HOME HAS GROWN SO STILL
Just the way of it somehow—
The way of yesterday—
The way of the world crooked now
And all the kids are away.
When they're having a grand time,
When they're plain and hill,
When the streams to wade and trees to climb,
Home has grown so still.

is still in every room,
about in the hall,
each rings out across the gloom,
as go happy call,
the silliness welgins on me,
I am filled with care,
at the baby's shriek of glee;
but her tumbled hair.

ly creaks in the midnight gloom,
and the far stars blink,
let me hear across the gloom,
why, me 'ants a jink!"
gladly I would rise and go to get the drink and to be roused from slumber so as he hugged up to me.

to hear the songs of spring;
the nights of June
the wild bird is on the wing
all the world is in tune.
I love better far the fall
in the north winds do blow,
on their laughs are in the hall,
then they love me so.

Picture Pleased Many.
The offering at the Majestic Monday evening was "Southern Justice" a five reel Blue Bird feature. The large audience was greatly pleased with the production, and it will be gratifying to the theatre-goers to know that Manager Little has secured this service regularly every Monday evening. The next on the program of Blue Bird features will appear next Monday evening entitled "Bringing Home Father" This company puts more expense in the play than they do in hiring high salaried stars and the productions are nearly all excellent.

McDowell—Bradford
At 9:30 o'clock on last Tuesday morning, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McDowell Miss Mary McDowell was married to Mr. Harry L. Bradford, of this city. The ceremony was a very quiet one, only the immediate families of the young couple and a few friends attending. Rev. F. H. Harding, of the Episcopal Church officiated. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a brief trip to points in North Carolina, after which they will return to Camden where they will continue to reside. Mr. Bradford has lived in Camden for about three years holding a position with the Southern Railway at this place.

Woman's Service League.
The regular monthly meeting of the League was held on Sept. 1st at the Grammar School. The reports from the several detachments showed all comfort kits completed and about four hundred carboltized shirts made and shipped during the past month. The next work taken up by the League will be knitting articles so much needed for the soldiers. As twenty young men have been drawn from Co. M., and sent to Mineola, L. I., with the Engineering Corps preparatory to being sent to France in the near future it was decided that some wool be purchased with funds now in hands of the treasurer of the league and sweaters sent to these boys of our home Company. Should they not be furnished in time they will be sent where most needed. Some of the detachments are interested in getting a box of clothing to be sent to the devastated region in France through the Overseas Relief Division of the National League. Should anyone care to contribute towards this needy cause the garments will be gladly accepted.

ADVANCE NEWS OF FASHIONS

Conservatism Is The Keynote of Present Wearing Apparel.
New York, Sept. 11.—"Fashion will out" is a new adaptation of an old saying that is perfectly true these days of strenuousness. Fashion has ever shown herself to be an everready ally of patriotism, and it is with the slogan of "Preparedness, that she has advanced ideas for the fall wardrobe of the Woman Patriotic.
The windows along Fifth Avenue are filled to overflowing with all the latest designs of the Fashion world. There are smart dresses to be worn on the street without a coat, there are stunning coats, and there are suits to please the most fastidious. So, you see, we can all plunge into the planning of our wardrobes with the assurance that the styles of early autumn are ready for our inspection.
Conservatism is the keynote, conservatism developed to the nth degree. A charming example was a blue serge and satin dress I saw the other day. The narrow skirt was of satin, with a tunic of the serge slashed in the front. Instead of a collar, there was a band of white Hercules braid following the line of the surplice closing. This square meshed braid takes the exact shape of the bias collar, making it especially suitable for this use.

When the Tunic Points the Way to Slinness

The side drapery and the straight silhouette are still battling for supremacy. The long tunic is particularly smart for the walking costume. The beige serge dress illustrated here is stunning, each detail being so carefully worked out as to make a perfect whole. The long tight sleeves are quite a feature this autumn. The novel shaping of the collar, the use of tassels instead of buttons, and the touch of embroidery on the skirt, all make for that distinction so eagerly sought by the woman of taste.

Just at present there is quite a vogue in Paris for naming the suits and dresses after prominent Americans. Wilson, Pershing, Roosevelt and Lincoln have all been so honored. In the lovely new collars decreed by Fashion they are quite irresistible. Gray, in every shade, is fashionable. Smoke mist, steel, chinilla and the gray browns, such as castor and beaver, are the dominating colors for street costumes. Muntion gray, rust brown, and terra cotta are especially smart. I saw a charming dress, at one of the big hotels the other evening, of champagne-colored jersey cloth combined with raven-blue satin. Indeed, the softness of the vivid autumn colorings is one of the most striking things about the present mode. Of course, our national colors are displayed everywhere, but not so obviously as at first. We are using a great many of the discreet shades of red and blue, so that one need not go dressed as the American flag in order to "show one's colors."
Everything is beaded, from slippers to hats and back again. It is not really surprising, for the effect gained by a handful of beads in harmonious colorings against a somber background is delightful. Tube-shaped beads are the latest arrivals. Sometimes the formality of a belt is entirely dispensed with, these tube-shaped beads simulating a belt and buckle. Iridescent beads, bronze green and green purple, made a simple little frock of dull green crepe de Chine quite marvelous. Braiding and embroidery promise to play as important a part in the scheme of things this year as last.

Strike Breakers Beaten.
Chattanooga, Sept. 7.—Street car operatives left their cars in a body promptly at 6 o'clock tonight. Cars were left standing at points where they happened to be at the strike hour with the exception of Market street, a police order having changed plans of strikers to this extent.
Serious disorder broke out immediately following the street car strike, the first car sent out with strike breakers being assailed and the men badly beaten up by sympathizers. Three of the injured strike breakers were rushed to the hospital.

Fine Pears.
Linnae Harris, a well known colored farmer of West Wateree, has the thanks of The Chronicle for a dozen of the finest pears we have seen this season.
