HONNEUR AUX BRAVES.
The Emperor Napoleon and his suits were riding slowly towards Elsing, when they encountered a numerous body of captive Austrians, most of whom were wounted—many severely. Rapoleon and his Sauff immediately turned out of the road, and as the grammer filed past, the Emperor, uncovering hignest with respectful selemnity, repeated in noble and touching secents, "Honor to the brave! Honor to the brave! Honor to the brave! Honor to the brave! Honor to the brave who bleed for their country!"—Manuscry: Memoirs of a Frinch Officer.

Honor unto the Brave,
Honor to those who fall
Where Fredom's banners wave,
Where glory's trumpets call:
The faural that alone
Should shade a heroes grave
Will bloom when we are gono—
Then "Honor to the brave!"

Honor unto the Brave,
Slover to those who bleed
Their native land to save,...
Oht theirs is fame indeed.
Who that could perish so
Would live to be a slave?
Can brave men crouch so lo Can brave men erouch so low? No!-- Honor to the Brave!"

Honor unto the Brave, Who bore their banner high, Above the stormy wave Beneath the stormy sky; They sleep the Heroe's sleep lu many an ocean cave, But their fame is on the drep— Then "Honor to the Brave!"

Honor unto the Brave, Where'er timy draw tile sword; Honor to those who crave But fame as their reward; In camp, in regal hall, On mountain, or in cave, At beauty's festival, Still "Honor to the Brave!"

GREAT BILLEARD PLAYING.—A tew days since a young man arrived here from one of the Western States, and soon attracted attention by his great skill at billiards. There are many young men is our city, who are great proficients in that art, and they were determined that this northern youth should not vaunt of having beaten New Oileans without a struggle. Accordingly a champion estered the lists—one who had hitherto come victorious out of every contest in which he had engaged, and now stood without a rival at the billiard table, as Spring, the champion of all England, does in the puglicatio ring. They played several rubs at different times, with alternate success, on which considerable sums were lost and won. To settle in the pugitastic ring. They played several rubs at different times, with alternate success, on which considerable sums were lost and won. To settle finally the question of superiority; they agreed to play on Monday till one or the other should have the games more than his antagonist, the winner to receive $500; bye-hets were also made to a considerable amount. They set to about half past 4 velocic. In the first hour the New-Orleans chambles are not supported by the first hour the New-Orleans chambles are not supported for refreshment, about midnight he was 7 games shead. The New Orleans veteran, nothing daunted, then put forth all his powers, and was victor in seven games successively. Thus they continued, with different turns of fortune, till 7 o'clock in the morning, when each man had won 48 games, playing 96 in all, and they sheathed their ques, and retired to sip their coffee, both declaring that were they to contend till next Christmas, in the manner prescribed by the terms of the bet, neither could carry off the prize. English Labourer's Wages.—An abstract of the House of Commons, appointed to inquire into the subject of labourers' wages, was ordered to be printed the 10th May, 1825. In this abstract we have several returns from the districts of each county, stating, among other particulars, the usual rate of wages, and the number of children which entitles the labourer to an allowance from the parish. Throughout the south and west of Eagland the wages seldom exceeds 7s a week, and frequently not more than 6s. The allowance from the parish seldom commences till there are two children, frequently till there are three. In Dorsetsbire, for instance, where the wages vary from 6s, to 7s, a week, the allowance was as and of collars—one fifty and five twenty delines. children, frequently till there are three. In Dorsetshire, for instance, where the wags vary from
6s. to 7s. a week, the allowance commences only with the third child. The times says—"Good God
