> SILK COMMITTEE. Twety-Fifth Congress, SECOND SESSION.

April 20th 1838.

MULBERRY AND SUGAR BLET. Mr. Randolph, from the Committee on Agri-culture, submitted the following REPORT:

The Committee on Agriculture, who were instructed to inquire whether, any, and, if any, what encouragement may be given to pro-mote the culture of the mulberry and the sugar beet, report :

That in order to obtain satisfactory information of the present state and condition, as well as of the importance, of the culture of the mulberry and sugar beet, they issued a circular on the subject, shortly after it was commit-ted to them, to which they have received numerous answers, giving much interesting and useful imformation; some of the most impor-tant of which the committee append to this report. The first question which naturally suggests itself is, whether the subject matter is of such national importance as to merit the serious attention of Congress ; and in order to satisfy thems lves on this point, the committee ascertained from the public documents the amount of silk and sugar imported into the United States, as follows, viz:

SUGAR. SILK 25,033,200 12,514,551 1836 This statement at once shows the immense sum which is annually paid by the people of this country, to foreign countries, for those two articles only; and also, the very great importance of encouraging their culture amongst

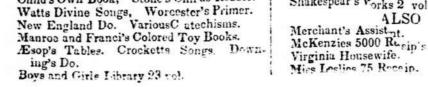

It would introduce to the farmer new and valuable, and as your committee believe, profitable productions ; which in rotation, with other crops, would have a doubly beneficial fect on our agricultural interests. It would in prove our lands, increase the amount of productive industry. and condense, improve and emich our popu ation. It would be adding ness of every family, and thus increase the the fact that Mr. Lindsay, of Washington city has frequently conferred with them on this subject, imparting his valuable information enforced by the practical argument of his wearing a complete suit of silk, cultivated and manthis, as in every country, a large class of individuals who, so far from adding any thing to the industry and wealth of the nation, are unachildren ; the aged and infirm, to whom may be added the long list of paupers in our poor-houses and asylums, and of prisoners in our workhouses and State penitentiaries. To this class, the cultivation of silk presents a most suitable and advantagenos employment. Within the last year the cultivation of the mulberry has been much more extended than in several preceding years, and the people and the Legislatures of several of the States have taken up the subject with increased spirit and vigor. From all the information which the commitee have been able to obtain, they are induced to believe that no country in the world is better adap:ed to the production of silk, or the sugar-beet than most parts of the United States, whether we consider the soil the climate, or the habits of the people. The mulberry will grow on high, stony, sandy, and comparatively barren land ; although the poverty of the coil may decrease the quantity of folage, it will improve the quality, and add fineness and beauty to the silk; whilst the climate is so varied, that no part is too far north to destroy been considered the most valuable variety of mulberry : though the Brussa, recently introduced into this country from Turkey, is highy spoken of as of a superior quality. The large white six week worm seems to be genra ally admitted to be preferable for the preduction of silk. "If, then, there are so many inducements for, the introduction of these two important articles our soil and climpte adapted to the cuiture, and the prospect of public good and private gain be good; why, it will asked may we not become a great silk growing and sugar-making people ? We can, and the committee beists be satisfied of a fair prospect of success and that the Government should lend its aid of the measure.

THE PROFITS.

From four hundred to one thousand per cent is now realized on the cultivation and sale of trees. So enormous a profit is not of course expected to be realised for any length of time, but will decline as the trees become more abundant, and the country is stocked with silk plantatations. But the producing of raw silk from those trees must become a permanent business, from which the farmer will be able to realize from three to five hundred dollars from each acre of mulberry trees. The whole business is as simple as that of raising corn or potatoes, and more certain than any machines for reeling and preparing the raw In every way, the silk culture is a matter of
