

KERENSKY IN FLIGHT.

Revolutionists Under Lenine Overturn Provisional Government.

The following was printed in the daily newspapers last Friday:

Petrograd again is in turmoil. The provisional government has been thrown out of power by the extreme radicals headed by Nikolai Lenine; Premier Kerensky has fled the capital, several of the ministers have been placed under arrest, and the winter palace, the seat of government, has been bombarded by the guns of the cruiser Aurora and of the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress and forced to capitulate to the revolutionists.

A congress of the workmen's and soldiers' delegates of all Russia has convened in Petrograd and will discuss the questions of organization, of power, peace and war and the formation of a constitutional assembly. A delegation has been named by the congress to confer with other revolutionary and democratic organizations with a view to initiating peace negotiations for the purpose of taking steps to stop the bloodshed.

As yet the details of the disorders which followed the assumption of power by the radical element are meagre, but it is known that from its moorings in the Neva the cruiser Aurora fired shrapnel and solid shot against the winter palace for four hours with the guns of the great fortress and machine guns stationed in front of the palace keeping in accord with the salvos from the warship. Desultory fighting also took place at various points inside the city. It is possible that the casualties among the citizenry were slight.

Reports as to the whereabouts of Kerensky are various. Some of them say that he has sought safety in Moscow, while others assert that he has gone to the front in an endeavor to obtain the backing of the troops to forestall a debacle of his government.

200,000 Backs Kerensky.

Paris, Nov. 11.—A wireless dispatch from Haparanda, in Sweden, near the Finnish border, says that Premier Kerensky has 200,000 men supporting him.

The wireless message which escaped the censorship of the Bolsheviks by being sent from Haparanda, says Premier Kerensky left Petrograd on Tuesday night for general headquarters, being concealed in the bottom of an automobile ambulance. It is understood he was accompanied by Gen. Alexieff, former commander-in-chief, and by Foreign Minister Terestchenko. The ambulance was stopped, three times by Maximallist patrols as it was leaving the city.

"Premier Kerensky now has 200,000 men devoted to him," the dispatch continues. "It is believed he is going to Moscow to reestablish his government there and march on Petrograd. This possibly may be unnecessary, however, as the latest news from Petrograd says a battle is going on in the streets and that the Cossacks have joined the Minimalists and are mastering the Maximallists."

No Job For a Mortal.

A man advertised for a hostler, and mentioned that a returned soldier would be preferable. Soon a hard-faced looking fellow put in appearance seeking the job.

"Do you smoke?" asked the man.

"No," was the reply.

"Swear?"

"No."

"Are you a member of the Church of England?"

Seeing that an answer in the affirmative was required, the other said he was.

But when the man asked "Are you a total abstainer?" it was too close quarters for the returned hero.

"Look 'ere, mister," he said, "strike me if yer know what yer want. Yer advertised for an 'ostler but yer bloomin' well wants a hark-angel, that's what yer wants," and he walked away in disgust.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Among Friends.

"Martha, dost thou love me?" inquired Seth of the Quaker maiden.

"Why, Seth, we are commanded to love one another," quoth the maiden.

"Ah, Martha, but dost thou feel what the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have tried to bestow my love upon all, but I have sometimes thought that thou was getting more than thy share."—Detroit Saturday Times.

Maybe You Can Use This Some Day.

"Oh, yes," Mrs. Smith told us, "my husband is an enthusiastic archaeologist. And I never knew it till yesterday. I found in his desk some queer looking tickets with the inscription "Mudhorse, 8 to 1." And when I asked him what they were, he explained to me that they were the relics of a lost race. Isn't it interesting?"—Boston Transcript.

SINKINGS SHOW GREAT DROP.

Only Eight Vessels Over 1,600 Tons Sent Down.

London, Nov. 7.—A marked decrease in the British merchant ships sunk during the last week is noted in the admiralty report tonight. Only 8 vessels over 1,600 were sunk by mine or submarine and four vessels under that tonnage. No fishing vessels were sunk. The summary:

Arrivals, 2,684, sailings, 2,379. British merchant vessels over 1,600 tons sunk by mine or submarine, including two previously, eight; under 1,600 tons, including one previously, four. Fishing vessels sunk, none. British merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked, including five previously, six.

The sinkings of British merchant ships recorded in the latest admiralty report are the smallest in point of number since the unrestricted submarine warfare began early in the year. They probably are the smallest in tonnage also, for, while in the week beginning September 15 only eight vessels of 1,600 tons or over were sunk, twenty vessels under that tonnage were destroyed. The next best record in point of number was in the week ending Sept. 30, when thirteen vessels were sunk, eleven large and two small.

SPEAKING OF THRILLS.

Two Britishers Run Against Boche Gun Pit and Draw Map of It.

"Two of our fellows had a rather startling adventure the other day," said a wounded British airplane pilot. "They saw something over the Boche lines. They saw something doing in the rear of the Hun lines and flew down to have a closer look, and they came under the fire of some larchies. Of course they paid little attention to the fire until a direct hit smashed the engine, and the pilot had barely time to turn the bus' for home when most of the engine fell clear. He didn't lose control, but planed down, as much in the direction of the British lines as he could. They came to earth with a bit of a crash inside the Boche lines, but neither the pilot nor his observer were hurt. They nipped out of the ruined 'bus' pretty quick and started running in the direction of the British trenches.

"There didn't seem to be any Boches about where they came down and after running for some time they dropped to have a breather. While they lay on the ground out of breath, they spotted a sort of erection affair, covered with camouflage. They crept up closer and got near enough to hear the Boches talking, but not near enough to be spotted. It was a gun pit and a jolly big one at that, so they squatted there and made a sketch map of it, with a bearing or two to get the proper range.

"After that they crept and ran until they got to the bank of the canal. They had to swim for it and they took off as much dunnage as they could—stripped to their skirts, and one of them stuck the sketch in his tobacco pouch to keep it from getting soaked. Then they started to swim for it. As they left the bank a couple of Boche snipers got a bead on them and they had just time to locate the beggars hiding in sunken barrels before they dived for it. They swam under the water, coming up for a breather now and then, with the Boche blazing away all the time.

"When they got to the other side there was a bit of a slope to get up and then one of our own sentries started to fire at them. They didn't want to kick up too much of a row and be pipped by the Boche after getting so far, but they managed by signals to show that the sniper chap had made a mistake and they got through all right.

The first thing they did while still dressed only in wet shirts to get on the phone to our heavies, and by the help of the infantry O. C.'s map to give the exact location of that big gun pit as well as the two barrels. Next think that happened was a series of direct hits on that gun emplacement, and the two snipers' barrels sent sky high. It was a complete washout for the Boche."

The Welsh Rabbit Habit.

'Tis an excellent habit, To first catch your rabbit, You'll find them in Wales, So put salt on their tails, The next thing to please, Is to haste them with cheese, But sure do not fail To dip them in ale. When they give up the ghost Just fry them on toast, When the hour is late, Just serve on a plate, Pour over a dressing, But maybe at first It ought to be cursed. What you cannot eat up Just give to the pup, It not only will fill him, But probably kill him.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thedford's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Thedford's, the original and genuine. E 79

That's What John Bunyon Johnson, the Well-Known Automobile Salesman, Says of Martin's Liver Medicine

One of the latest to add his unqualified endorsement to Martin's Liver Medicine is John Bunyon Johnson, of Macon, Ga. In a letter dated August 25, 1917, he says:

"It affords me pleasure to report that I have taken Martin's Liver Medicine and obtained most desirable results. Martin's Liver Medicine is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe nor inconvenience the taker in any way. It acts positively and yet gently upon the liver and it is my opinion that it is superior to any liver medicine sold."

Martin's Liver Medicine is strictly vegetable in ingredients, contains no poisonous calomel, is pleasant to take and is sold with the standing guarantee that if it does not give the effect desired, the empty bottle can be returned to the drug store and the 50c paid for it will be refunded. As a medicine for constipation, sick headache or other liver and stomach troubles, Martin's Liver Medicine is without a peer. Sold by druggists everywhere.
