A married lady complained to a friend a few days ago that "THE PEOPLE was occasionally too hard on the fair sex." We beg to inform her that the fair sex has been uniformly and unanimously hard on the editor. Revenge is sweet, especially when eaten cold.

The Barnwell Five Cent Store is now in full blast again. It is receiving fresh goods every day of all kinds. Go and see them and if they do not sell you everything cheaper for the cash down than any other store in the county do not call again.

At a commencing last year, when a family returned to their tent after the morning service, little Jimmie informed his mother that a certain young lady had been to the tent while the others were all away. The mother remarked: "Well, Jimmie, you should have entertained her." "I did," said Jimmie, "I showed her the looking glass."

The Republican Congressional Convention for this District met in Aiken on Saturday, S. E. Smith, mail agent, and E. J. Dickerson, preacher, were candidates for the nomination, which was given to the latter on the second ballot. He is a Baptist and about 26 years old, but after the election he'll not know who, where or what he is.

The tax books will close on the 20th inst. unless there should be an extension of time. The times for collecting should be changed by the Legislature to later dates when money is more plentiful. The condition of the State treasury will justify a longer extension than has been given heretofore and early notice of it would be comfortable to the tax payers and creditable to the powers that be.

Two weeks ago we noticed the arrival at Barnwell of Messrs. Knight and Cummings and their families, who have come to make their homes among us. That is the kind of immigration our State needs and we hope they are but the advance guard of a growing exodus from the North. The Northern soldier ravaged the South but the emigrant from the North who invests his money and becomes a citizen of our section will help to build up its waste places. They are welcome. Mr. Knight will, we learn, start an extensive nursery in Red Oak township and as he is thoroughly conversant with the business will deserve an extensive patronage. Mr. Cummings is a civil engineer and will no doubt find ample employment for his talents in the development of the new enterprises that will come as certainly as the seasons of cause and effect.

Some Dons.—Farmers are crowding their cotton to market.

Messrs. D. M. and J. J. Johnston have planted near 200 bales on their steam saw.

Edno and Williston will unite in orange blossoms soon.

Everybody who could get a conveyance went to the Sunday School Convention at Rosemary on Sunday.

The trustees are making arrangements to open the Academy soon on a solid basis.

AN EXPLANATION.—Deacon Landy Holman of the Miller Springs colored Baptist church has interviewed us relative to the account of his treatment in a church conference, published in a late issue of THE PEOPLE. His version of the affair is this: "The moderator wanted me to make an explanation and I didn't want to say anything and I told him so, but he said I must and then I rose up and said to him that the man who carried the statement to him was a liar, and he told the deacons to rise up and lay hands upon me and cast me out because I wouldn't stop talking when he was the occasion of my beginning. But they didn't beat me with boards; no sir, they couldn't have done that; but they took me up and sometimes they had me held up as high as my head, and then they would slam me on the backs of the benches and on the floor, and they tore my clothes most of and they threw me out of the house just like folks throw a hog out of a pen, and I believe they would have killed me if two brothers hadn't helped me in my tribulations, and now they've had my name printed as an odious rascal in the papers and its all the work of a low downed nigger, but his name isn't Landy Holman." Bro. Holman wears the appearance of a used up man.

BLACKVILLE.—Mr. W. J. Martin gathered last week from three-fourths of an acre of upland 50 bushels and 17 quarts of corn. On two acres of new swamp Mr. J. J. Whaley made 160 bushels of corn. The land was broken three times before planted and the cultivation consisted of one ploughing and two hoeings.

Mr. J. F. Williams left for Texas last week and Mr. L. W. Williams, his brother, will follow this week.

The Blackville Reading Club will meet tomorrow evening at Mr. H. L. Dieffenbach's.

Cotton shipments up to September 30th 2236 bales.

Mr. Robert Hall of Texas is visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. P. Strobel. Fifty-five years ago when only 17 years old he went West from old Pendleton District. With him were 110 other emigrants from Kentucky and Tennessee, all of whom are dead. He served under Sam Houston in the Texan war for independence and was also in the Mexican war and "the late unpleasantness between the States." For forty years he was engaged in fighting Indians and while he would fire from his block house upon the savages his wife would hold the bullets for his true rifle. Before returning to Texas he proposes to revisit his birthplace but does not expect to meet any one whom he knew in his boyhood.

The following is a true copy of an ecclesiastical proclamation posted and which we publish for public information and instruction.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Editors as a class are fond of giving advice. It is expected that they shall be posted on all subjects from millinery to machinery, and to the credit of the profession they are usually equal to the demands (in that line) made upon them. With a clear conscience we undertake to-day to volunteer some information which will be of service to our subscribers, delinquent and otherwise.

Our first exhortation is that every man and woman indebted to this office should pay up within the next thirty days so that their names may be blessed in the sight of the printer. Next, when that is done and your other debts are satisfied, before you begin to spend whatever surplus you may have consult our advertising columns and decide to buy from the live men who advertise therein and who mean to do business instead of sitting down in the back parts of their hermit-like stores, composing lamentations on the dullness of trade and prophecies of the everlasting panic that is at the doors. If you go to Charleston stop at the Waverly House, where you will find capital accommodations and all the delicacies of the city markets. Before beginning business walk round into Market street and get Thos. McG. Carr to improve your feelings by the use of scissors and razor and you will agree with us in voting him a first class "tonorial artist."

Next go to D. Bentschner & Co's, and see Mr. Archie Armstrong and the gentlemanly proprietors and clever clerks and buy a suit of clothes that will fit you and no crylonze your pocket book. Buy a few of Hoffman's excellent cigars and go down to Mr. R. J. Morris and buy for the good wife one of his superior cooking stoves, or if you have one already buy an oil stove and you will find it the best promoter of domestic harmony that ever entered your house. If you are a young man and want a present for your sweetheart go up to McIlreath's and you will get something that will help out your courtship and influence the maiden mistress of your affections to name the happy day. If you are fond of amuse and want one more organ than nature gave you do not fail to visit C. Gill & Son, who will sell you anything in their line at christian prices. For groceries go to see Bob Esterling at Biechoff's, and if he don't sell them to you it will be because you have enough at home. Don't leave town without calling on C. G. Leslie, the kind fisherman, who always catches fish and customers and who, unlike all other fishermen, never tells a thing that's not so. As for dry goods it will be best to wait until you come home and then with your whole family go to Liebman's, at Graham or Bamberg, where the prudence of the better half will save you from bankruptcy which, but for her presence, would overtake you as you bought bargains after bargain from the Dry Goods Synagogue, who, not content with former triumphs, is trying to bring all the treasures of trade to ELKO, S. C., Sept. 22nd, 1884. Editor People: The citizens in and around this place desire to ask their noble and energetic temperance brethren through the columns of your valuable paper why it is that since they have worked so faithfully to "dry" the towns in Barwell county they do not enforce the law they sought after and obtained. We are reliably informed that every town in the county, except Elko, sells as much whiskey now as before the county went dry, and if it is thought that some sell even more. I do know that the trade that belongs to Elko, and that has always remained here, now goes to Blackville, and when asked why they go to Blackville now they unanimously reply: "We can't get the whiskey we want in Blackville and can't get it here." Whether this is true or not we cannot say; but we can say they always come back with their pockets empty and themselves full of something that ties their tongues and tangles their legs. Now we hate to charge our sister towns of so violating the laws of their State and we will not do so, but if these reports are true, temperance brethren, why not let all sell whiskey or none. —OSCEOLA.
