THE BLAST FROM CHAMBERLAIN.

Even before the fourth of July word had been given out that that anniversary would be the occasion for an attack upon the southern policy of Mr. Hayes, on the part of ex-Governor Chamberlain and the disappointed Senator from Maine. Those who wished no ill to the late Governor of this State and who gave him credit for sincerity in expressing his sense of the fai.ure of his administration in a recent conversation with a New York Herald correspondent, were unwilling to believe that he could be guilty of the act of folly which he perpetrated at Woodstock Conn. for the entertainment of the friends of Mr. H. C. Bowen on Independence day. By his ally by every one whatever may be his utterances on that occasion Mr. Chamberlain has done himself no honor, but on the contrary has re-awakened public attention to the stains which attach to his record while filling high places of trust in this State. From the beginning to the end of his speech he betrayed without attempt at concealment, the fretful spacing of a disappointed political tramp, and his reckless invectives against President Hayes are the result of a calm and deliberately planned attack upon a policy which he must be well aware could alone give peace, tranquility and good order to the State which events have shows he was not the man to govern.

While occupying his time in denouncing the Presidents course, he carefully avoided attempting to sketch the other side of the picture, the "what might have been." He was doubtless well aware that he has too often during the past two years expressed his inability to control the corrupt and destructive elements which surrounded him and which would still have had full sway but for the happy revolution of last winter, and so one knows better than he does, that in no other way could the State be He was received and entertained on redeemed than by aprooting the ignorant the 26th by Queen Victoria at Windsor and depraved party at whose head, Palace, where, with Mrs. Grant, he unfortunately for himself, he chose to

MEXICO.

The President replies to the critic, sm on his Mexican policy with screne con fidence rot only in the uprightness of hi inte ations, but in the wisdom of his poli-J. The thought of annexation never entered his head. He would regard the addition of any part of Mexico to our national domain as a shocking calamity. He is well aware that the country is averse | Prince and Princess of Wales, and other to any such scheme of expansion doubting if we have not already more territory than we can conveniently take care of, and feeling sure that a Mexican State at any rate, is of all things in the world, that which we most emphatically do not want.

Now that there is no longer a temptation to extend the area of slavery, all parties look with alarm upon the incorporation into our union of incongruous populations, speaking a strange language, ignorant of our political system trained to habits which do not accord with ours, and sprung from a mixture of races whose character seems to be incompatible with free Republican institutions. Grant received more than one mortifying rebuff when he attempted to disregard the fixed aversion of the people of the United States to the acquisition of Spanish American territory. It does not seem likely that this aversion will erer be overcome. Common sense tells us that such additions to our confederacy of States would be an element of danger and disorder, without any compensating advantages The President is right in insisting paper in the editorial columns. This upon the protection of our frontier. The incursions of the Mexican cattle thieves are intolerable, and the Mexican Govamout certainly cannot complain that we have been over-hasty in our resolution to undertake the duty of stopping them, which Mexico ought to do but does not.

The Town Election.

Three weeks from next Monday the citizens of Beaufors will be called upon to alact an Intendent and six Wardens to serve for the coming year. During the past year the town has paid off all indebtadness, by means off a heavy tax and the assistance of the money from the Harvey Mills. The importance of a good municipal government is acknowledged by all and there has been much talk of electing a council composed of men who would represent to a further extent the intellisence and taxpayers of the town. So far, however, nothing definite has been done but to discuss the case on the street Friday, the Attorney General filed inforcorners and there is danger of the same old neglect of their interests by the citi- Anderson, Louis M. frauds it is said they are unearthing, and the people begin to grow restive under the surprise. The Journal of Commerce of yesterday says:

In the Confederate Congress secret sessions were established chiefly by men originally opposed to secession and friend, of Mr. Davis. They were used to cover up his deficiencies and blunders. They destroyed the power of the Press and of public opinion. In effect they made Mr. Davis supreme in Congress and absolute throughout the South. Those who were independent enough to oppose in the ecret counsel of the Congress such measures as he desired, were marked down and treated as enemies of the administration, while they received no support from the outside public. Those who in the South, taking pains 'to obtain information, expressed independent opinion as to the course of the administration, were looked upon by an uninformed public as hostile to the government, and held to act injuriously to the cause. So we tied ourselves blindly to a man sufficiently plausible, but devoid of sagacity, political or military, and drifted with him into ruin. But the Congress of the United States sat in open session, with the light of the press to illumine its proceedings. and the power of public opinion to inform and correct and assist its counsels. During that great controversy the North got all the benefits derived from a government of the people in earnest, and the South all the weakness of star-chamber incompetency, above public opinion and dictating in public affairs. We allude to these experiences and results, in view of the secret sessions of the Committee of Investigation now sitting in Columbia. Trees that have long stems exposed to hot suns or drying winds, become what gardeners call "hide-bound." That is, the old bark becomes indurated-cannot expand, and the tree suffers much in consequence. Such an evil is usually indicated by gray lichens which feed on the decaying bark. In these cases a washing of weak lye or limewater is very useful; indeed, where the bark is healthy, it is beneficial to wash the trees, as many eggs of insects are thereby destroyed. We would, however, refer to linseed oil as a wash, as far more effective for insects, and would perhaps, do as well for moss and lichen. After all, these seldom come when trees are well cultivated.
