss baseball, fishing affairs of state, favorite dishes religion and politics and not a voice is raised in anger. "Amen" is right.

Sports Gazing

By Lawrence L. Prince

It seems a pity that Wilmer Hines can't get some where in the tennis world. Most South Carolinians seem very anxious for him. Well, that is only natural as we all know he's from Columbia. We would like to see one of our boys in big time tennis. From all accounts he seems to have improved very much, but he still is not recognized as his friends would like to see him.

Bennettsville sure did put out a cracking good American Legion baseball team this summer. The youngsters from the small town surprised everybody by beating Columbia in a two out of three series, and the boys from the Capitol City were last years state champions. Watch these boys because they are all under seventeen and still in high school. All other C class high schools in the state should take warning for these boys are going to be plenty hot and are going to give the other teams plenty to worry about for the next two years.

Football is gradually taking the place of baseball talk among the sport fans now that the first hint of fall is in the air. Some of the colleges in the state are planning some surprises when the season opens full blast. Among the interstate teams the race is going to be a colorful affair from the way things look now. It looks as though 'Dizzy' McLeod will lead his Furman boys through to the state championship, and getting Clemson out of the way will be his main difficulty. What McLeod's car is with the situation at Carolina is a mystery. He has the material and if the boys aren't too lazy he ought to make good. Walter Johnson at P. C. is always a threat. The dark horse will be The Citadel. Their imported freshman team has year mopped up every thing in the state. 31 and 37 are going to be Citadel's big years but for this season it looks as if the battle is going to be between Furman and Clemson with the odds on Furman.

From all reports the Camden Bull Dogs are going to be bigger and better than they were last year. The team will miss greatly the services of Capt. John Flowers and several others who have graduated but the team, during the approaching season will be led by Elmer Nolan. They are all looking forward to a brilliant season under the direction of coach John Villepique who has led them successfully through many campaigns. The boys went on their annual camp yesterday and at that place will start training. Within a dozen days they will all be back and we will get the first notion of who's going to be what on the team this year.
