

ABLE CHARGE OF JUDGE PRINCE TO GRAND JURY

tie angels with full fledged wings and are ready to resent any punishment inflicted on them for infraction of the rules of the school. They believe their children are so truthful that they never tell a story, whatever other people's children may do. It is the children of such parents that give most trouble in school. Those that are well disciplined at home rarely need it in the school. No wonder lawlessness prevails to such an extent with such ideas prevalent in the land. There are very few children which do not need whipping at some period of childhood. If parents will not permit their children to be flogged they should not be allowed to attend school.

Trustees in every school district should visit the schools at least once a month and should not be put on the board if they will not give the time to it. "When I was a trustee," said the judge, "and I heard of a parent complaining about his child being mistreated, I at once insisted on his going into the school room, seeing the teacher's management and talking with the teacher." Parents should not take the child's side but should hear the teacher's side also. I have been a child and I have also been a teacher.

"You may not have parents in Kershaw county who always take up for their unruly children, but we have them in our county. They are mistaken in their ideas, they are literally ruling their children and the poor siliest don't know it." In some counties the teacher has to ride around and hunt up the trustees to sign his pay certificate because they never meet as a board. There are some schools in the state where the trustees delegate the election of teachers to the patrons.

"It is your duty to look into these matters and where you find trustees neglecting their duties you should present them for inefficiency and misfeasance in office. You should see to it that your superintendent of education is doing his duty. He should be able to take up any text book used in any school in the country and hear a class. If you have such a superintendent of education in your county I am sure you are not paying him enough.

It is a sad commentary that there are very few male teachers in our public schools because of the meagre salaries paid them. Most of the teachers are girls between the ages of 18 and 23, because after 23 is a calling as much so as the min- they get married. School teaching is the work of moulding and shaping the characters of our children should not be left to inexperienced hands, yet very often we leave such important work to mere novices, just out of college. We employ a skilled architect to erect our homes, yet often leave the character building of our children, which is vastly more important, to careless, untrained teachers. Winthrop and other colleges in the state, while affording good training for them, cannot make teachers. God alone can give them the faculty. Pedagogy cannot be learned out of books alone—experience also is necessary. Neither Winthrop nor the University of South Carolina can turn out teachers ready made.

The judge spoke of the training of a dozen or more of South Carolina's prominent men, such as Calhoun, Longstreet and Judge Burt, by that noted teacher, Dr. Waddell. The secret was that that great teacher was consecrated to his calling and this is the kind of teachers we should have and must have in South Carolina. If our men and women of tomorrow are to rise to the standard that has been set in the past, just think of it! We in South Carolina are only paying $3 per year per child for education. No progress can be made on this pitiful sum. Your fathers and mine paid from $30 to $40 a month for our education. Competent and well-trained teachers should be paid $100 per month. What our schools need is more money and more common sense.

The grand jury should inquire how many white children of school age are out of school. It is true we have no compulsory attendance law but if some parents were presented for not sending their children to school the very publicity of their neglect might bring about good results, though they could not be punished for it. I have not said anything about the negroes because it is needless to say that they are industriously educating their children. They need no compulsion.

His Honor touched on the morals of the county being in the keeping of the grand jury, mentioning particularly the crime of adultery, especially among the whites.

His Honor touched on the illicit selling of liquor; those blind tigers who are selling the "rot-gut stuff" containing poison which is slowly killing the people for the sake of a few paltry dimes. He characterized them as worse than assassins. "Go after them," said he. "Of all men I despise most the blind tigers. It is time to call a halt on them. Go after them without gloves."

Captured a Quantity of Cider.

Rufus Gaskins, a negro who runs a small store just north of the Seaboard passenger station, was arrested last Tuesday, charged with selling cider that contained too much alcohol. The arrest was made by Constable Sinclair and Chief of Police Whitaker, on a warrant caused by the complaint of another negro who claimed that his small son had become drunk by the stuff. The officers captured five kegs of the cider containing all told about 45 gallons.

Lost Valuable Animal.

One of the fine mules shipped here some time ago from Baltimore, as the property of the Standard Oil Co., died Monday from lockjaw. The wound on the animal's foot was caused by a small cut from the shoe of its mate, and no attention much was paid to it. The animal was valued at about $300.

Rev. Palmer C. DuBose, missionary to China, and his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Bessie Zemp, of Camden, are expected in Camden in a few days. Mr. and Mrs. DuBose left Camden for the foreign field immediately after their marriage several years ago, and this will be their first visit here since then.

Miss Rebecca Nelson, who has been spending some time in Sumner, has returned to Camden to spend a while here.

BELIEVES IN PROGRESS.

Writer Thinks Camden Should Have New Theatre Building.

If Camden has any possible chance of obtaining a new opera house it behooves her to grasp the opportunity. We have about the poorest opera house which a city of Camden's standing could have. Do you think that the choice guests from the North with whose visits Camden is honored would find pleasure in visiting frequently, or would be able to spend hours of enjoyment, in the dusty, rickety, opera house? Or do you think that our home people are any less choice or they should be less well provided for?

Is the passage of theatre-goers down Main street going to materially benefit the city, or any industry in it? A few cents might be added to the sale of soda water, chewing gum, and cigarettes. Is the city so dependent on such sales as these that the smallest amounts have to be taken advantage of? If so, shame on us!

It has been asked if we are ashamed of the business street. If we are not there is no patriotism or city boost in us. The lower part of Main is lined with the most unlovely, dilapidated, and untidy buildings to be found anywhere. In bad weather we are deluged by mud, in fair weather we are strangled with dust, and if we tended closely our health we would go about Main street with a towel over the nostrils, for the lack of some kind of pavement.

Is the city poverty stricken? No, just as many fine automobiles run on our streets as the streets of other cities our size. If she were, is there any excuse? No, Camden is visited by wealth every winter.

Does any progressive citizen regret that the dilapidated old hotel has given place for an improved postoffice. If so, that person deserves no improvement.

What we were proud of when the Clyburn block was built we should not be proud of now. With time we should progress. Our ideals should not always be the same, but should rise.

Is the good of the city to be considered, or the good of Rutledge Street? For the good of the city, the opera house and city hall should be in the center of the town, the best part of the town, not in the lower part.

We have not been able to move to Spaulding all at once, because the mills of the gods grind slowly. But it is well for us to move there. The conditions favoring our health are many times better in that section than down by the river and lower Main. Let lower Main die in a good cause and become a rich cotton field like the block where the old Cornwallis house was. Are we working for the interest of the few people "hanging out" there, or are we working for the city as a whole. The city now borders Kirkwood. Are the interests of Kirkwood not as important as the interests of lower Main?

Build the more stately mansions, O my home,

As the swift seasons roll!
 Leave thy low-vaulted past!
 Let each new temple, nobler than the last,

Shut thee from Heaven with a dome more vast,

Till at length thou art free,
 Leaving thine outgrown shell by the turbulent water's edge.

"Seven Hours in New York."

Much care has been bestowed upon the scenic and electrical equipment of the popular musical play "Seven Hours in New York." The first act, showing the interior and partial exterior of Merrill Lee's home, is rich in the lavish display one would expect to see in a rich man's home. The second act represents a summer garden belonging to an estate, with a lovely view of a summer resort in the distance. Both scenes are triumphs of the scene painter's art, and both acts are enhanced by the effects produced by electricity. "Seven Hours in New York" will be seen at the Camden opera house Monday night, March 16.

Stereoptican Lecture.

On Thursday, March 19th, at 8 p. m., a stereoptican lecture on the Panama canal will be given in the auditorium of the Camden Baptist Church. This lecture will be copiously illustrated with a set of one hundred slides and bids fair to be exceedingly instructive as well as entertaining. In the light of the widespread national interest in the Panama canal, which is the most wonderful engineering feat in our day, not a single person in Camden ought to miss this lecture. Admission is free, but a free will offering will be taken to defray the expenses.

WORK ON POWER PLANT.

Delay is Caused by Failure of Seaboard to Build Siding.

A Chronicle man Tuesday afternoon accompanied Mr. Ed. Harrison, of the Tucker & Laxton Co., over the site of the water and light plant now being erected by the Commissioners of Public Works for the City of Camden. The work is well under way, except for the delay caused by the failure of the Seaboard to place a siding near the main power plant. To haul the material this distance by wagons from the depots would cost a considerable amount per car, and as this is out of the question the work must necessarily be delayed, which is costing the company and the city a considerable sum.

Excavations for the foundation of the main power station to be located near Spalding Junction have been made and all is ready for the placing of the foundation that have been held up by the railroad. A force of hands under the superintendency of Mr. Fondell are now at work on the auxiliary pumping station located on the edge of Dicey's creek, at the head of the old Factory Pond, where will be placed the pumps to be automatically started from the main power station. Here is being built a cement basin which is fed direct from the stream, and in turn will be forced to the main power plant the water passing thru three separate filters, insuring absolute purity. From here the water will go to a standpipe located on the highest point of Jumelle Hill, affording an excellent pressure in case of fire.

By the end of the week poles will have been placed on all streets north of DeKalb, and it is expected the wiring will be begun in a short while.

Leading from LaFayette Avenue to York street, and from Market to Church on DeKalb street the city will have a white way, the equal of any city in this section. Lights will be placed every 200 feet on each side of the street, erected on ornamental iron stands which will contain five lights each. These lights will be manipulated by an automatic time switch, which will be set to burn until the business hours are over, then they change to the arc lights.

The foreman's attention was called to the kick made by the Civic League in cutting the trees in order to wire the streets. The men say that they are used to this—that they get this handed to them in every town. But state that they always try to do as little damage as possible to the trees.

Store Building Sold.

The large two story store building on Main street, occupied by the Enterprise Mercantile Co., and formerly the property of the Villepique estate was sold this week to Capt. L. L. Clyburn, of DeKalb.

The sale was made by the Bank of Camden thru the real estate agency of Kennedy & Shaw. The price paid was $9,000. We have not been able to learn what the new owner intends doing with the property.

Teddy Should Have Been Thrown.
 The huge elephant belonging to a small circus, which exhibited at Lugoff last Friday, and which passed thru Camden Saturday, escaped from its trainer when near Hartsville Wednesday and was killed by excited citizens who fired nearly 100 shots into the animal. The beast was valued at $6,000 and a heavy loss to the show.

A New Advertisement.
 Attention is called to the new advertisement of Springs & Shannon appearing elsewhere. They at all times carry a large line of farm supplies and heavy merchandising.

Tomorrow is the last day for the shooting of quail and the sportsmen will likely take advantage of the day.
