At 12 o'clock to-day the convention was called to order by T. E. Miller, of Reanfort, chairman of the Executive Committee. He explained to the convention that by its action to-day it would be made possible for the party either to hold many more or none at all in the next decade. He thought that the privilege of voting solely an electoral ticket was not sufficient compensation for the dangers the Republi-can voter encountered, and he did not think it was sufficient to keep these voters together. A negro did not care to be shot for the fun of voting for Blaine and Logan. He said the call for a convention included all mankind in South Carolina who stand in opposition to men who defraud ignorant tenants and laborers, and outrage and oppress the voters of the State. The Republican party, he claimed, was composed of the laboring men, and it is these who make a State great. The dry Blaine and Logan ticket not being sufficient to rally the Republicans in ed numerous affidavits to prove that South Carolina, he urged the nomination of a full State ticket, and intimation of a full state ticket, and the sta ed that unless it was done the party would be eternally dead. The voters ty, and he appealed to the convention were learning that they could not look about for home protection and they can only get it by struggling to regain the floor, he said, not only to put him-control of State affairs, and the hope of self right personally, but, as county doing this would arouse great enthu- chairman, to defend the Republican liasm in the rank and file of the party. party, which had been besmirched He hoped the convention would Ostendorff, of Berkeley, read the
