Sweet Rusks .- One quart new milk, three tablespoonfuls yeast, flour to make a thick batter; mix at night, and in the morning add one cupful fresh lard and one cupful sugar rubbed together, three eggs well beaten, preserving the white of one; beat this to a stiff froth; add a little sugar, and spread over the top. They are excellent.

ICE CREAM.—To three pints of cream add three pints of milk, one cap of sugar, one egg well beaten, one tablespoonful vanilla flavor; put into the freezer without cooking.

GREEN CORN FRITTERS. - Grate a sufficient number of ears of ripe corn to make a quart; rub together quarter of a pound of butter, quarter of a pound of of bullets upon the poor unfortunates. sugar, and three tablespoonfuls flour, a pinch of salt; stir into this one quart of rich milk, eight eggs, well beaten, and lastly the grated corn; if not thick enough a little more flour may be added; fry in hot butter, or bake in a charged the contents among the Indians, pudding dish. You may make half this quantity.

COCOANUT CAKES. -To the milk of one cocoanut add as much water, dissolve one pound of white powdered sugar in the milk and water; boil it until i tecomes a "ropy" syrup, then turn it into a buttered dish; beat well the white of one egg and whip in half a pound of powdered sugar, mix with this one cocoanut, carefully pared and grated; as soon as the syrup cools sufficiently, so as not to scald the egg, add the mixed cocoanut, beating well all the time: drop a tablespoonful at a time; on buttered paper; try one first, if it "runs" beat in more sugar. Bake in a very moderate oven, watch closely to prevent them from browning.

VEAL CUTLETS. - Have the cutlets cut from the fillet about three-fourths of an inch thick and about as large as the palm of your hand; grate some stale bread and rub through a colander, adding to it salt, pepper, sweet marjoram, grated yellow rind of a lemon, a little powdered mace and grated nutmeg; spread this on a large flat dish, beat up some eggs, dipping each cutlet into the egg, then into the prepared bread, seeing that a sufficient quantity adheres to each side of the meat; have boiling some sweet lard and a small quantity of butter added, in which fry your cutlets, turning them three times, but be careful they do not burn. Place in a hot covered dish; make a gravy by sifting flour into the fat in the pan, stirring until it is a rich brown, when add boiling water to form the right

The first thing requisite to making good butter is to have good cows, good pasture, good water, and salt for the cows twice a week. Next, good man-agement of the milk. The milk should be cooled immediately after milking, that wooden pails so perfectly that they will milk. Nothing receives a tint more easily than milk or cream, and all bad odors the butter. A cool spring-house is best to keep milk in, or a cool cellar (not too damp) having all decayed vegetable matter removed. Washing the walls with lime will greatly aid in keeping it pure. Wash the vessels used in warm water, inside and out; then scald with boiling water, and place in the sun. The churn, butter bowl and ladle should be washed and scalded with equal care. Sunshine and pure air are all that ought to stand in the churn between churning times. The milk should be skimmed as soon as the cream has risen. If left too long the surface will become watery; while underneath, the cream is rapidly yielding to the corrosive acid in the milk, and becomes a thin watery substance, neither cream hor milk. The best plan then is to give it to the pigs. A good plan is to save the strippings—say a pint from each cow-cooling it perfectly before putting it in the cream jar; stir well each time new is added.

In regard to working butter, there is a great difference of opinion. Experience has taught us it should be worked but once, and then gently. It is composed of minute globules, which are crushed by too much working, making the butter greasy. We are not in favor of washing butter if it can be avoided; use pure salt which is perfectly white and will dissolve in cold water, leaving no sediment. The brine will be perfectly clear, having no bitter taste. An ounce to a pound of butter is enough, as too much salt destroys the delicate flavor of good butter. -Colman's Rural World.

Danger of Sleeping in the Moonlight. from exposure to a burning sun are only that she wouldn't mention the fact, as it too well understood; but it is, perhaps, not so generally known that in many parts of the world, notably in India, there is a strong and very general prejudice against sleeping in full moonshine, as it is supposed to produce "moonstroke." An old Indian resident has recently been devoting his attention to the subject, and comes to the conclusion that any ill effects arising from sleeping in the moonlight are not due to any direct influence of the moon itself. His explanation of the origin of this prevalent belief in the baleful qualities of the goddess of night is very rational, and may be summarized thus: A clear sky admits of rapid radiation, and any person exposed to such radiation is sure to be chilled by rapid heat. There is reason to believe that, under the circumstances, paralysis of one side of the face is sometimes likely to occur from chill, as one side of the face is more likely to be but didn't find the count. He must have exposed to rapid radiation, and consequent loss of heat. The chill is more likely to occur when the sky is perfectly clear and in full moon. The whole matter thus comes clear on this explanation. Prolonged exposure to cold is almost certain to produce headache, neuralgia, or even paralysis, owing to the retardation of the circulation, and these similar injuries have been attributed to the moon when the proximate cause may really have been the chill, and a woman by Indians in the Black Hills: An eye-witness, who was cutting hay within a quarter of a mile, tells how it occurred. He says that hearing a succession of rapid shots fired over the bluff from where he was mowing, he got up on a high timbered elevation and saw about twenty Indians engaged in a fight with two men and a woman who occupied an ox train. The men defended themselves gallantly against the great odds. They were well-armed, and fought as only men fight for their lives. The Indians, instead of coming up in a body, broke in every direction and surrounded the wagon, keeping up a constant trail Three of the oxen were first to fall. Waggomen, the owner of the outfit, and the husband of the lady, next was shot through the head. Mrs. Waggomen seized her husband's revolver and diswho were now close upon the wagon. After she had emptied the weapon she flung it full in the face of a burly savage who was reaching over the wagon to grasp her. He reeled back but others took his place.

Mr. Tyner, the other man, was quickly finished, and there remained but the lady to deal with. The Indians had since the beginning of the conflict been careful not to injure her, and their bullets were directed chiefly toward the two men. The poor woman, knowing her probable fate, fought like a tigress, clutching an empty gun and striking right and left, but to no avail. She was finally overpowered and brought to the ground, but the woman fought so hard that they procured some tent stakes which were in the wagon and staked the limbs and body of the poor woman firmly to the ground. After they had accomplished their horrible deed they took her scalp and horribly mutilated her, and then dispatched her. The shrieks of the woman could be heard distinctly where my informant was lodged, powerless to help and almost dead with fear. When the savages began sacking the wagon they observed the witness of their cruelty standing on the bluff, and two of them started in pursuit. He, however, made good time, and succeeding in reaching Crook, about nine miles off, without falling into their clutches.

Soon after the massacre the Bismarck stage rolled by the fatal spot. There were no Indians in sight, and the passengers were horrified at seeing the sight before them. Both of the two men had been scalped and their ears and noses cut consistency; add, lastly, a little chopped parsley and vinegar, and pour, boiling, over the cutlets. No manufacturer, trader or banker has any more right to be so energetic and enterprising as to absorbed by the milk will be retained by take from his legitimate business the capital which it requires to meet any Apologies are sometimes made for firms who have failed, by recurring to the important experiments they have aided, and the unnumbered fields of enterprise where they have freely scattered their money. We are told that individual losses, sustained by these failures, will be nothing compared with the benefits conferred on the community by their liberality in contributing to every public work. There is little force in such reasoning. A man's relations to a creditor are vastly different from his relations to what is called the public. The de-mands of the one are definite, the claims of the other are just what the ambition of the man may make them.

The histories of honorable, successful business men unite to exalt the importance of sticking to a legitimate business, and it is most instructive to see that, in the greater portion of the failures, the real cause of disaster was the branching out beyond a legitimate business, in the taking hold of this and that tempting offer, and, for the sake of some great gain, venturing where they did not know the ground, and could not know the pitfall.

She promised not to say a word about it, and invited the count to stop with them all night, giving him the best bed in the house and the seat nearest the beefsteak at the supper table. The meal was quite a revelation to her in the matters of the table habits of the nobility of Europe, but the discovery she made in the morning was still a greater eye-opener. His lordship had departed in the small hours, taking with him, probably as cherished souvenirs, the larger portions of the bed linen, the farmer's best boots, an old horse-pistel and half a ham. He left a scrawling misspelled note, that he must away, as his passionate longing for the true heart of which he was ever in search would not let him rest until they were united. The farmer loaded his shot gun, took the road, and was gone two days, gone back to his estates in Italy.

The forced quiet of this little town is at times oppressive. When a whole day has passed without a single shot from either line of the batteries frowning at each other along the river bank the conversation in the little cafe gets dull and spasmodic, and at last flickers and goes out like a burned up candle, simply for want of something to feed it. It was, then, with an approach to excitement that we, who had no other occupation all shadow moved with the advancing sun, saw a crowd of infantrymen gather at the heard the noise of a dispute within grow | coined is still gold: louded and louder. Discussions between the soldiers and the natives are not by any means infrequent, and if there had been any other diversion I should 1875-6... 27,036,500 8,953,000 not have paid the least attention to the 1876-7... 32,552,500 13,541,000 one of which I speak. However, when the mayor of the town-a short, thickset, active little body, who now finds no other field for the exercise of his authority except the ever-recurring differences between the citizen and soldier -went across the street through the blazing sunlight and mingled his highkeyed voice with the chorus I thought it time to investigate the affair myself. The situation was too ludicrous. There stood the sharp-featured shopman, his dark eyes fairly flashing with rage, flourishing a large sausage at a mild looking intentryman, who on his side a twinkle in his gray eyes, but until the mayor has summoned the colonel from his quarters opposite and the shopman of the jargon of Russian and Roumanian that was flying about to make one complete phrase.

The trick was a shrewd one, but a little "too thin" to deceive even a Wallachian. The two comrades had in accordance with a previous agreement, taken the opportunity while there was a dispute about the price to cut off the longer part of the sausage which appeared from the soldier's arm behind, and made their way to the camp with their booty. This mild species of robbery is not rare, and one must sympathize with the soldiers more or less in their attempts to get even with the natives, for in all matters of trade the soldiers invariably get worsted. Their paper money is taken for only two-thirds its real value; the moment a soldier enters a shop door the prices rise two or three per cent. or more, and it is gener-ally "Take or leave it" with the shopman, who takes advantage of the need of the soldier to drive a sharp bargain. Very few cases of open robbery have come under my notice, and the only instance of skillful thievery that I have heard of will well bear relating.

An old peasant had just come to town to buy groceries for the week, and, naturally enough, walked down the street with a little self-consciousness at the thought of having a purse will filled with Russian roubles, by the sale of his last load of hay at the camp. Be-fore he reached the shop, or had even had time to take a glass of raki in the little groggery, he was met by a Cossack, who, without any ceremony, fell upon his neck and kissed him with effusion, exclaiming to the astonished peasant in broken Roumanian that he looked so much like his old father away off on A tramp came along the other day, the banks of the Don that the impulse says the Bridgeport Standard, and confided to the impressible better half of a seems that the sentiment was contagious; farmer on the road that he was a count, for the peasant, after looking at the Cossack for a moment, cried out that he called to mind the pride of the family who was away with the Roumanian army at Kalafat, and the Cossack had to endure the embrace in his turn. This could not last long, of course, and after an exhaustive struggle to express his joy in a language that was almost entirely unknown to him the Cossack took his leave, promising to see his adopted father in a day or two. When the simple old fellow went to pay for his tea and passion stained faces, and tore the sugar he found he had no purse. He out of them." A Scene in California. One of the miners died, and having been much respected, it was determined to give him a regular funeral. A digger in the vicinity, who, report said, had once been a powerful preacher in the United States, was called upon to officiate; and after "drinks all round, the party proceeded, with becoming gravity, to the grave, which had been dug at a distance of a hundred yards from the camp. When this spot was reached, the officiating minister commenced with an extempore prayer, during which all knelt round the grave. So far was well ; but the prayer was unnecessarily long, and at last some of those who knelt, began, in an abstract way, to finger the loose earth that had been thrown up from the grave. It was thick with gold; and an excitement was immediately apparent in the kneeling crowd. Upon this, the preacher stopped, and inquiringly said: "Boys, what's that? Gold!" he exclaimed, "and the richest kind of diggings!" The congregation are dismissed! The poor miner was taken from his auriferious grave and was buried elsewhere; whilst the funeral party, with the parson at their head, lost no time in prospecting the new digging.

The Pale Air Streaked with Blood. They poured in from the side streets, their hands full of stones. The police met them, head on. . The sickening crash of clubs followed, and the pale air was streaked with blood. Huge, bloated women at the windows yelled encouragement and defiance. Pistol balls shrieked as they flew. The clash of sabers and shouts of maddened men made the liot air hideous. Horses were spurred into the mob, swords rose and fell with cruel significance. Alleys were gutted of molten masses of enraged humanity. THE SUN continues to be the strenuous advocate of reform and retrenchment, and of the substitution of statesmanship, wisdom, and integrity for hellow prestence, imbecility, and fraud in the administration of public affairs. It contends for the government of the people by the people and for the people, as opposed to government by frauds in the ballot-box and in the counting of votes, enforced by military violence. It endeavors to supply its readers—a body now not far from a million of souls—with the most careful, complete, and knetworthy accounts of current events, and employs for this purpose a numerous and carefully selected staff of reporters and correspondents. Its reports from Washington, especially, are full, accurate, and fearless; and it doubtless continues to deserve and employs for this purpose who thrive by plundering the Treasury or by asurping what the law does not give them, while it endeavors to merit the confidence of the public by defending the rights of the people against the encroschments of unjustified power.

Rev. J. P. LUDLOW WRITES: 178 BALTIC STREET BROOKLYN, N. Y., H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.:

H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.:

Dear Sir—From personal benefit received by its use, as well as from personal knowledge of those whose cures thereby have seemed almost miraculous, I can most heartily and sincerely recommend the VEGETINE for the complaints which it is claimed to cure.

JAMES P. LUDLOW,

Late Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, Sacramento, Cal.

SOUTH POLAND, ME., Oct. 11, 1876. SOUTH POLAND, ME, OCT. II, 1846.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have been sick two years with the Liver complaint, and during that time have taken a great many different medicines, but none of them did me any good. I was restless nights, and had no appetite. Since taking the VEGETINE I rest well and relish my food. Can resommend the VEGETINE for what it has done for me. Yours respectfully,

MRS, ALBERT BICKER.

Witness of the above:
MR. GEORGE M. VAUGHAN,
Medford, Mass.

Rev. O. T. WALKER SAYS: PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 TRANSIT STREET.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 102 I RABBELL H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.:

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your Vegetine. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating renovating tonic.

O. T. WALKER,

Formerly Pastor Bowdoin-square Church,

Boston.

NOTHING EQUAL TO IT. SOUTH SALEM, MASS., Nov. 14, 1876.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have been troubled with Scrofuls, Canker, and Liver complaint for three years. Nothing ever did me any good until I commenced using the VEGETINE. I am now getting along first-rate, and still using the VEGETINE. I consider there is nothing equal to it for such complaints. Can heartity recommend it to everybody. y recommend it to everybody.
Yours truly, Mrs. LIZZIE M. PACKARD,
No. 16 Lagrange St., South Salem, Mass.

H. R. STEVENS:
