A letter from Washington is published in the Alexandria Gazette; in which the fellowing statement is made;

It appears that Mr. Kendall left the Post Office on the evening of Sunday last, at a late hour, and on reaching his house, felt some inward impulse prompting him to return to the office. He obeyed its ad. monition, and immediately retraced his was his astonishment, on opening and en. tering his own room, to find himself envel oped in a dense mass of smoke. There was no time to be lost-he summoned aid, and for ence baffled the unparalled villainy of the unknown incendiary, by extingushing lines for Norfolk and Charleston immethe flames. Squire Warton was engaged all day yesterday, in the office, in taking number of these indispensable articles. depositions-and it is rumored, that if the building had been destroyed the proceeding and more recent conflagration were all directed by the same master hand. The matter is yet confined amongst a few-but you shall have all the particulars, as soon as they are fully developed.

[From the National Intellgencer] For several days past a repert has been in circulation in this city, of an attempt to set fire to the General Post Office, which is now kept in the large building formerly after he shall have become aware of the occupied by Mr, AFuller and known by fact. the name of the American Hotel, situated in avenue and fourtean streets. We understand that a bundle of papers, which were placed on the matelpiece of the Post Mas. ter General's room, were found burnt, and the mantel-piece charred, when the room was enlered early on Sunday morning.
