Gene Mitchell Gray, Lincoln Hutch Patterson and Jack Alexander, who e applications for ad mission to the law and graduate chools of the university were rejected by university authorities solely on racial grounds.

Following rejection of . their applications, the NAACP filed suit on their behalf in the federal court seeking to enjoin enforcement of the state's segregation statute on the basis of which the applications had been turned down. In April, 1950, -a three-judge federal court disavowed jurisdiction on the fround that the segregation laws were constitutional, and ordered the case to proceed before U. S. District Judge Robert Taylor.

Judge Fail To Order Admission Although Judge Taylor ruled that the university acted illegally in refusing to accept the complainants, he failed to order their admission, whereupon N-AACP attorneys filed a direct appeal in the United States Supreme Court.
