

First Sunday Morning

Race Church Will Have Evangelistic Services

The Rev. Charles D. Kean of Kirkwood, Missouri, will conduct a four day preaching mission beginning Sunday at Grace Episcopal church. Services will be Sunday morning at 11:15, and will continue through Wednesday evening at 8 p. m. These evangelistic services are completely open to the community, and will be free of denominational bias. Familiar hymns will be sung and emphasis will be on preaching and teaching Christian active parish minister. He was formerly a professor of history and philosophy at Springfield College, in Massachusetts. He is author of numerous articles and reviews in papers and magazines. Recently he wrote the chapter on "Communism, Collectivism and Christian Freedom" in "The Christian Demand for Social Justice," published by the Joint Commission on Social Reconstruction and edited by Bishop Scarlett in 1949. Mr. Kean was a newspaper man in Providence, R. I., from 1930 to 1934 before entering the General Seminary in New York City. He was for several years assistant minister at St. George's church in New York.

An unusual feature of the preaching mission here will be the opportunity for informal questions and discussion which will follow each service. The preacher will be on hand to explain and, if necessary, defend his presentation of the Christian message. Mr. Lines commented that "Intelligence without emotion is barren; emotion without intelligence is childish. Both are needed for the growth of the whole Christian personality."

Episcopal church has sponsored great evangelistic missions in New York and throughout the country, when many thousands of people filled the great cathedrals in those cities. Local Youth Tells Of Benefits From Easter Seal Sale

Do you know Donald Hunt? He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hunt on Walnut street. Donald would like to tell you a little about himself and how the Crippled Children's Association is helping him in the hopes that you will give more generously to the Seal Sale so that other children can be helped.

Donald will be 14 years old next week. He was born with spastic palsy—or cerebral palsy as it is now called. Because of this he can't play football, baseball, or run and jump on the playground as other children do. Too, he's very slow of speech and this trait made it rather difficult for him to keep up with his classmates in public school.

Through assistance received from the Crippled Children's Association Donald now has a private tutor and so can continue his schooling. But that's not all—by attending the Junior League School of Speech in Columbia, Donald will receive help in speeding up his speech and so may be able to re-enter public school at an early date. Mrs. Hunt had a letter from the director of this school and will receive an appointment to take him to the school in the near future.

Because there are other children like Donald needing specialized attention, which they can receive through the Crippled Children's Association, won't you return your envelope with a generous donation and remember to look for the coin boxes which we have placed in business establishments, theatres and eating places in Camden and throughout the county?

From Bach To Boogie

Wofford College Glee Club Sings Here Thursday Night

Everything from Bach to Boogie will be in store for Camden music lovers Thursday night, March 30, when Wofford College's 60-voiced male glee club comes to town. Lining up under the direction of Professor Sam Moyer, the touring college singers promise to run the musical gauntlet from hillbilly "Careless Hands" to Willy Richter's inspiring anthem, "The Creation."

The club's appearance Thursday night will be before a host of friends and admirers won in last year's Camden Concert. The 1949 appearance is still remembered in Camden as one of the all-time outstanding glee club concerts.

The glee club is being brought to Camden under the sponsorship of the Lytleton Street Methodist church. There will be no admission charge or offering taken at the concert.

This year, the sacred portion of the concert will include such favorites as Bach's "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee," Adams' "The Holy City" and Cadman's "At Dawning."

Two folk-hymns, the Latvian "My God and I" and the negro spiritual, "Let My People Go" will also be featured during the first portion. The climax to the sacred program will be the presentation of Richter's classic anthem "The Creation," which is based on the first four verses of the Bible.

After the intermission, the club, if they adhere to last year's practice, will return outfitted in white dinner jackets and wine bow ties to set the mood of light, foot-tapping music that the second half of the program will feature.

Beginning with "The Rangers' Song" from "Rio Rita," the singers will swing into the lilt of "Mah Lindy Lou," and from there into the rhythmic "Temptation," with Pete McClimon as tenor soloist.

Jack Seiler, hot-licks drummer who will be remembered from last year's intermission number, and Benny Case, a new addition to the club, will appeal to the lover of "modern" music with an interlude aptly entitled "A Study In Rhythm."

A capacity audience is expected to take in the entertaining program.

WHY YOU SHOULD INVEST IN CAMDEN ACADEMY

OPENING SEPTEMBER 1950

1. We believe that your investment will earn a nice return.
2. We believe that your investment will be well protected.

YOUR INVESTMENT EARNINGS

1. We believe—and our belief is based on testimony of experienced prep school men recently in Camden—that since we already have such fine facilities ready for us, Camden Academy will prove to be a solid financial institution, even the first year. We believe that within two or three years, the number of cadets at Camden Academy will assure its continued success. Our headmaster knows HOW and WHERE to enroll cadets.
2. We believe that within five years, Camden Academy will have at least 200 cadets. This will mean approximately $200,000 spent in and around Camden by the officials for Camden Academy and its operation. This does not include the $2500 spent by the cadets, the faculty, or by the relatives and friends who visit Camden Academy. All these additional $2500 will help every business, every resident of our community.
3. We believe that Camden has everything that a community needs for a successful boys' school. These experienced prep school men visiting here recently were enthusiastic about the possibilities. We have in Camden, a nationally-known winter resort; fine climate; main-line railroad; principal North-South highway; fine airport; fine hotels; excellent golf; nationally-known horse and polo events; substantial, friendly people; the "right size" community—"not too large, not too small"; and we are close to large cities—Columbia, Augusta, etc. "Camden is a 'natural' for a boys' school," declares the man who will be our headmaster.
4. We believe that within five years, every Camden Academy stockholder will have received a substantial return on his investment. We believe that in the years to come, Camden Academy stock will be hard, and costly, to buy.
5. We believe that you, as one of our stockholders, will enjoy the satisfaction of being part-owner of every brick and plank, every tree and blade of grass of Camden Academy, and that you will feel justly proud of helping build "the men of tomorrow from the boys of today."

YOUR INVESTMENT PROTECTION

1. We now own 25 acres of level, pine-studded land, three miles from Camden, west side of U. S. No. 1, north. (Look for the CAMDEN ACADEMY sign.) Drill field, athletic grounds, could be used—TODAY.
2. We now own nine buildings, with two more under lease. Also concrete outdoor swimming pool. Included are: Recreation building—which with its pine-paneled interior and large rooms is alone worth many times our investment in the entire property—hospital, barracks, mess hall, class room, living quarters, etc. The kitchen, with tile floor, has large hooded stove; four refrigerators; baking ovens; steam tables; storage rooms, etc. Barracks have complete, double, bath and toilet facilities between each two rooms. Each building has its own heating plant. All buildings in excellent condition. They could be used—TODAY. Replacement value, well over $300,000. Actual cost, $20,000, giving a large margin of excess value.
3. An experienced, well-qualified headmaster has been engaged from the list of several applicants. He has already resigned his present position with one of the largest prep schools in the country, so that he can start with us this summer. This man thinks so well of Camden Academy's future that he insists on being allowed to buy some stock with his savings.
4. The people who have already invested in Camden Academy are your friends and neighbors. They are "hard headed," practical, business men and women of this community. They invested only after they had the full details. Now, they are enthusiastic; they are giving freely of their time and energy to guarantee the success of Camden Academy—both now, and in the future.
