

Mr. Evans submitted a resolution, instructing the superintendent of public works, to enquire into the practicability and expediency of opening the navigation of the river, in Fairfield district, from the mouth of said river to Wino's bridge, and to report thereon at the next session.

The house of representatives concurred in, and returned to senate, a report on the several petitions of Thomas Holmes, Martin Hook, and Jacob Swygert—also, a report on the report of the superintendent of public works, as to assessments; also, a resolution giving to the judges of the court of appeals, the use of the legislative library; and a resolution relative to the fund left by the Rev. Mr. Ludman, for the education of poor children in St. James, Goose Creek.

A report from the house of representatives on the petition of A. Houston, was concurred in, and ordered to be returned to that house; as was also a report on contingent accounts, against the lower division of the treasury.

On motion of Mr. Williams, it was ordered that the committee on internal improvements, be discharged from the various petitions praying for a turnpike road from Columbia to the North Carolina line; and on motion of Mr. Clemen, it was ordered that he leave to withdraw those petitions.

A report from the house of representatives on the several petitions of Robert White, Sarah McClure, Job Smith, and David Holand, were concurred in, and ordered to be returned to that house; and a report from that house in favor of D. Shuckley, was considered and disagreed to.

Messages having been interchanged for that purpose, the two houses proceeded to the election of register of mesne conveyances for Georgetown, and state reporter.

A report from the house of representatives, appointing managers of the next general election, and a report of the committee on education, were concurred in, and ordered to that house; also a report on the communication from the comptroller general respecting the expenditure of the contingent fund by the late governor Wilson.

The house of representatives sent to senate, several resolutions for combining into one act the laws upon distinct subjects, ordered to lie on the table; also a resolution requesting the faculty of the South Carolina College to report at the next session on the subject of the regulation of public schools, which was referred to that house.

On motion of Mr. Taylor, Mr. Williams was called to the chair, when Mr. Taylor submitted a resolution, which having been adopted, and Mr. Taylor having resumed the chair, Mr. Williams submitted a motion, that the following resolution adopted by the committee of the whole be entered on the journals, and on the motion, it was determined in the affirmative.

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of the senate be, and the same are hereby tendered to the Honorable Jacob Bond P.O., for the persevering industry, courteous manner, faithful and impartial discharge of the duties of presiding officer of the senate.

Mr. Mamer from the committee on engrossed acts, reported sundry acts as ready for ratification, and messages having been interchanged between the two houses for that purpose, the house of representatives attended in the senate chamber, and they were ratified.—Adjourned sine die.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
TUESDAY, Dec. 20.

The house having met agreeably to adjournment.

The senate returned to the house the following bills, entitled acts, which had resolved three readings in each house, viz: An act to raise supplies for 1823; an act to alter and amend an act, entitled, an act to establish a college at Columbia; an act to enable Ann Richardson to bring back into this state, a certain female slave; and an act to incorporate the Charleston water-works company, and for other purposes; an act in amendment to the more effectually to prohibit free negroes and persons of color from entering into this state, and for other purposes; referred to the engrossing committee.

GOLD MINA.

FRIDAY EVENING, JANUARY 6, 1825.

Secretary of the Treasury's Report.

The length of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury is such, that we have availed ourselves of an abstract which we copy from the National Journal. This document, from the magnitude of the subject, is important. All must be pleased to see the flourishing state of our finance; but when we reflect that this is produced by an ungenerous and unfair law, which taxes the Southern planter to encourage the Northern manufacturer, we are compelled to disapprove the whole proceedings. While we will always be pleased at the discharge of the national debt, we still must desire that there should be the result of fair and equal taxation. Mr. Rush recommends an increase of duties on cotton goods, but a diminution of them on tea, coffee, and cocoa. These, he says, have become articles of necessity to the poor as well as the rich—they come not into contact with any interest and therefore might be lower. This is mere subterfuge and words without more. Are not coarse woollens and coarse cottons now the most heavily taxed? And are not these necessities of life ten times as much to the poor as the gold? When did the advocates of this unjust, cruel and oppressive measure regard for a moment the necessities of the poor, or any other open, generous or manly measure before. He that disregards moral justice, disregards every manly sentiment, and when he uses the terms, he does it but for a purpose. But when we reflect on the quarter from which Mr. Rush comes and the administration with which he acts, we are not astonished if we are displeas'd. Reasons of state and the end to be produced are the arguments of the whole school; opposed to these the Constitution has presented no barrier, nor will considerations for the poor or the rich stop them. Nor do we believe Mr. Rush has given the reason which governed him in his recommendation to reduce the duties on tea, &c. The contiguity of Canada; the low rate of duty in that province; and the dexterity of our Northern and Eastern fellow-citizens, have in all probability furnished him with a better reason. A foretaste of that moral depravity which sooner or later must and will disgrace every community who may pursue the pernicious policy of high duties has doubtless startled him.

The proper rate of duties ought to equal the real wants of the government and nothing more, for this reason and this reason alone, was the power to lay an import duty given, and for this end and this alone, can it be honestly or honorably exercised. These are truths as clear as the light of Heaven's ananias, and he that thinks or acts differently has either a bad head or worse heart.

On Tuesday night last about ten o'clock, our citizens were alarmed by the cry of FIRE. It broke out in a kitchen attached to the house owned by Mr. Sargent, but now occupied by Mr. Robert L. Edwards, in the lower part of the block, where the flames were arrested, and no other injury done.

We regret much the unpleasant necessity of recording the fact of an atrocious and unprovoked murder having been committed in our town on Tuesday evening last. The unfortunate person was named GEORGE W. JOHNSON, who, from what we can learn of him, has a mother and sister living in or near the city of Philadelphia. He was a carpenter by trade, and maintained a good character among those who knew him in this place.

We perceive, by an article in the Philadelphia Democratic Press of the 22d December, that Mr. Edward Chapman, an eminent merchant of that city, is to be appointed to the general government for duties at the custom house, to the amount of Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars. And in the same paper, under the editorial head, we find the following article:

"The numerous and affectionately attached body of friends of Dr. Cooper, in this city and state, will learn, with peculiar satisfaction, that he reached Columbia on the 11th inst.—that his health much improved, on the journey from Richmond, 393 miles, and he was expected promptly to resume his duties as President of the South Carolina College. We feel that it would not be doing justice if we did not take this occasion to express the gratitude felt by the friends of President Cooper, for the unwearied attention, the indefatigable zeal and intelligence with which Dr. J. Cullen, of Richmond, devoted himself to the care and superintendance of the means essential to the recovery of his patient. That those organs were successful, thousands will rejoice and be grateful."

We are happy to inform the editor of the Press and the Doctor's numerous friends in that city, that his health has been getting better daily, since his return to Columbia.

COMMUNICATED.

Abbie to the Bar.—The gentlemen of the Bar, practicing in the Court of Equity, in the districts of Spartanburgh, Union, York, Chester, Lancaster, Kershaw and Fairfield, are informed that the docket of the Circuit Judge, in all the causes heard during the last Circuit, together with the papers connected with them, are deposited with Mr. Goldfarb, for their use, at the approaching Court of Appeals.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

BILL OF MORTALITY.
Death in Columbia from the 24th of December 1823, to the 5th of January, 1825.

By Violence: 1
Total: 1
One white between twenty and thirty years of age.

By order of the Board
JESSE DEBRUHL, Clerk.

A CARD.

MR. EDMONDS gratefully acknowledges the obligations he is under to the citizens of Columbia, the Professors and Students of the College, who were present on the night of the fire, for the assistance they offered to save his property, and allay the terrors of his family. He is fully convinced that nothing, but the great exertions of a few individuals saved the dwelling house from contamination; the remembrance of their friendship, will not be obliterated by the lapse of time.

SOUTH-CAROLINA, Fairfield District.

JAMES WELDEN calls before me one stray COW, tolerably large, with a red or brindled head and neck, with a star in her forehead, her body chiefly white, with the exception of some red spots, her legs all red, her left ear appears to be either cut or sore, on the inner side, supposed to be 12 or 14 years old. Appraised at nine dollars, this 24th of Dec, 1823, by Samuel Whelden, and John P. Robinson, sworn appraisers, before G. ROBINSON, J.P.

TO MEDICAL STUDENTS.

THE want of opportunities in the interior of the State, of witnessing the various operations in Surgery, must render this important branch of the Medical Student, who may be deprived of the advantages of a course of Lectures in any of the Medical Colleges. What is read on any subject may be affected from the memory; but that which is exhibited to the eye, leaves an impression comparatively indelible. Upon this principle a system of teaching shall be founded, and to a proper comprehension of it my present purpose must contribute.

The ultimate success of any surgical operation must necessarily depend greatly on the dexterity of the operator. And any failure from want of manual tact, or knowledge on the subject, is not less disastrous to him, than unfortunate for his patient. The importance therefore of actual practice cannot be too much encouraged, or too highly valued. To accomplish so desirable an object, and to simplify, as much as possible, those complex operations in surgery which cannot be comprehended from books alone, the undersigned, proposes to the Medical Students in the interior of the state (and elsewhere) who may please to attend him, to deliver a full course of Lectures on Practical Surgery, with Anatomical Illustrations from Morbid preparations—Models—Engraved Drawings—and from the human body, as far as practicable—connected with the manual application of Splints, and Bandages. The various operations will be performed in the presence of the class—corresponding with each lecture. And the most approved modern surgical instruments used at present in the different operations, will at the same time be exhibited to the class, so that the student may become acquainted with instruments, which for the most part are only seen by him in his "mind's eye" from books. Although this point in itself, may seem too trifling to be insisted upon or pressed upon the attention of the student, the works of a very distinguished professor are here applicable: "When that which is simple is fully attended, that which is more complex will be easier understood, and better performed; and it will often be found that the final success of that which is great, very much depends on the accurate execution of that which is little."

My chief attention will be directed to practical illustrations, and to exhibit as much as possible to the eye, with clearness, and in the most pleasing manner within my compass, and I am not without a hope that my Lectures may prove useful to the Medical Student, particularly if they are found less deficient in correctness of demonstration, than in beauties of style and oratory. I take the opportunity in this place of disclaiming all pretensions to originality, but shall only value myself as the faithful narrator of the very best modern authorities, and shall avail myself freely of their writings, and experience. And if I become the successful teacher of this branch of our science so much neglected, and so vitally important to the welfare of society, and can contribute by my undertaking in the humblest mode to the advancement of Medical Science in my Native State, my efforts will be amply repaid, and I freely confess that I am not entirely indifferent to that species of reputation that will accrue if my labors are successful.

Pecuniary considerations form no part of my object, as I require no emolument for my services. All that will be demanded of the class in the way of payment will be barely sufficient to meet the contingent expenses of the course (and no more) this sum will be augmented, or decreased, in proportion to the number of the class, but under any circumstances must be very inconsiderable to each member of it. The undersigned respectfully invites the co-operation of the enlightened members of the profession, (in furtherance of an object that must be dear to them all) and will duly appreciate any loans to his Anatomical Cabinet, which may tend to render it more useful to the junior members of his class. They may rest assured that every care will be taken of any contributions in this way, and returned whenever demanded.

M. H. BELEON, Columbia.
N. B. The course will commence immediately after the Lectures close in Charleston, and continue till finished.
The Medical Faculty, Faculty of the South Carolina College, with some literary gentlemen of Columbia, will be respectfully invited to attend, whenever they may please to honor us with their presence.
Students who wish to join the class are requested to call at my shop and enter their names, so that suitable arrangements may be made in due time.
