He is Visited by "Cousin John"

Thrusher-A Snake Story. Cousin John Thrasher came to see us the other day and made us proud For it is no small compliment for a man like him to ride five unles on a ot higgie over the price in filling dirt road in hot weather to do us honor and show his regard. He dident stop long, for he is always in a horry, and so just before leaving he said he warted to go down to the spring and dip up a drink of pure water. I went al department looks for a crop down with him and kept a little ahead 0,000 bales, as against 5,714.052 I stept down off the log that was close er. This estimate is bused on by the spring, and Uncle John stert received on the first of the down just behind me, and be stept Whatever the crop may prove high and he stept far, and hollered there will be a market for all of 'snake.' Sure enough I had stept over de prices ; for the consumption | the varmint-a big, rusty moccasinworld is fully keeping pace with and he made for a hole in the rocks the. The rest of the world is and we lest him. Cousin John dident gless cotton, and the increased get over it for several minutes, and had to get down and blow, for he is ici show that the production of awfully afraid of snakes. It is mighty ctured cotton goods is doubled hard on my wife, for snakes are her wenty years. The population everlasting horror. If we kill one on sorld is not increasing at that the premises, she siways declares there is another close by, and if we kill two each year more cotton goeds she says there must be a den of them, and so there is no way to pacify and make her calm and serene. Call is getting to be a right smart chunk of a boy now, and bankers, after a guo, les, or one-half more than she and so the other day I told him we would go bunting snakes. I gave bim i be nothing in the situation to the small gun and I took the big one, age our people. They will be and we meandered slowly along the buy ments and flour and corn branch, and sure enough he spied that same big moccasin down below the spring sunsing himself on a plank and I he was a member because it was congot him a rest and cock ed his gun, and | trary to their constitution for a Demohe took a trembling aim and fired and banded over to history, there killed the beast, and he was the proudest boy I think I ever saw. We killed four on that exeuraton, and now he dent want to do anything but hunt snakes and swells up and struts round with his new importance. We killed a rattlesnake's r flot over in the field and of the city banks. It may be ten young ones came crawling out of ber mouth. It is snake time now. This hot, dry, dusty weather makes them travel around in search of food, and you can see their wormy, equirmy track across the road most every day. en the south needs it, and a The books say that snakes that lay eggs are non-vonemous, and those ! that give birth to their young are venomous and that none but the latter ever allow their young to run in and run winter trade promises well, and out of them. But they are all the same cotton crop has been turned to me, and I let none escape if I can ey, that money will of course help it. Our mortal antipathy to snakes

> My wife, Mrs. Arp, loves to go down to the spring house and see after the milk and superintend the churning, and she is proud of the rich cream, and prouder of the batter, and I dont want any of these insidious perambulating reptiles to interfere with her perfect serenity. I love the buttermilk. the pure cold buttermilk that she prepares, for I know it is nice, She called me down to the spring house yesterday to show me how much nice yellow butter she had made at a double churning. Of course I complimented her with gushing and uxorious language, and when she told me to go to the house and look on the pantry shelf and bring ber down the bowl of salt, where-with to season the butter I went with alacrity and brought it and I watched ber ss she sprinkled it all over and stirred it in with the paddle. and is course of time she concluded to taste it and see if it was salty enough, and I pever will forget the lost and lamented look she gave me as she exdalmed. We are preparing to go into winter quarters now. My wife has called my respectful attention to a few broken window glass and a leak in the roof and a brick or two that are loose in the chemney back, and she has mentioned that another pair of blankers will be useded, for the grand children will be coming out, and she says that my flannel shirts are getting old and dilapidated; she always looks after me bless her heart, and I always look after her, bless my beart, too, for ehe wort ask for anything and I have to alk to the girls and find out what their mother needs. If she ever asked me for anything in her life I dont know it, and I reckon the reason is I dent give her a chance. She has got things in that big old family trunk now that I have done forgot I ever bought. Winter is coming and I am glad of it. I do so love the cheerful blazing fire in the family room and the children sitting around and Mrs. Arp in her accustomed corner and the good, warm carpet on the floor and the rich fat pine by the closet door to kindle the fire in the morning.
